EARLY END TO AIB

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet has agreed to end pay and price controls ahead of schedule if business and labor demonstrate restraint in coming months, a government source said today.

The provisional date for ending compulsory controls and the conditions to be met meantime were expected to be announced following a day-long meeting today among representatives of government, business and labor.

The program of selected controls on pay rates and profits, introduced in October, 1975, was to run to the end of 1978 under existing law.

But the government has said formal controls might be withdrawn ahead of time.

Controllers Vote To Strike Aug. 8

OTTAWA (CP) — The country's 2,200 air traffic controllers have authorized their union executive to call a strike in their contract dispute with the federal government.

Jim Livingston, president of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association (CATCA), said today the union executive has set a strike deadline of 11:59 p.m. EDT Aug. 8. He said that to minimize inconvenience to the public the association executive has decided on rotating strikes.

Livingston's statement came shortly after ballots were counted in a strike vote which began Monday.

A nationwide strike would virtually ground all commercial air traffic and lead to losses of more than $6 million a day to Air Canada, CP Air and the five regional airlines.

However, Livingston and government representatives have said they are open to further negotiations.

Money is the main issue in dispute.

CATCA is demanding a basic salary increase of eight per cent in a one-year contract, dating from last Dec. 31. The government has offered 6¼ per cent.

The union is also asking for changes in the classification system which could affect salary levels. CATCA says the classification changes would lead to promotions and wage increases for 60 per cent of its members.

The union says these changes are exempt from the anti-inflation board rules, but the government denies this.

Salaries for non-supervisory controllers range between $8,000 a year for trainees and $25,000 annually—for persons with 12 years' experience. The average annual salary for these CATCA members is about $18,000.

The union says that about $3 million in wage benefits separates the government and CATCA. That amounts to about $1,360 a year for each CATCA members.

The union is also asking for a minimum of two controllers on duty at all times at all air traffic control units. Some units may be manned by single controllers at certain hours of the day under existing rules.

Livingston has said the existing situation is dangerous.

Seven Drown in the Grip Of Safety

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Lifejackets became deathjackets for seven handicapped persons on Thursday when a small pontoon boat flipped over on Lake Cowichan.

An RCMP spokesman said the seven, who were attending a summer camp run by the B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children, were trapped under the boat, unable to escape because of a wire mesh railing and the buoyancy of their lifejackets.

Names of six of the seven were released today.

They are Samuel Aubrey Hundleby, 48, and Linda Maria Poitras, 29, both of 936 Mt. Newton in Saanichton; Robert Goodwin Walker, 35, of 991 Abbey, Victoria; Joan Scaife, 33, Frances Rice, 57, and Minnie Sorba, all of 5241 Koksilah in Duncan.

Name of the last victim, a man, is being withheld pending notification of next-of-kin.

Duncan coroner Tom Lines has ordered an inquest and the RCMP have called in a naval architect for an opinion on the seaworthiness of the boat. It was designed and built by Conrad Hungle of Shawnigan Lake under the auspices of the Malahat Lions Club, and donated to the camp two years ago.

BAKER
. . . camp closed

The camp, located on the south shore about four miles west of Lake Cowichan village, closed after the accident and arrangements made to send the campers home.

The tragedy has sent shock waves throughout the province, evoked an expression of sympathy from the legislature, and has put the continuation of the society's summer program at the lake in jeopardy.

"We just don't know whether we'll complete the summer programs or not," said society executive director Frank Wade who flew over from Vancouver as soon as word of the accident reached him.

The mood around the camp Thursday afternoon was one of total shock.

Camp administrator Judi Nyquist looked down and shook her head.

"Who could have believed it?" she said. "It's the most shocking thing that's ever happened to any of us here."

Mrs. Nyquist said today the camp will re-open Aug. 7 provided the staff agrees to return to work.

The boat was seized by police late Thursday.

The victims were part of a group of 48 mentally and physically handicapped adults who were only two days into an eight-day holiday sponsored by the society.

John Baker of Victoria, vice-chairman of the board of directors of the society, said the accident occurred shortly before 11 a.m.

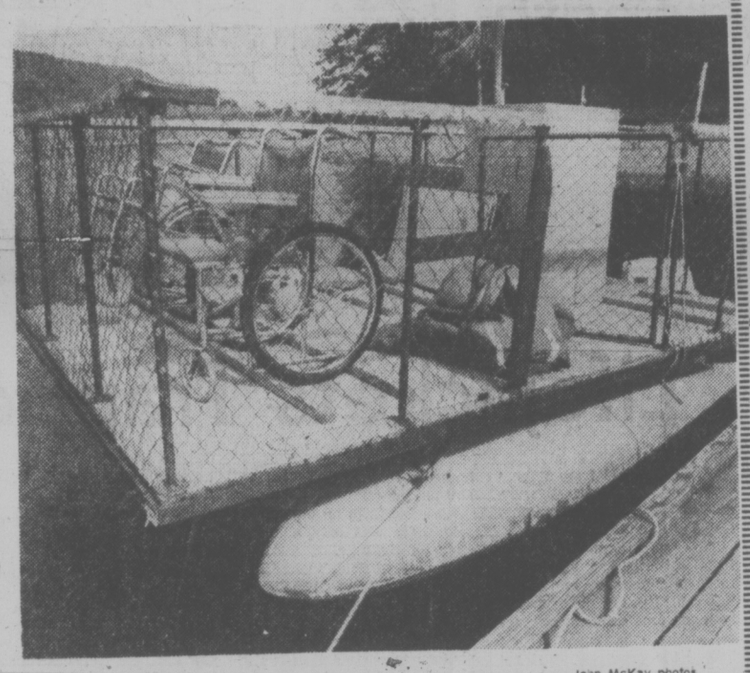

The seven, two in wheelchairs, were being taken by boat to a point down the lake where they were to have joined the others of their group in a picnic and afternoon watching skiers. The others hiked the distance.

New CUPW Leader Keeping Militant Line

Times News Services

HALIFAX — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers today elected Jean-Claude Parrot to lead the union in its long-running battle with the government.

Parrot, who succeeded Joe Davidson as president, said the union will continue on a militant line.

"Our union is not about to give up in the face of an employer that is sparing no effort to demolish our union and to crush us all," Parrot said.

The 268 delegates elected Parrot by acclamation. The convention earlier gave the new executive authority to call a national strike if necessary to press contract demands.

I guess I will become the number one s.o.b.," Parrot the election.
said in an interview before

He has worked closely for the past years with Davidson, who plans to become a postal clerk in downtown Ottawa after nine years as a high profile union leader.

In his final speech to delegates, Davidson told members they must be tough because they are up against the most unscrupulous employer in Canada."

The union will not decide its next move until Parrot and the new executive have met in Ottawa.

Parrot said earlier the executive will not use the strike mandate unless attempts at negotiation fail.

Tired after an all-night policy session, Davidson thanked his fellow union members "for giving me some of the toughest times I have ever had, but also some of the happiest times I have ever had."

They gave him a rousing sendoff. One delegate said, "He done great."

Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday he has no prescription for the ills of the post office but added that if postal troubles continue those worse off will be the postal workers themselves.

He told his weekly news conference that it is obvious that some people in the post office are politicized and are hellbound for strikes."

"They might in the long run destroy their own union," he added.

Trudeau also said he does not always trust the post office and sometimes uses private delivery services.

He used the private companies to get material from Montreal because that way you are sure to get them: by the mails it takes days," he said.

With private enterprise using private delivery systems more and more, he said, the postal workers have to realize that there is a threat to their operations."

"If they cannot guarantee the delivery of the mail, the state has no right to have a monopoly in this area," the prime minister added.

QUE. WANTS OWN MONEY

LONDON (CP) — The Times, in a report from Quebec City, quotes Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau as saying his province will become an independent state with its own currency and central bank.

The newspaper said today that in an interview Parizeau stated that "when the chips are down," the rest of Canada would negotiate a customs union and enter into freight agreements with a separate Quebec.

Police Kill Two Blacks

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Two blacks were shot dead today when simmering unrest broke into widespread violence in Soweto township.

Police said one of the victims, a 19-year-old woman student, was killed after demonstrating students stoned police near a high school in the Orlando district.

Cancer Exposure In Lake Swim

VANCOUVER (CP) — Okanagan health officials said Thursday they fear that people who ignored government warnings and swam in Skaha Lake immediately after application of the herbicide 2,4-D may have been exposed to a cancer-causing agent.

The herbicide was used in the lake last month to combat infestations of eurasian milfoil weed. Hundreds of swimmers used the beaches the next day, despite signs warning of the contaminated water.

Dr. David Clarke, medical officer of health for the south Okanagan health unit, said he is worried about the long term effects of exposure to the herbicide.

"Imagine the outcry if 2,4-D was used in the lower mainland's water supply at Cleveland dam."

Clarke said tests of the water found only negligible amounts of the chemical, but "guards should have been posted around the lake."

Jay Lewis, chairman of the Okanagan Environment Coalition, a group opposed to the use of the herbicide, said in a telephone interview that he saw hundreds of people break down fences around the signs and head into the water.

"We don't question the fact that it takes large doses of the chemical to cause problems, but no-one knows what the long term effects are," Lewis said.

Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said he has no reason to suspect the swimmers are in any danger, although he criticized them for ignoring government warnings.

"People will ignore health warnings on cigarette packages and stop signs on roads," he said. "There is only so much we can do to protect the public."

Nielsen said his department investigated the long term risks in the use of the chemical before its application and he rejected suggestions from Avery King, chairman of the Okanagan union board of health that local health officers had been ignored.

New Car Paint Rusted, Owner Collects Damages

BURNABY (CP) — William Thauberger of Burnaby has been awarded $792.75 damages in small claims court for rust blisters which appeared on the paint work of his 1974 Mazda in what is believed to be the first decision of its kind in British Columbia.

The award was to pay for repainting his station wagon which showed signs of rust blisters within 18 months of its purchase from Simon Fraser Sales Ltd., a Mazda dealership in Burnaby. He had bought the car new.

In an interview, Thauberger said he first attempted to solve the problem by writing the dealer, distributor and Japanese manufacturer but that he was told the 12-month warranty had expired.

"No one would even look at the car," he said.

Thauberger, a marine radio officer, said he was eventually offered a $200 goodwill payment but refused this when he received repainting estimates ranging from $700 to $2,000.

He pinpointed 118 blister spots on the car in his small claims court presentation.

Provincial court Judge E. O'Donnell said in a four-page written decision that "the blistering condition of the paint work is due to the extensive permeability of the paint film of the vehicle . . . due to a defect in manufacture, and not to external factors."

Lunch Boring? Try a Dormouse

HIGH LANE, England (AP) — Tired of the same old thing for dinner? Try a dormouse, at $25 an ounce.

Richard Hunt is selling the 2½-inch-long critters — electrocuted and carefully skinned — as fast as they reach the six-month birthday.

Connoisseurs book orders months in advance for the privilege of paying $51 for one two-ounce dormouse, which Hunt says is most tasty when braised in honey and wine and then lightly fried in butter.

"The point is," said the 29-year-old enterprising breeder, "that although there are a lot of people in this country who are very, very overtaxed and are finding it very hard to get by, even in poor old England there are still a few people who can afford to enjoy the good life now and then, and that includes eating dormice on special occasions."

The dormouse, which resembles a tiny squirrel, was a delicacy enjoyed by the Romans 2,000 years ago. In 1902 Lord Rothschild freed some edible dormice in Hertfordshire and they have been propagating throughout the English countryside ever since.

But the tiny nocturnal creatures, which feed on berries, grasses and nuts, are difficult to catch "and when they're cornered they can get you with their very sharp teeth," Hunt cautioned.

"They also have a ferocious loud growl which tends to put pursuers off. The supply is so scarce we are willing to pay people 30 pounds apiece ($51) if they will bring them to us." Hunt said he makes no profit purveying the dormice.

He discovered the gourmet's delight at a friend's wedding in France in 1971.

PM BUGGED—PAPER

LONDON (Reuter) — A political storm broke about Prime Minister James Callaghan today follwing press allegations that the office of his predecessor, Sir Harold Wilson, was bugged.

Demands by opposition Conservative members for a statement by Callaghan were turned down in the Commons and officials declined to comment to the press.

The Daily Express, a Beaverbrook newspaper, said inquiries had established that during Wilson's eight years in office his official residence at 10 Downing Street was under electronic surveillance on several occasions.

The Daily Express said Sir Harold has stated that he believes certain officials in MI-5, the counter-espionage organization, suspected the existence of a Communist "cell" in his government.

Wilson was prime minister from 1964 until 1970 and again from 1974, until he resigned and handed power over to Callaghan in April 1976.

The newspapaer said Wilson first knew about the bugging a few months before he resigned.

Dollar Regains Some Strength

Times News Services

The U.S. dollar moved smartly ahead against European Continental currencies today, but fluctuation set in after the early gains and there was talk of nervousness in the money markets.

In Zurich, the dollar opened at 2.3988 Swiss francs, moved up to 2.4130, then slipped to 2.4025.

In Paris, the dollar opened at 4.84 French francs, surged to 4.8825 and then eased to 4.620 francs.

In Frankfurt, the opening price was 2.2703 West German marks but was quickly higher at 2.2895 then fell to 2.2795 marks.

Dealers said at first the dollar was helped by its rise in New York Thursday night after the European markets closed. U.S. Treasury Secreatary Michael Blumenthal said Thursday that "a strong dollar is of major importance."

West German dealers said the abrupt change was due to a "very nervous" market, with fairly large amounts of currency being traded.

In London the British pound held its own against the dollar, after closing Thursday at $1.7375.

The recent drop in the value of the Canadian dollar is helping exporters meet foreign competition, and the government is making no move away from a floating exchange rate, Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday in Ottawa.

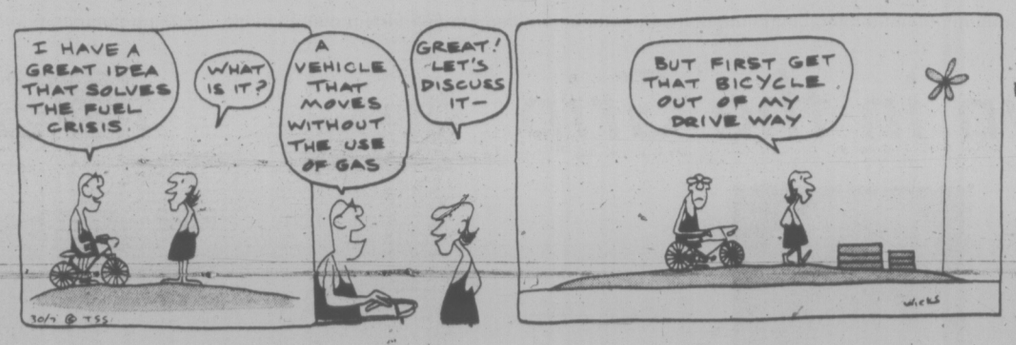

Trudeau told his weekly news conference that he knew of no movement in the government to reconsider the present system and tie the dollar to a specific U.S. value.

The Canadian dollar has dropped to its lowest value in terms of the U.S. dollar in seven years. Last November the dollar was valued at $1.03 U.S. and Thursday it hit a low of 93.69 cents U.S.

Trudeau said that because Canadians now will have to pay more for foreign-produced goods they are forced "a little more to live within their means."

Lifejackets Trapped 7 Victims

Baker said the seven were unable to go on the walk because of their disabilities.

Two staff members, Bruce Ross-Smith, 28, camp waterfront supervisor and Anita Sperrer, 19, of Victoria, an arts and crafts supervisor, accompanied the seven. They helped the campers into their lifejackets and secured the two wheelchairs to the deck. (It was reported in error by the Times Thursday the persons in the wheelchairs were strapped in their seats.)

The other five campers were given an extra lifejacket to use as a cushion for the trip. Everyone was seated on the eight foot by 12 foot wide deck when Ross-Smith, at the wheel, started the boat's 18 horsepower outboard engine and pushed off.

Ross-Smith, in an interview, said there was only a slight ripple on the lake.

He said he'd no sooner left the dock and was making a turn when the left pontoon started to tilt.

He said he expected the pontoon to correct itself as it has always done before and kept on going, making the turn. But the tilt, he said, became a tip and the passengers were shifted to the right side. He and Sperrer moved to the high side but it was too late.

"The tip became a turn, the pontoon went over, and next thing I remember I was in the water," he said.

Ross-Smith and Sperrer were thrown free. Neither wore a lifejacket.

"It was a terrible experience," Ross-Smith said, choking with emotion. "I can't talk about it. I will when I have to but not before."

Spencer refused to comment.

Baker said a witness who saw the boat roll was amazed it happened so quickly.

Four staff members working the shore jumped into the water and tried to rescue the seven trapped under the boat. Baker said Ross-Smith dove under four times and tried to pull one of the campers free but couldn't overcome the pull of the lifejacket which drove the victims against the overturned deck.

"There was no way someone could pull down on someone wearing a preserver," he said. "It's just not possible."

An RCMP spokesman said Ross-Smith and Sperrer did "everything humanly possible to save the passengers."

RCMP reached the camp, which is owned by the Kiwanis Club, about 20 minutes later. The overturned boat was against a breakwater log boom about 50 feet off the beach.

Efforts to right the boat manually failed so it was brought in close to the shore where a tow truck used a cable to right it.

The victims were recovered still on the deck, trapped by the three-foot high mesh railing. They were pronounced dead at the scene and taken to Cowichan District Hospital.

Later in the afternoon a team of RCMP officers arrived from Victoria to examine the boat. A Victoria naval architect, who declined to give his name, was with them.

At one stage two officers and the architect got aboard the boat and leaned on the railing. The boat heeled sharply.

"I thought it was going to tip over," one of the officers said.

Another officer, who also declined to give his name, said that after a cursory examination he found the boat "a little bit unseaworthy" but refused to elaborate.

Ross-Smith said he had always considered the boat seaworthy and didn't think it was overcrowded at the time of the accident. He said he had taken as many passengers before, without problems.

Wade said he boat was designed to carry a maximum of nine people.

Barbara Willett a Lions Club spokesman in Vancouver said the boat was "practically guaranteed not to tip or roll, but it did."

Torture-Death Arrest Made

CALGARY (CP) — A 22-year-old Duncan man was arrested here Thursday and escprted to Duncan to be charged in the January torture-death of Robert Ferguson, 70.

James Riches was arrested by Calgary homicide detectives after RCMP notified them he was living here.

Ferguson was found bound and beaten to death Jan. 30 in his Duncan area home. A retired farmer, Ferguson lived alone on the property.

Woman Honored For Saving 3

OTTAWA (CP) — A woman from Nitinat Camp who rescued three children after they fell through the ice on a nearby lake has been awarded the Star of Courage.

Gail Flynn made her way across the ice of Kissinger Lake to rescue two children, and plunged into the water to pull out a third in March, 1976.

The children, Loretta Ericks, Lawrence Riggs and Lainey Thornton, all aged three, had tried to walk across the ice to a swimming float 50 feet from shore.

Mrs. Flynn was awarded Canada's second highest medal for heroism for the successful rescue, Canada House announced today.

Chris Ann Bishop, 15, of South Hazelton has also been awarded the Star of Courage for rescuing three younger brothers from a fire that destroyed their home Sept. 16, 1976. After being awakened by her mother who could not reach the children's room, she woke three of her brothers and pushed them down the stairs before it was sealed off by flames.

RENTAL AID EXTENDED

The deadline for applications for rental assistance under the human resources department has been extended 15 days to July 31 because of a delay in mailing the applications, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm told the legislature Thursday.

He said the deadline had been extended because of a possible delay.

the weather

Skies remained generally cloudy overnight and shower activity subsided very slowly as a trough of cool unstable air continued its eastward push across the province. A narrow ridge of high pressure is building onto the coast in its wake but will provide significant improvement to only the south coast. The cool air now filling Interior valleys will blossom into convective clouds with a little help from the morning sun while along the north coast low clouds continue to pile up along the coast range. Another frontal system is now planning to be in B.C. for the long weekend and will reach the outer coast later today and move inland tonight. After sprinkling the countryside tonight and Saturday it will move on to Montana making way for a substantial ridge of high pressure.

Crooks Have $3.5M in Coins But How Can They Spend It?

PARIS (AP) — Somewhere today four bandits sit and consider their loot—17 tons of shiny new coins, worth $3.54 million. They may know what they're going to do with the heavy haul, but to others it's a mystery.

"You can't buy a chateau, a car or even a pair of crocodile shoes with bags of change," the newspaper L'Aurore reminds them in an open letter. And even if you go out to celebrate your coup, the owner of the smallest cafe will start to suspect before you drop the 10th coin on the bar.

"Please write to us and tell us how on earth you are going to get rid of it," the newspaper suggests.

The gangsters hijacked a truck carrying the coins as it left the Gare de Lyon railway station here Thursday, headed for the Paris headquarters of the Bank of France. The coins were in a container that had been shipped by rail overnight from a mint in southern France.

Identical to thousands of other containers on the French rail system, it was deliberately left unguarded so it would not attract attention. It metal" and, the bank said, it was labelled "fabricated was insured only for the value of the metal in the coins, not their monetary value, which is higher.

The loot was largely in 10-franc pieces, each worth about $2. They were recently put into circulation to replace notes and have proved unpopular with the public because they are smaller than coins of half the value and are confusing in a pocketful of change.

The driver, Jean Trottin, 51, said he simply rolled his truck into the Gare de Lyon freight yard, the container was loaded onto the rig in 15 minutes, and he drove out, unarmed and alone.

The hijackers, who officials said must have been following a carefully devised plan based on inside information, got an unexpected break when another truck stalled in front of Trottin's rig.

The gang grabbed the two drivers as they talked, drove off with them and the truck and released them 30 minutes later. Meanwhile, one of the bandits disappeared with the truck into the traffic of Paris.

"They didn't hit me or molest me," said the coin truck driver, Jean Trottin, 51. They were relaxed, whistling in the car as they drove out to the outskirts of town. They seemed to know exactly where they were going."

A special anti-gangster brigade today led police in a search of the greater Paris area, looking for a hideout big enough to hold the container while it was unloaded.

Police said the driver of the stalled truck was not guilty of any complicity.

One official said a small number of people would have known of the shipment, which bank sources said was an unusual way to transport coins. This heightened police suspicions that an insider conspired with the thieves.

Trottin said the four gangsters were in their 30s, two dark-haired and two blonde.

Comments L'Aurore: "Their punishment is included in their success.

"They will have to spend their loot franc by franc. They can buy millions of bottles of soft drink. But what else?"

CANADA BANS TRIS-TREATED CLOTHING

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal consumer and corporate affairs department Thursday announced a ban on the sale, advertisement or importation of wearing apparel treated with the fire-retardent chemical known as Tris.

The department said the chemical, commonly found in children's nightwear manufactured in the U.S., has been found to be a potential cancer-causing agent.

The chemical can be ingested through sucking on the garment or can be absorbed through the skin.

Only a few garments manufactured in Canada contained the chemical. Pyjamas and robes manufactured in the U.S. from acetate, triacetate or polyester and blends containing high percentages of these fibres have been treated with the chemical, the department said.

Parents are advised to wash these garments several times or discard them, the department said.

PQ Language Plan 'Dead End'—Trudeau

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Quebec Premier Rene Levesque knows his language law proposals are a "dead end" and he is trying to back out, according to Prime Minister Trudeau.

The prime minister told a news conference yesterday that Levesque's bid to negotiate minority language rights with the other provinces "proves he too realizes he is dead wrong."

"He is in the embarrassing position of realizing that some of his ministers have pushed him too far and he is seeking a way out," he added.

The Party Quebecois had traditionally spurned French-speaking minorities outside Quebec, Trudeau said, but now other provinces and many people in Quebec were saying this was not right.

"So Levesque is trying to get out of a dead end by saying he will recognize English minority rights in education if the other provinces do the same for their francophone minorities," he said.

Quebec's language law proposals (Bill 101) would maintain English-language school rights for people in the province but would restrict them for newcomers.

Trudeau has said the provinces should reject Quebec's bid because minority rights were not an item to bargain with.

Although Ontario and New Brunswick have rejected Levesque's overtures, the matter is to be discussed at next month's provincial premiers' conference which the Quebec premier will attend after all. He previously said he could not make it.

New Brunswick Premier Richard Hatfield said in Quebec Thursday after meeting with Levesque that as chairman of the Aug. 18-20 meeting he agreed to put the proposal on the agenda although he rejected the notion on principle.

Trudeau has already publically urged the premiers to debate federal proposals for protecting minority language rights at their meeting.

It was likely that he would convene a federal-provincial conference sometime after the premier's meeting to discuss the issue — no matter what the provinces agreed to do or not to do.

The federal position outlined in a recent white paper is that all provinces should take legislative steps to protect the language rights of minorities in education and other fields.

If they had difficulty with that, Ottawa would be willing to take over minority education if the provinces turned over the constitutional power to do so.

Either way, Trudeau said Thursday, any such steps should at one point be enshrined in the constitution.

A lot would depend on what the premiers decide at their meeting, but he said it did not preclude Ottawa taking some kind of initiative prior to any federal-provincial conference.

Ethiopia Deserts Southern Towns

Times News Services

Somali-backed insurgents, carrying their independence war deeper into Ethiopia, say they have taken about 100 towns and villages.

The Western Somali Liberation Front (WSLF) reported from the Somali capital of Mogadishu that Ethiopian troops have been cleared from the "liberated" areas in the last two months. The towns they named are in the provinces of Harar, Bale and Sidamo which stretch across almost the whole of southern Ethiopia.

The report, carried by the official Somali national news agency Sonna,, said more than 5,250 Ethiopian soldiers have been killed, 23 planes shot down and 32 tanks destroyed.

The Somalian ambassador in Rome said Thursday his country became involved in the fighting for the first time last Tuesday when its forces shot down three Ethiopian jet fighters and a transport plane carrying paratroops.

But Ethiopia, in a statement broadcast on Addis Ababa Radio, said the Somali claim was baseless.

The WSLF report said hundreds of Ethiopian soldiers have surrendered and a large number have been captured including "high-ranking officials."

The plan to detach Somalia from the Soviet sphere of influence, by providing arms, credits and backup diplomatic support, is much wider than indicated by the brief statements in Washington and London which promises to supply weapons for defense.

It now appears that Britain and the United States are only two in a list of eight governments involved.

Three other NATO powers — France, Italy and West Germany -- have been involved in the confidential talks that date back to the middle of last April, although there has been no indication so far that they are prepared to sell arms to Somalia.

Air Canada Remodelled

In a bill recently introduced in parliament with little fanfare, Air Canada is being entirely restructured and granted substantial new powers. Many of the changes are long overdue. For example, the airline will become an independent Crown corporation in its own right instead of a subsidiary of Canadian National Railways, which it has technically been for the past 40 years.

Also, Air Canada will be forced to compete equally with other airlines for domestic routes and will have its finances reorganized along the lines of most other air companies. All these are excellent moves on the government's part.

But several other sections of the bill spark considerably more concern. The first of these is one which states that Air Canada is to operate at a profit. Unfortunately, the size of the profit is not spelled out; Air Canada thinks perhaps the Canadian Transport Commission (CTC) will suggest what a "reasonable profit" would be. In the meantime, Air Canada president Claude Taylor is going around talking about the corporation paying "dividends" to the government — the sole shareholder.

Clearly, Air Canada should not operate at a loss. If it did so on a continuing basis, that would mean that the ordinary Canadian taxpayer would be subsidizing the airline traveller, which seems neither fair nor reasonable.

On the other hand, should the airline traveller subsidize the ordinary taxpayer? That is what would happen if Air Canada suddenly started making significant profits and paying dividends to the government. Since Air Canada is supposed to be a provider of a national service, that seems no more fair or reasonable than the reverse. The legislation should be amended to spell out the size of profit Air Canada can make, and that size should be small indeed. It should be required that any profits above that figure be used to cut fares or improve service on the airline.

Of even greater concern is a clause in the bill that will allow Air Canada to expand its operations into "activities related to air transport," such as travel tours, hotels, catering, and ground transportation including trucking.

What on earth is the government doing getting into the travel agency, hotel and trucking businesses, even indirectly? There is no apparent good reason for it, no apparent benefit to the Canadian public, and all those fields seem to be taken care of quite well now by private companies. It is not the business of the government to start running ordinary profitable industries in competition with private enterprise.

Also, without being rude to Air Canada, it should perhaps learn how to run an airline better before it tries to run anything else. Taylor says no expansion plans will be made until Air Canada is turning a profit, but the airline needs to learn more than better business practices. It needs also to learn far better people practices (like how to serve meals that don't taste like fried cardboard, and how to solve overbooking problems, and how to treat its passengers so they don't feel like herds of cattle being shipped onto jumbo jets) before it goes into any people-businesses like travel tours or hotels.

This clause of the bill doesn't need to be changed. It needs to be thrown out.

The Bicycle Express

The post office, Canada's favorite national whipping-boy, recently took up a challenge from a group of Manitobans to race against a "Pony Express" team of horses and riders to see who could get the mail from one small Manitoba town to another in the shortest time.

Probably to the amazement of most Canadians, post office won the race. It delivered the mail (actually a weekly newspaper since the Manitoba Weekly Newspaper Association was the sponsor of the affair) to its destination some 4½ hours before the Pony Express riders had completed the trip.

Three cheers for the much maligned post office? Not really. There was just a slight catch in the matter. The winning post office team did not consist of its regular mail truck service. Rather it consisted of a team of bicycle racers the post office had agreed to sponsor to take on the horses and riders.

The regular mail truck service came in a bad third in the race, another 4½ hours behind the horses.

Now all is clear. It is just as the postal unions have always said — the problem with the post office is mechanization. To improve the service, don't just give up on those automated shorting machines. Give up also on buses, trucks and airplanes. Use bicycles instead.

As a side benefit, imagine the training that would be provided for Canada's Olympic cycling teams. And by the Manitoba experience, it might even improve the mail service.

". . . pilot to mountain, pilot to mountain . . . you are on a collision course, suggest you change direction . . ."

BRUCE HUTCHISON

A Time to Slow Down

The economists of government and private business, who rarely agree about anything, seem to be unanimous in their latest view that the Canadian standard of living, so called, will not rise as fast as they had previously assumed. The barometer is falling. This sudden discovery makes headlines but it will not astonish the non-economists. In their ignorance, included by expertise, they had suspected the obvious truth long ago.

For some three decades Canada was like a man driving his car at 80 miles per hour. When the economic vehicle slows down to the legal limit of 50 it appears to crawling at a snail's pace. In fact, the present annual growth rate of there to four per cent is rapid by historic measurement.

Energy Costly

Before the technological breakthrough of the 20th century such a rate would have been considered high; but it is not high enough now to satisfy our demands, to employ all our people or to meet the needs of the poor minority.

Even if we manage to solve the problem of unemployment without ruinous inflation — a triumph not yet in sight — we cannot expect the living standard to rise as it rose during the lush, and in many respects artificial, postwar boom. For several reasons that breakneck speed must be reduced during the next decade at least.

The days of cheap energy are past and we shall be lucky to escape a disastrous shortage until science invents substitutes for depleted fossil fuels. Meanwhile the international exchange system, which supports the entire world economy, is strained close to breaking point by an OPEC cartel drunk on oil and drowning in dollars. Also, the desperate Third World wants a larger share of the total pie and, with an exploding population, will need it to avoid worse poverty and consequences, including wars, highly unpleasant to the rich.

All things considered, we shall have to accept a slower growth rate, in Canada and elsewhere, because it is physically and economically inevitable, no matter what the politicians tell us. And the rate will be unnecessarily slow, the living standard may actually decline, if we keep raising our production costs and losing our markets.

Only a few politicians have told us the truth, so far, if they know it themselves. When Prime Minister Trudeau, emerging at last from his own fallacies, starts to tell it, rather gingerly, he is denounced by his critics as if he had uttered blasphemy. Then his frightened cabinet hastens to declare, in a misty white paper, that everything will be all right, once we settle down to normal. But what is normality at a time of worldwide revolution, peaceful or violent?

If normality means a return to the good old days it is an illusion and a chimera. In the life of men and nations, you can't go home again. As Thomas Carlyle remarked, on hearing that his lady friend had finally reconciled herself to the scheme of the universe: "By God, she'd better." So must everybody.

For Canada the scheme of the universe is much less alarming, much more promising, than for the majority of nations. The economists' revised charts look grim only because we have lost our sense of proportion. Given sensible management, our real prospects, as distinguished from the false expectations of recent times, are comparatively excellent and most of mankind envies them.

Under these circumstances the intellectually honest politicians face a peculiarly difficult task. How can they persuade the nation to lower its sights just a little, far short of anything like sacrifice, when it is still highly prosperous, fat as butter, except for the helpless minority of the weak, the old and the poor?

Political Problem

How can such a nation be convinced that it is living beyond its means on huge loans from foreigners, that its exchange deficit ($4 billion plus this year), its deficit on tourist travel alone of $2 billion or more, will soon become insupportable? When shall we abandon our fantasies and reconcile ourselves, like Carlyle's lady friend, to the scheme of the universe, to our actual resources, to a world that doesn't owe us a living standard higher than its own?

Concerning these questions the economists' new charts, as dubious as the old, don't tell us much since our problem is not economic at bottom, to be neatly reckoned in figures. It is psychological, moral and therefore political, politics being, after all, only human nature roughly organized.

What we are testing today — beyond the range of parties, personalities and slogans — is our own nature. What must decide the future, even the survival, of Canada is not the policy of governments or the results of elections but the quality of a people who built a great nation and can make it still greater if they put their mind to the true facts of their life.

Death Penalty

More and more American states are bringing back capital punishment. Why don't we get a similar option for our provinces?

Polls have shown that 80 per cent of us favor the return of capital punishment. We should have the choice to decide whether we want the legal protection of a comprehensive death penalty law, or whether we acept the present ominous alternative of vigilante justice as we see the crime wave at our very doors. The gun law has created an ugly mood conducive to mob revenge.

Open Space

Defensive Driving

Re: the increase in traffic accidents in Victoria. Although stricter law enforcement would certainly reduce the accident rate in Victoria, driver education as well must play a large part in cutting down on the numbers of people injured and killed.

We can protect ourselves and prevent many accidents by mastering the techniques discussed i nthe defensive driving courses. This Canada Safety Council-approved course is taught in four two-hour sessions by Camosun College and the Capital Region Safety Council. How to handle intersection situations, how to avoid rear-end and head-on collisions and how to avoid the mystery crash are among the topics on the program. Films are used to illustrate situations and student participation brings out many personal experiences which help in showing up driving faults.

Statistics have proven that graduates of the program have 25 per cent fewer accidents and traffic violations, so consequently their automobile operating costs are cut considerably.

Information on this course can be obtained by contacting the Capital Region Safety Council at 478-9584.—Sam McClaave, Capital Region Safety Council.

Like the Princess Marguerite, cluster lights are a symbol of city.

Cluster Lights

It's hard to heap ridicule on an idea that hardly deserves thinking, let alone publishing. The proposal to turn off the cluster lights is in this category.

Sure it would save money, but so would cementing over Beacon Hill Park, or cutting down on garbage pickups, or packing in the police force except for parades.

If the Victoria city lights department could only learn from what is being done in say Portland or San Francisco with their old light standards, perhaps our expensively overlit streets would be more hospitable. Gastown, in Vancouver, has already solved the streetlight problem simply by changing the inside of the old fixture and upping its brightness.

If the city had done this on the Government Street mall we wouldn't have had to pay for two sets of wiring, one for the cluster lamps, the other for the sodium or mercury vapour lamps. We also paid for the labor involved in setting up these systems, and for the grotesquely large vapor fixtures themselves. In fact, this is the case throughout the downtown area where there is constant conflict between the styles of fixtures, size, light quality and their number.

Victoria is almost petty in its attitude towards its cluster lamps. For instance city hall did not want Seattle to have a couple for its Marguerite wharf. At the same time, it refuses to re-cast and use them on secondary streets like Langley or Courtney, instead preferring, again, oversized pseudo-reproduction sodium vapors, straight out of a catalogue.

The policy of the city of Victoria has driven the cluster lamp into obsolescence by lavishly following the trends in modern street lighting, and using public safety and cost-cutting to do it. To turn them off would be a bureaucratic success and a vindication of their uselessness.

A radical approach would be the recycling of the cluster lamps into functioning street lights a la Gastown, and the removal of the mercury-sodium vapor variety and their unfriendly, anti-human size and brightness. — Tom Palfrey, 941 Meares Street.

Vacant Lots

Now that there is a small percentage of vacant apartments, condominiums and townhouses, which are no longer selling like hotcakes, there may be reason to believe that some developers are beginning to feel the pinch. Having torn down some sound houses and near-heritage buildings with indecent haste, they now offer lots on sale at bargain prices of $300,000 plus. However, no one appears to be in a great hurry to adopt someone else's inflated mistakes and we have the prospect of being reminded of this folly for some time.

Neither the developer nor the demolition firm seems to care that the vacant lots resemble an atom-bombed rockpile, but we are informed by the city authorities that they are powerless to make them clean up their act. Some are holes in the ground which fill up with water, others are mere piles of rubble, but they all are a hazard to children, a potential breeding place for vermin and above all an environmental blight on the neighborhood. Surely vacant lots should be required to smile too.—M. S. Bruce, Vice-President, Fairfield Community Association, 1126 Oxford Street.

Choose Life

A recent letter which appeared in your July 11 issue entitled Birth Control caught my eye.

First of all, I am more than a little skeptical of the sincerity of some one who airs their views and then asks that their name be withheld.

I see that the writer still clinge to the old pro-abortion myth of those who say "it's my body." I don't understand how anyone could possibly believe such a lie, when even the elementary school text books on biology teach that life begins at conception. Is the writer not awarea of the fact that the heart of the unborn child begins o beat between 18 and 25 days of conception, and that all body systems function at 11 weeks? "Your body" — nonsense!

I also notice that in order to appease her conscience she refers to the unborn child as a unborn unconscious fetus. I would like to note the following excerpt resulting from the first international conference on abor the first international converence on abortion held in Washington on October, 1967, with emphasis on when does life begin:

"The changes occurring between implantation, a six-week embryo, a six-month fetus, a one-week-old child, or a mature adult are merely stages of development and maturation."

Dear writer, if I decided to condone abortion I would be forced to deny the existence of God, for I am not naive enough to believe that I could help destroy creation and still claim the Creator.

The so-called new morality is a sinister joke, it is merely a return of the old immorality. It's not the first time in history that the masses have fallen in love with their reproductive organs.

After reading the contents of your letter I am convinced the sex education you advocate would put us in the same classification as dogs. I happen to believe we are meant to rise above the animals. I also believe in what I write and gladly sign my name. Please choose life. — Joe Richard, 450 Woods Avenue, Courtenay.

Human Nature

"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." As socialist and communist parties in Europe have attained power, they have made the sad discovery that they do not have all the answers. There is now open if rueful admission in many socialist circles that capitalism was not responsible for all the ills that beset mankind. Where capitalism has been abolished or neutralized, they have found that many problems still remain.

Unfortunately, the operation of economics is dictated by the nature of human beings, indeed economic laws and people are synonymous. Given selfish, greedy man it is not surprfsing that there are great difficulties in attaining balance and social justice in the world today. It seems increasingly evident to me that there must be a rapprochement between capitalists and socialists if the world's problems of production and distribution are to be solved.

The increasing recognition among Europe's socialists that capitalism has some points is perhaps the first faint dawning of reason and of a reasonable world where the nature of man is faced and pragmatic solutions, unhindered by isms may be found. The intellectual barriers are coming down in the face of the dire necessities of our times. Capitalism and socialism will surely hang separately if they do not examine the merits of each ideology and find a plateau of agreement rather than continue a fruitless slugging match. — M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra.

Hotel Costs

May I comment on two letters to the Times about hotel-motel accommodation in Great Britain. Stuart Simpson (July 15) was correct in stating that one could get a room in a good hotel for £11 in 1976.

However, that is not true in 1977 as hotel rates have increased 50 per cent or more since last year. One hotel charged us £11 last year and £18 this year.

We found that while £11 a night was common last year in a good hotel, the cheapest hotel this year was £15.

K. Grandmaison stated in his letter of July 22 that even the best hotels do not provide television, a statement I found rather ridiculous.

During our visits of last year and this year we stayed in hotels and motels in Gravesend, Glasgow, Oxford, Blackheath, Reigate, Epsom and a few others and only at Blackheath there was no television. All of the others had color TV in the rooms.

If one compares the quality of accommodations, the prices in England and Canada are much the same.

A luxurious motel near Gravesend and one at Reigate which were as good as anything we ever found in Canada was £18 a night (about $32).

For luxurious accommodation in Canada one pays as much or more. — Edward M. Doyle, 506-1235 Johnson Street.

No Champagne

Referring to July 21 news item, it would seem that Art Young and Charles Perkins keep getting wrong impressions about the Helmcken Road and Victoria General Hospitals and what the public and medical profession want: it is a complete hospital on both sides, ultimately. It should be quite obvious that both will be required in a few years and by the time that Helmcken can be built. We are all fully aware of the dollar shortage and realize that this must be done in stages, but not at the expense of an already fully integrated, well-run and necessary facility (which operates in the black) in the heart of the city, where it is most needed.

Does moral obligation no longer mean anything, referring to the terms on which the General was donated to the city by the Sisters of St. Ann, together with the very valuable academy site for future expansion of the hospital?

These facilities can never again be secured, or duplicated, in the city under such generous and ideal terms.

What if the hospital buildings are not the most upto-date and efficient by today's standards? That does not mean, most importantly that the patients are not getting the best of service and attention, as any patient would certify (and I should like to hear more support from ex-patients).

What is more appropriate than that Helmcken Road Hospital be made, in its first stage, the extended care facility expansion needed, if the General is not to be presently expanded on the academy site, for which there will be a call ultimately, certainly.

This fracturing of the service at the General can in no way be justified as being more efficient, or less costly, in the long run and to say that the Jubilee can take up the slack is ludicrous and wishful thinking.

We need all present medical facilities, and more, but cannot afford champagne on a beer income, so should be thinking a bit more realistically as to how to spend what money we have for the purpose. — C. D. E. Barker, 1565 Wilmot Place.

Playing God With the Bomb

By JAMES CAMERON
Manchester Guardian

Let us reverse John Osborne's phrase, and Look Forward In Anger. If anything were needed to establish that in big-power affairs Things are more important than people it is President Carter's plan to go ahead with the neutron bomb. It is in its way even worse than President Truman's sanction of the Japanese A-bombs, since Harry Truman could at least plead ignorance of a technology he did not begin to understand and had no clue of the diabolism that was in store.

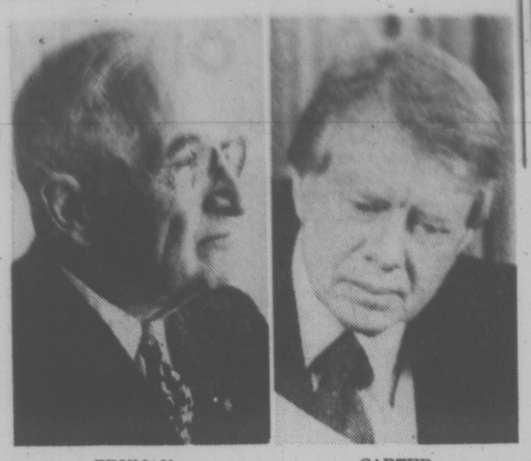

As everyone knows by now, or I hope knows by now, the neutron bomb is a benign development of atomic warfare, in that it kills people but does not necessarily damage material things. That is to say, you drop it on somewhere and its nuclear radiation causes death, either sudden or slow, but not destruction. It goes off in the air, and does not blow valuable real estate to bits, as the old H-bomb did, or indeed as the primitive high-explosives did, in the dear dead days of London and Coventry and Berlin and Hamburg; all it does is destroy human life that made these things, and who in big-power terms is especially interested in life? Life is replaceable, at least until it reaches the stop of self-creation; property on the other hand costs money.

I think this is the most horrible concept of confrontation-politics I ever heard of, and I have a feeling that in my small way it outrages me more than did the old innocent days of E equals MC squared, the formula of the basic A-bomb, and this is saying something, since I believe I am the only bloke around here who was obliged to watch three of the damned things off.

It took the lovable President Jimmy Carter only six months of authority to show his hand and make clear what he meant by the brotherhood of man. One can understand his dilemma, the pressures of his Pentagon, his evident temptations. A bomb that kills only people and does not destroy the valuable environment in which they live: what could be more convenient in the long view, either from West or East?

If in the last war we had been able to neutronise all life in the German industrial region while leaving the Krupp establishments intact how much better off would we be today; it would not have been necessary to rebuild German industry from scratch and thereby give it a head start on everyone else. Had the Russians been able to move into an intact Poland peopled with corpses how much easier would that have been. In military terms the neutron bomb takes us back to the age of the crossbow, without the need for bowmen. It is unequivocally the most disgusting of considerations, and for scientific simpletons like me it is a matter of wonder that decent men have been working on its development for so long.

I never thought to find myself wholly on the side of Mr. Reginald Maudling, Conservative MP for Barnet and a man not given to express extreme emotions one way or another. He has now said, only the other day: "Is not the very concept of a weapon designed to destroy all that has life and nothing

CARTER

that has not the ultimate insult that man can offer to the human race? Or to God?"

Totally true. Although I have never quite understood how Christians can bring God into any agrument about military technique, since I have never really appreciated how getting a shrapnel through your skull is any more theologically acceptable than being killed through leukaemia by an "enhanced radiation weapon"; nevertheless I can accept his quandary.

Killing strangers with an armalite bullet at least implies a personal relationship: you tried to do it. Requiring them to die of liver decay some time later is a much more disagreeable consideration, especially if you have done it from 15,000 feet without any idea whom they were. This is not insulting God, as Mr. Maulding says, it is playing God. Perhaps only an ostentatiously God-loving man like President Carter would have the nerve to take on that responsibility.

I am obliged to quote (as I too often do) from our esteemed and respected contemporary the Times newspaper, just because one would not have expected from a generally compassionate part of the Establishment such sad cynicisms as: "NATO's tactical position has been in need of modernization for some time anyway — so why not modernize it with these less destructive, if highly lethal, refinements? . . . It does after all represent not only an example of American technological advantage, but a demonstration of presidential will."

I really seriously, respectfully, and honestly, ask what that means. If it means what it seems to me to mean, that American technological skill can destroy life while leaving intact its material possessions, and that this is a tactical advantage, then for once in my life I am wholly on Mr. Maudling's side.

Let us therefore arm ourselves with something that will destroy all the workers in munitions-factories in Russia, or Guatemala, or anywhere of which we disapprove, but keep the capital investment okay, in case we need them later.

I am, or course, indulging one of my well-known obsessions. But so it seems are the others. And of course they will win, in the end. They always do.

Fertile Climate for Quackery Spawns Laetrile Business

By RICHARD D. LYONS
New York Times

The tide of support for legalizing laetrile, the alleged anti-cancer compound derived from apricot pits, appears to have crested.

Eleven states with a total population of 37 million have enacted laws permitting intrastate production and distribution of the substance which is banned by the federal government, and several more probably will. But the pace of passage has slackened dramatically from the one-a-week-rate earlier in the year.

With the exception of Texas, which has a long history of tolerance for unusual nostrums and weird cures, the states permitting the drug are small ones; the campaign for enactment has stalled in California, Illionois, Michigan, Pennsylvania and in New York where Gov. Hugh Carey has said that he would veto any such bill because it smacks of cancer quackery.

Lost Chance

After the victories in the small states, the three American leaders of the laetrile movement lost a chance for national support last week when they took their travelling campaign from the country's radio and television stations to Capitol Hill and failed to convince members of a Senate sub-committee that there was any merit in the substance.

Under detailed questioning from the sub-committee members, the three could not agree on the chemical composition of laetrile. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D — Mass.); Sen. Richard S. Schweiker (R — Penn.), and Sen. John H. Chafee (R — R.I.), treated the pro-laetrile, witnesses with a blend of amusement and contempt when the witnesses asserted that an international conspiracy was preventing the cure of cancer.

Dr. John A. Richardson, the best-known U.S. physician advocating the use of laetrile, said that the plot had been fomented by the major oil and drug companies and the nation's chief federal and private scientific groups. He also hinted that the Rockefeller family and its friends were involved.

His testimony was similar to statements that the John Birch Society has issued in support of laetrile. Richardson is a member of the society.

On the House side of the Capitol, a bill that would have the effect of removing the federal ban on laetrile has been pigeonholed by the commerce committee's health subcommittee. Despite the co-sponsorship of almost 100 representatives, committee aides said that the bill would never reach the House floor.

Dr. Donald Kennedy, the new head of the FDA, has reaffirmed his agency's hard line against laetrile. Agents have raided laetrile factories in four states. The Mexican government, which has sanctioned the use of laetrile, has shut one of the two main production facilities in Tijuana, charging that the plant was unsanitary.

Meanwhile, yet another test by the Battelle Laboratories in Columbus, Ohio, has found laetrile to be worthless for the treatment of anything, as have several dozen other tests dating back more than 20 years.

Officials of the National Cancer Institute, who have said that they would put laetrile to clinical trials, now contend that the test is almost impossible because of the inexact nature of the substance and the ethical question posed by administering a compound they acknowledge to be useless to persons suffering from cancer.

Testimony in various court cases and before the Senate sub-committee has shown that the promoters of laetrile have made millions of dollars from sales of the substance. The promoters were called "slick salesmen" by Senator Kennedy and "swindlers" by Dr. Kennedy.

An earlier "cancer cure" Krebiozen, lost its popularity after five years and a series of well-publicized trials at which it was disclosed that some promoters of the substance had deposited millions of dollars in foreign banks.

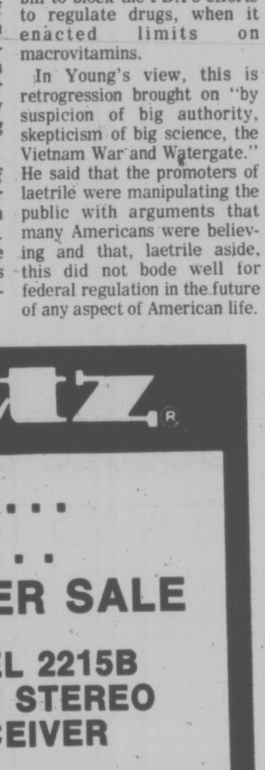

Public Impatient

The appeal of laetrile is expected to linger for several reasons: 400,000 Americans a year develop cancer and the number is increasing; the distressing emotional overtones that cancer brings to its victims and their families, and the high cost of medical care. All contribute to a search by an impatient public for a relatively cheap way to cure cancer.

These and other reasons were cited by Dr. James Harvey Young, a professor of history at Emory University in Atlanta, who has written extensively on cancer quackery, in asserting that "the climate for quackery is more fertile today than it has been in a long time."

He said that the promoters of laetrile had "much better organizational talents" than their predecessors had. However, he said that the prime reason that laetrile was popular was the increasing distrust of government.

In the United States, he said, there is an undercurrent of medical quackery more deeply imbedded than in any other advanced nation in the world. The United States in 1906 was the last industrialized nation to pass a federal law protecting foods and drugs. And even now, the very concept that the federal government should continue to be responsible for the health of its citizens is being seriously challenged. Two years ago, Congress passed a bill to block the FDA's efforts to regulate drugs, when it enacted limits on macrovitamins.

KENNEDY
. . . contempt

In Young's view, this is retrogression brought on "by suspicion of big authority, skepticism of big science, the Vietnam War and Watergate." He said that the promoters of laetrile were manipulating the public with arguments that many Americans were believing and that, laetrile aside, this did not bode well for federal regulation in the future of any aspect of American life.

'No Defence Against Neutron Radiation'

By MARK FRANKLAND and NIGEL HAWKES
London Observer

The neutron bomb, which has suddenly become the centre of furious controversy in the United States, is one of a family of new tactical nuclear weapons for use in Europe.

The new weapons are designed to play a variety of different tunes with the four basic characteristics of a nuclear explosion: blast, fire, nuclear fallout, and the production of a wave of neutron particles.

The neutron bomb enhances the last of these characteristics, creating a particularly intense wave of neutron radiation which kills people but does comparatively little damage to property. Because of this gruesome characteristic it has so far achieved the greatest prominence.

But also under development are weapons designed to do the exact opposite — to enhance the effect of blast while reducing that of neutron radiation. Such weapons would be useful against small heavily-protected targets on the battlefield.

Yet a third type of weapon is designed to produce large quantities of short-lived nuclear fallout, which could be used to deny the enemy access to large areas of territory without contaminating them permanently.

The neutron warheads are designed to fit eight-inch and 155-millimetre shells, as well as the Lance surface-to-surface missiles. The present nuclear warheads in use in these weapons produce an explosion equivalent to about 1,000 tons of TNT. The new shells would produce the same amount of neutron radiation, but only one-tenth of the blast.

This would limit blast and fire damage to a range of a few hundred yards, but doses of as much as 8,000 rads of neutron radiation would reach out for half a mile. At three-quarters of a mile the dose would be down to 650 rads. A U.S. Army Field Manual published last summer gives an idea of the likely effects:

"The immediate incapacitation radiation level is 8,000 to 18,000 rads, but an active soldier exposed to 3,000 rads could become incapacitated within three to five minutes. He may recover to some degree in about 45 minutes, but due to vomiting, diarrhoea, and other radiation sickness symptoms, he would be only partially effective until he died within a week. "A soldier exposed to 650 rads initially shows no symptoms, but loses some of his effectiveness in about two hours, and can be expected to die in a few weeks under battlefield conditions. Exposure in the 100 rad region usually has little effect. Accordiggly, in conventional nuclear combat it would be prudent to subject frontline enemy troops to 3,000-8,000 rads or more, enemy to the rear to 650-3,000 rads, and avoid subjecting friendly forces and civilians to an unacceptable dose level (100 or more rads.)"

Technically, the way in which the neutron warheads work is to concentrate on achieving a high fusion yeld (the H-bomb reaction) with a low fission yield (the A-bomb reaction). Fusion cannot be achieved yet entirely on its own, since fission is needed to trigger it off, but by juggling with the balance of the two reactions it is possible to produce a low-blast bomb with a high neutron yield.

Foxholes or tanks offer little protection against the neutron wave. Since neutrons have no electrical charge, they can pass straight through many materials without difficulty.

The present defence used by Soviet tanks against nuclear weapons consists of armour plating, to resist blast, and the maintenance of an internal air pressure slightly higher than atmospheric pressure, so that air flows out of the tank and cannot flow in carrying nuclear fallout with it.

But neither of these defences would be proof against the neutron bomb. According to the authoritative Congressional Quarterly, nuclear blast studies have shown that "the lethal radius of any given amount of neutron radiation against troops in tanks or in foxholes was only 20 to 30 per cent less than the effective radius against troops out in the open."

Quite apart from the moral dilemmas posed by neutron warheads, some American critics doubt that they would be as clean or as effective as claimed.

One danger raised by Senator Mark Hatfield of Oregon is that the neutron wave might convert carbon in the air into radio-active carbon-14, clouds of which could be carried around the world. Since carbon-14 has a half-life of 6,000 years, this would mean that the neutron warheads would in practice be just as "dirty" as any other nuclear weapon.

The Unfairness of It All

russell baker

Just before the lights went out in New York the other evening President Carter gave us a disquisition on the innate unfairness of capitalism. The moneyed classes, he said, enjoyed many luxuries unavailable to others, but this did not oblige the government to provide matching luxury service to the impecunious.

He was explaining why he opposed Medicare abortions for the poor, his point being that abortion was a luxurious form of birth control. Like Scottish salmon and summer houses on Long Island, he seemed to be saying, abortion might be one of the rights accruing to money, but the government had no obligation to pay for it. It was one of those unfairnesses that are an unfortunate byproduct of the system.

After this chilly exposition of the obvious, one wondered whether the poor folks would take their rotten luck like good sports. The answer came within a few hours when New York went dark and thousands of them started looting.

This is not to suggest that they needed Carter's lecture to learn that they had been living on the unfair side of the tracks, or even to persuade them that the government was willing to let them grow old there. Very few probably even heeded the President's statement, if indeed they heard it.

Most of them probably did not even think in terms of fairness and unfairness, philosophical ideas that require a certain elegance of mind not usually found in the looting personality. The point is that while it is very sturdy of comfortable men to point out that life is unfair, the people it is unfair to are not apt to be morally or philosophically elevated by the announcement.

If you are going to preach that unfairness is inescapable for some, good sense suggests that you also accept the inevitability of beastly behavior by people who have to carry the burden. Unless you are a Dickens heroine, it becomes insufferable after awhile constantly having all the unfairness left on your doorstep while as Mayfair swells are eating Scottish salmon, weekending in the Hamptons and enjoying exclusive membership in the Abortion Club.

You may not take to the streets with torch and shotgun, but you are likely to find your eyes going glassy when the professor, or the President, talks about social obligations. If the lights go out on a steamy summer night — well, life is unfair, isn't it? And how often does it provide a chance for a romp?

The trick in politics and government is to keep the lip buttoned about the unfairness of life while harping on the blessings that will soon descend equally upon all, thanks to the zeal and ingenuity of the governing class. Our recent governments have decided against extending too much hope to life's losers, but until President Carter no one has deliberately rubbed their wretched noses in the inescapability of unfairness.

Under Presidents Nixon and Ford, economic policy required millions of them to remain unemployed as a defence against inflation. A floundering educational system helped train them for future uselessness, except as anti-inflation tools. Bankruptive welfare systems turned the malice of the taxpaying class upon them, and in Congress this was transmuted into a punitive hostility toward the cities, like New York, where they were herded away en masse but happily out of sight.

It was all very unfair, but as everybody knew — the economists and the Congress and Presidents Nixon and Ford and the working class that was having trouble getting together beer money, what with all the taxes and having to feed the colleges to keep their children upwardly mobile — life was unfair, terribly unfair, and it didn't do any good to make promises you couldn't keep, even if you wanted to.

And, of course, life is unfair. There is no getting around it. It was unfair of those looters to behave as they did when the lights went out. Unfair to the merchants they destroyed. Unfair to New York City. Unfair to call attention to the grisly fact of what is out there behind the unemployment figures, the daily crime statistics, the welfare budget figures, the high school illiteracy scores, the illegitimate-birth statistics.

"Animals" and "scum" they were called by New Yorkers shocked by the unfairness of it all. Perhaps they are, although many of them seemed to be just children. In any case, they behaved badly. If you believe in President Carter's unfairness doctrine, you could hardly have expected much else.

Robin Hood Talks Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Management of Robin Hood Multifoods Ltd. of Montreal agreed Thursday to return to the bargaining table to try to bring an end to a bitter, five-month long strike marked by the shooting of eight strikers last week.

The agreement followed a meeting that lasted more than two hours between federal Labor Minister John Munro and Logan Brown, president of the company's Montreal mill.

The company had refused to negotiate with the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) since early spring. The strike of about 130 workers at the mill began in February after the anti-inflation board rolled back a negotiated wage increase.

Following the meeting, Munro's officials told reporters the minister assured the company that he would not endorse a national boycott of Robin Hood products.

Munro also told reporters he did not use the meeting as a platform to discuss Robin Hood's use of armed guards to protect the plant.

A discussion of some of the bitterness that has surrounded the strike is not conductive to getting the parties back to the bargaining table, Munro said.

He and his officials indicated that Robin Hood's decision to return to negotiations were heavily influenced by financial considerations.

Earlier Thursday, the Canadian wheat board ended its special permits to Robin Hood which allowed it to import semi-finished flour products during the strike.

Also, two of Robin Hood's competitors—Phenix Flour Ltd. and Ogilvie Mills Ltd.—have reached agreement with their striking workers and resumed production Wednesday.

Robin Hood has kept its plant in operation during the dispute by using management personnel and non-union workers hired since the start of the strike.

Later, Munro's officials said a third Montreal flour mill, Maple Leaf Mills Ltd., is also on the verge of settling its strike.

Roland Doucet, federal mediator in the flour mill disputes, said a settlement at Maple Leaf could be reached as early as next week.

Beside financial considerations, the key factor in Robin Hood's decision to agree to return to bargaining was the shooting of eight strikers, said Jacques Olivier, Munro's parliamentary secretary.

Three armed guards from a private security firm, hired by Robin Hood to protect the plant, have pleaded not guilty to charges following the shooting last Friday.

The strike of more than 500 workers at the four Montreal flour mills began between Jan. 27 and Feb. 2 to protest the anti-inflation board's rollback of 40 cents an hour from negotiated wage increases.

A Family Vacation

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says he is feeling fine and is considering travelling with the kids this summer.

Asked about his health at his weekly news conference, Trudeau said he recently had his regular checkup.

He was always told "don't call us, we'll call you if something is wrong." He had no calls.

The recently-separated father of three said his summer vacation plans are not set.

"I'm looking at the possibility of travelling around part of the country with my kids," he said.

No Controls on Press—Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday that journalists who suggest he might be considering government control of the press are suffering from pathological paranoia and added that he wouldn't know how to discipline the press even if he wanted to.

Trudeau told his weekly news conference that remarks he made earlier in the week about the need for self-discipline by the press were meant to imply that he thought establishment of a press council to hear grievances "sounded like a great idea."

But he said he had not intended to suggest he might consider government controls.

Trudeau said he could complain more or cut off government advertising but beyond that, there were laws governing libel, defamation and pornography to which the press was expected to abide.

Last week, a report by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission suggested the electronic media had fallen down on the job and failed to relate different regions of the country to each other.

Trudeau was asked in the Commons Monday whether he agreed with a suggestion by CBC president Al Johnson that a press council to hear complaints against the electronic media should be established.

"Certainly it is a good course to be taken if the media, electronic or otherwise, could have some form of self-discipline," Trudeau replied in the Commons.

The CRTC report was the result of an inquiry into alleged separatist bias in the CBC carried out at the request of Trudeau after he and a number of his cabinet ministers suggested the French-language division of the corporation was anti-federalist.

Trudeau said CRTC chairman Harry Boyle, who wrote much of the report, was using literary hyperbole when he suggested in the final version that all electronic media, not just the CBC, was "biased to the point of subversiveness." The report had said it was not a separatist bias, but a bias against explaining one region of the country to another or "sins of omission."

Trudeau said no one should be surprised at his creating a special information unit in the secretary of state's office to distribute information showing that "Canada is not such a bad place."

Car Child Carrier Flunks Safety Test

By JOHN FERGUSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC) says one of the most popular and widely available child car seats in Canada has failed crash tests carried out in the United States.

The seat is the Dorel Trav-L-Guard Model 085, one of six child car seats approved for sale in Canada after meeting federal government safety regulations.

The CAC said in a release that the Dorel seat frame collapsed, a dummy in the seat slid down under the harness lap belt, the seat bottom fractured extensively and a bolt in the frame separated in the tests carried out by the CAC's American counterpart, Consumers Union.

Joy Moon, chairman of the CAC Children's Automobile Safety Research Committee, estimates that about 150,000 of the car seats have been sold in Canada.

She said a national survey shows the seat is one of the most popular because of its relatively low price. It sold in the $28-$40 range or about $10 below other models.

An official in the product safety branch of the department of consumer and corporate affairs said tests on the Dorel seat as well as on the five other seats sold in Canada have been set for mid-August at the same Buffalo, N.Y., laboratory where the Consmers Union tests were done. Seats sold in Canada are routinely re-tested each year.

Since 1972, all car seats sold or imported into Canada must meet standards laid down under regulations of the Hazardous Products Act. The standards were revised in 1974.

An official said the car seat must meet the three basic criteria: It must restrain the child; there must be no breakage of the seat on collision that might injure the child; and the seat must not deform so as to trap the child.

Of the five other seats available in Canada, four were tested by Consumers Union and all passed.

The others are: American Safety Equipment's Swyngomatic; the General Motors Child Seat; the Kantwet Care Seat, Model 985; and the Peterson Safety Shield.

Mrs. Moon said the sixth seat sold in Canada is the Kantwet Car Seat Model 590. The CAC considers it acceptable, although doesn't give it top rating, she said.

Row Growing Over Retarded

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Association for the Mentally Retarded says a "monumental injustice and great damage" has been done to the retarded and their families by an Anglican Church of Canada discussion paper which suggests that severely retarded infants be killed at birth.

Dr. G. Allan Roeher, association vice-president, said in a statement today that the wide publicity the report received this week reinforces the already negative public image about mental retardation.

"Unfortunately, this will affect not only severely retarded persons and their families but also the less seriously mentally handicapped who are even more capable of contributing to society and participating in the cultural and religious life of their communities," he said.

He said people in this group, including almost 90 per cent of the 360,000 retarded in Canada, have become productive and happy citizens with training, treatment and affection.

QUEBEC BUDGET CLAIMS BACKED

QUEBEC (CP) — Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau Thursday made public a financial statement on the province for the first three months of the year which he said shows the accuracy of his budget predictions.

As a result of the level of revenues and expenses, Parizeau said he foresees no need to increase planned borrowing beyond the $900 million predicted in his April budget.

By the end of the first three-month financial period on June 30, more than 40 per cent of the province's borrowing program had been completed, Parizeau said.

The minister said in an interview that the province was borrowing on virtually all markets both in Canada and abroad at varying interest rates and conditions.

Until now, Quebec had not gone to the Wall Street financial markets in New York "because it was too expensive."

However, since the difference between the interest rates charged on Quebec and Ontario bonds has narrowed, Hydro Quebec, the provincial power utility, has decided to go back to the Wall Street market, he said.

Doubts about Quebec's credit standing have been put aside because of the experience of the last few months, Parizeau said.

Figures in the report show an increase in budgetary revenue of 26.8 per cent in the first quarter compared with the corresponding period last year. An increase of 18.4 per cent had been forecast in the budget.

Expenditures in the same period are up 13.6 per cent over the same period in 1976-77 compared with a budget projection of 12.8 per cent.

The three-month statement is the first in a series of quarterly statements promised by Parizeau in the April budget.

Williams Hit On Labor Bills

Labor Minister Alan Williams was accused Thursday of allowing other cabinet members to "trample all over him."

Karen Sanford (NDP—Comox) said other ministers are infringing on Williams' jurisdiction and "pushing him around."

Sanford was referring to legislation introduced by Education Minister Pat McGeer, which removes certification from the faculty association of Notre Dame University in Nelson, and legislation introduced by Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm, which abolishes the Vancouver Resources Board and cancels existing union contracts.

Former labor minister Bill King (NDP — Revelstoke-Slocan) said Williams was guilty of an anemic performance in protecting labor rights.

Referring to anti-government ads recently placed by the British Columbia Federation of Labor, King said "thy hysterical fears of the trade union movement could be assuaged greatly if the minister would stand in defence of the law."

Sanford also criticized Williams for not blocking the formation of a council of public sector employers, which was criticized by Mayor Jack Volrich of Vancouver as a possible threat to municipal autonomy in labor relations.

Sanford said the purpose of the council is to "hold down wages of people who are working in the public sector."

Williams said the council is a voluntary group that will be a "place for exchanging information" and will have no role in collective bargaining.

King also criticized Williams for not upholding the law on questions of labor rights, and suggested that the minister had contempt for the labor legislation.

Williams said that labor legislation by the previous NDP government was "not chiseled in stone" and that it was the function of governments "to change legislation when necessary.

THE NUMBER'S OUT

It took six months, but the provincial government finally disclosed Thursday it had 39,139 employees as of Dec. 31, 1976.

Eileen Dailly (NDP — Burnaby North) originally asked for the number in a written question last January.

When she repeated the query last month, Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy suggested she put it in writing, only to learn that it had been on the order paper since January.

Thursday, McCarthy tabled the tally.

On Dec. 31, 1975, there were 39,301 civil servants, and in April, 1976, there were 38,569.

These figures do not include employees of government-owned Crown corporations.

Railwest Workers Get Retraining

Labor Minister Allan Williams said Thursday two agreements providing for the retraining and relocation of employees at the Railwest manufacturing plant in Squamish have been signed with the federal government.

Last week, Williams told the legislature that an agreement had been signed by Canada Manpower, his ministry and Railwest.

Opposition critics accused the government of deciding to close down the plant before the subject was considered by the B.C. Railway board of directors.

Williams said Thursday his first statement had been both right and wrong.

"There was a three-party agreement, signed June 22, as the result of a request from the union," he said.

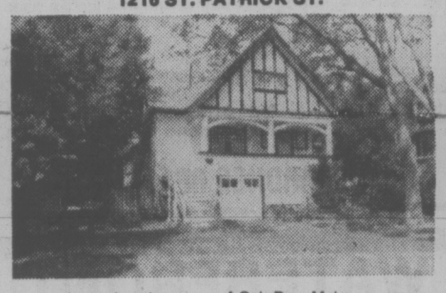

"There was a second agreement, signed July 21, between Canada Manpower and the BCR to which the ministry of labor was not a party. I do not know why labor was not involved."

The railwest plant is scheduled to close in mid-August when the present order of 100 ballast cars is completed. The decision to close the plant was made July 21.

Jobless Rate Up

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — About 5.3 million people, or 5.1 per cent of the labor force, were out of work in the nine European Common Market countries at the end of June, statistics showed Wednesday. The figure for June was 80,000 more than in May, and nearly half a million more than in June, 1976.

Broadbent's Pension a Secret

The provincial governmetn won't say how much pension it is paying J. S. Broadbent, former B.C. Railway vice-president.

Gary Lauk (NDP—Vancouver Centre) asked Economic Development Minister Don Phillips if any pension is being paid to Broadbent other than the $8,164,800 "ex gratia payment" made by cabinet order in 1976.

Phillips referred him to Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy, the minister responsible for the public service, who replied in effect that it is none of the opposition's business.

"The Canada Pension plan has a specific provision in which it is statutorily provided that all information with respect to any individual contributor or beneficiary is privileged, and provincially, it is our policy that the amount of superannuation paid is regarded as being of a personal nature not for disclosure," she said.

Broadbent was vice-president of B.C. Rail when the decision was made to go ahead with the Dease Lake extension — a decision under investigation by a royal commission.

PREP STILL ON JOB

The provincial government's job-finding program for welfare recipients has not been turning people away because of staff holidays, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm told the B.C. legislature Thursday.

The job-finding program PREP, the Provincial Rehabilitation and Employment Program, was set up in 1976 to find jobs for welfare recipients. All applicants for welfare must register with PREP.

Last week, Rosemary Brown (NDP—Vancouver Burrard) told the legislature the PREP office on East Hastings Street in Vancouver was asking the Vancouver Resources Board to put off until September as many PREP interviews as possible.

She quoted from a memo to the board from Debbie Demarco of PREP which stated: "Please remembver that we cannot handle the regular amount of clients becuase our regular staff is on holidays."

"When booking PREP appointments, please book only these that are really important," the memo continued. "If a PREP interview could be put off until September, we would really appreciate it: after all if too many clients are seen, we can't be of any proper service to any of them."

Vander Zalm said Thursday the memo was issued only to three VRB offices in the area.

"Subsequent to this unauthorized memorandum, a summer student with extensive interviewing experience, was hired," the minister added.

"Records for the office during this period indicate that, in fact, the volume of clients assisted increased and there was no reduction in services as was suggested."

Commission's End Feared By Macdonald

Former attorney-general Alex Macdonald accused the provincial government Thursday of "undercutting" the B.C. Energy Commission in favor of B.C. Hydro.

He made his remarks after Energy Minister Jack Davis admitted the government had found it "advisable" to indefinitely postpone energy commission hearings on B.C.'s energy needs.

Davis indicated that a small management study into the commission had been commissioned, but emphasized that it was "only a minor one."

Macdonald said it is ridiculous to conduct a study of this type when only 36 employees are involved, and suggested it is part of a plan to do away with the commission and "make (B.C. Hydro chairman) Bob Bonner the czar of all energy in the province."

ICBC to Review Its Premium Policy—McGeer

The Insurance Corp. of B.C. will review the practice of dealing separately with Autoplan damage claims and general insurance policies at its next directors' meeting.

Education Minister Pat McGeer, minister in charge of the state-owned insurance company, said in the legislature Thursday it appeared to be unlawful to do otherwise, according to the Insurance Act.

But he said NDP critic Dennis Cocke was correct Wednesday when he said an $1,850 claim settlement had been made on behalf of Surrey Dodge Ltd. while the firm owed ICBC $2,500 in fleet insurance coverage.

Cocke said this appeared to be a poor way to do business. But he said the claim payment deducted from the amount owed on policies would contravene the act, "unless there is a judgment, and they (ICBC) should have had a judgment before the claim was paid."

McGeer said he understood on the advice of superintendent of insurance Tom Cantell that a judgment from court would be required. There had never been a policy of checking Autoplan accounts against general insurance policies, McGeer said.

The minister said the complete files of Surrey Dodge would be available to the legislature's public accounts committee at its meeting next Tuesday, but they could not be tabled in the house because that would make them public documents.

The RCMP are holding the files and have been involved in a joint investigation with ICBC agents in connection with allegations that George Kerster (SC—Coquitlam), former president and general manager of the auto dealership, went to ICBC after the corporation had turned down the $1,850 claim. The money was paid subsequently.

Already 22 people have decided to pay themselves the rent.

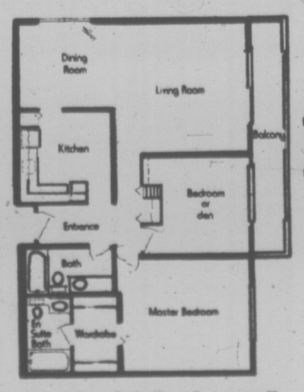

Not surprising when you see the quality of the building. And the low down payment it takes to own a McKenzie House home.

Are you sick and tired of paying rent on something you'll never own? Would you like a nicer place to live?

Rent receipts have no value. So why pour money down the drain? You could own your own place at McKenzie House for close to what you now pay the landlord.

Come let us show you the proof.

Canadian Pacific

Canadian Pacific Rail has ordered 100 cushioned underframe newsprint box cars costing about $3.5 million from National Steel Car Corp. Ltd., of Hamilton, Ont., to meet increased demand from the newsprint industry.

Hydro-Quebec

Hydro-Quebec will borrow 150 million Deutschemarks — about $70 million Canadian — on the Eurobond market, the provincially-owned utility said. The issue of 10-year bonds, carrying a tentative coupon rate of 6.75 per cent, is the fourth loan negotiated by Hydro-Quebec in the last month.

Anco Food

Anco Food Products Inc. has announced it will build a $2 million factory in St. Hyacinthe, Que., to manufacture soft cheeses of the brie, camembert, and coulommiers varieties. The factory, employing about 15, is expected to use 12 million pounds of industrial milk in its first year of production and 25 million pounds by the fifth year.

Dome

Dome Petroleum Ltd. is expected to complete agreements within a few weeks which will provide new financing for its Beaufort Sea exploration program, company officials say. The Calgary-based company has been trying to interest other firms in participating in the $120 million exploration program which began earlier this month. The officials said the company is making "good headway" in recruiting financial participation from other members of the oil industry. While declining to name the companies, the officials said some firms have already committed themselves to the program and contract negotiations are expected to be completed in August. Last month, John Andriuk, Dome's exploration vice-president, told a group of Vancouver institutional investors that three Canadian banks were considering investing in the Beaufort Sea venture. Meanwhile, Petro-Canada, the federal government's oil company, has an interest in one of three wells Dome is drilling this summer. The well will be drilled under an option which Dome received from Atlantic Richfield Canada Ltd. a few years ago. When Petro-Canada purchased Atlantic Richfield Canada from its United States-based parent company last summer, the Crown corporation automatically acquired the involvement.

Chapman

Chapman Transport, a Vancouver-based highway transport firm, has been bought by two member companies of Canadian Motorways Ltd. In a news release it was announced Soo-Security Motorways Ltd., the western highway freight company within the Motorways group, has purchased Chapman's freight operations. Hill Security Ltd., the moving and storage arm of Motorways, has purchased its counterpart of the Chapman organization. Terms of the purchase were not disclosed. Chapman Transport was founded in 1919 in Kelowna and operated there until it was sold in 1967 to Canadian National Transportation Ltd., resulting in movement of the head office to Vancouver.

Cassiar

Cassiar Asbestos Corp. announces that unaudited net earnings for the six months ended June 30 nearly doubled to $12.7 million or $2.31 a share compared with $6.4 million or $1.16 a share in the same period last year. Fibre sales for the period amounted to $61.3 million, up from $41.1 million in the first six months of 1976. President Peter Steen said the improved earnings could be attributed to "higher productivity and increased efficiency."

Sauder

William Sauder, president of Sauder Industries Ltd., has announced that his company's offer to purchase shares of Whonnock Industries Ltd. has been successful. Sauder said that 1.3 million Class A Whonnock shares and 215,616 Class B shares were deposited with a trust company on the closing day of the offer. Sauder said his firm has taken up 600,000 or about 45 per cent of the Class A shares tendered at $12 a share and all of the Class B shares tendered at $16 a share. Sauder Industries also purchased $2 million in series A bonds and warrants previously issued by Whonnock to Arthur Holding and members of his family for $2.4 million. Sauder said the transactions gave his firm 52 per cent of the outstanding Whonnock shares at a cost of slightly more than $13 million.

Atco

Atco Industries Ltd. of Calgary expects to top $500 million in sales by 1981. Company president Ron Southern told the annual shareholders' meeting that sales will be generated by the company's North America, Australia and international divisions. Southern said export orders for pre-fabricated housing worth more than $55 million have been received from projects in Saudi Arabia, Nigeria and Indonesia. The company recorded net earnings of $17,703,000 or $3.36 a share during the last fiscal year, up 20 per cent from earnings of $14,790,000 or $2.82 a share the year before. Total revenue increased 25 per cent to $261,156,000 from $208,799,000.

Husky

Husky Oil Ltd. reports record high earnings of $19.7 million or $1.96 a share for the first six months of 1977, up from $13.7 million or $1.38 a share for the first half of 1976. Sales and operating revenue of $286.9 million was up from $249.8 million while cash flow from operations was $49.1 million, up from $34.2 million in the first six months of last year.

Chieftain

Chieftain International Inc., a wholly-owned U.S. subsidiary of Chieftain Development Co. Ltd. of Edmonton, has acquired interests in six oil and gas blocks in the Gulf of Mexico.

Chieftain's interests vay from 2.4 to four per cent in the blocks, which cover a total of 31,520 acres off-shore from Texas and Louisiana.

Chieftain said drilling in the blocks is expected to commence before the end of the year.

Pulp Mills Slow Down To Trim Inventories

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia pulp mills are taking longer-than-usual maintenance breaks and curtailing production in an effort to reduce pulp inventories.

Most companies took longer breaks than usual last Christmas and, since then, the industry has been operating at about 80 per cent of capacity, compared with 90 per cent in 1976.

Already this year, 11 mills in B.C. have recorded about 130 days of unscheduled shutdown time.

Northwood Pulp and Paper Ltd. in Prince George announced production curtailment in January and others have followed, including Canadian Cellulose Ltd., Prince George Pulp and Paper Ltd., Tahsis at Gold River and B.C. Forest Products.

George Flates, BCFP vice-president of pulp and paper, said the company took a week of unscheduled shutdown time this month, and has planned another week in September.

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., the province's largest pulp producer, hasn't decided when it will shut down to adjust inventories.

"We have our regularly scheduled maintenance set for Labor Day and around Thanksgiving," said Bruce Howe, senior vice-president of operations. "We're facing high inventories but it isn't a crisis."

More than half of the 800,000 metric tons of pulp stockpiled in Canada is in B.C. The surplus is blamed on a sluggish world economy and Swedish producers who, using government subsidies, maintained peak-level production in 1976.

Airport To Reopen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal Transport Minister Otto Lang announced Thursday that the ministry will re-open boundary Bay Airport in Delta as part of a three-year program to withdraw private light aircraft operations from Vancouver International Airport.

General aviation will be withdrawn from Vancouver International as facilities are expanded at Abbotsford Airport and new construction proceeds at Boundary Bay, he said.

General aviation covers all flying, with the exception of major airline and military operations. In the proposed reshuffle, private light plane owners will lead the exodus from Vancouver International Airport.

The Boundary Bay Airport has been closed since the Second World War.

Cardinal Resigns

VATICAN CITY (Reuter) — Pope Paul has accepted the resignation of Michele Cardinal Pellegrino of Turin, one of the most progressive-minded Italian churchmen, for reasons of health, a spokesman announced Wednesday.

LeBlanc Plans Study Of Fishing Licences

VANCOUVER (CP) — An intensive study of the licensing system for Pacific coast fisheries was announced Thursday by federal fisheries minister Romeo LeBlanc.

"Radical advances in fishing techniques, the trend to larger and more efficient vessels and the increasing capitalization of the west coast fleet have produced distortions and inadequacies in the present system," LeBlanc said.

The study, which will start immediately and continue into next year, will be undertaken by Dr. Sol Sinclair, a member of the Fisheries Research Board and the Canadian Fisheries Advisory Council.

"He will review the entire commercial licensing system and provide recommendations on future licensing and fee structures to ensure optimum benefit to fishery resource users, both commercial and sport, and to Canadian society," LeBlanc said.

It is also expected that Sinclair will take a hard look at the sport fishery in tidal waters as there has been considerable pressure on the minister in the past year to introduce a sport fishery licence.

Sinclair will consult with representatives of fishermen's organizations and other sectors of the industry starting in August and will hold meetings in fishing centres along the coast.

INQUEST DATES SET

WHITEHORSE, Yukon (CP) — RCMP said Thursday an inquest will be held September 14-16 into the death of a 17-year-old Watson Lake youth who died July 1 after a scuffle with an RCMP officer.

Officials said the dates were set when the results of toxicology tests on the vital organs of the victim, Douglas Johnson, were completed this week.

Johnson died after he and RCMP Corporal Kenneth Munro wrestled briefly during a police investigation of a disturbance near the Belvedere Hotel in Watson Lake.

Munro was subsequently transferred to duty at the Whitehorse detachment.

Sergeant R. F. Falkingham, the Whitehorse RCMP officer in charge of the investigation, said a Yukon coroner and judge, Mrs. Margaret Tanner, will head the inquest.

Speaking in a telephone interview, Falkingham said a special Crown prosecutor will be brought in from Ottawa.

Roaring Time in the Arctic

BURNABY (CP) — Don Wooldridge, a graduate biology student at Simon Fraser University, has synthesized a polar bear roar that goes on longer and louder than any normal bear could roar.

Woodridge, 29, started the project three years ago after requests from Imperial Oil, which was concerned about the number of northern oil workers who have been killed in recent years by polar bears.

"One of Imperial Oil's concerns was the morale problem it causes immediately after," Wooldridge said. "People start saying: hey, wait a minute. I'm not sure I want to work here."

Wooldridge said he initially experimented with captive bears at a park near Port Angeles by taping sounds of two bears fighting over a piece of meat.

When he played the sound back, one kodiak bear tried to climb the walls of the cage.

Wooldridge said he analysed the roar electronically and synthesized a sound similar to a roar but twice as long as a bear with normal lung capacity could make.

"The idea was that the intruding bear might think it's the world's largest bear just over the hill," he said, adding that the device has earned the name Bionic Bear because of this.

The system is installed around oil drilling sites using giant speakers, a tape recorder and a powerful amplifier activated by a trip wire, Wooldridge said.

He said polar bears in the wild are not naturally vicious and aggressive, but problems occur with semi-starved subadults bears, whose food catches are often stolen by larger males.

"We've seen them licking up diesel oil," Wooldridge said. "They're naturally quite desperate."

Wooldridge, whose work is funded by Imperial Oil the National Research Council and his own money, is also working on a system using bear bait containing chemicals which make the bears sick.

He said the bait will not only drive the bears away, but will probably help ensure that they don't come back.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Five men were given a tongue lashing by Judge Blake Allan in Victoria provincial court Thursday before receiving jail terms for their part in an April 15 early morning brawl on Yates Street which required about a dozen Victoria city police officers to deal with it.

Three brothers, 22-year-old Daniel Bell, 21-year-old Ronald Steven Bell and 20-year-old Dennis Edward Bell, all of 2120 Church Road, Sooke, and Kermit Gavin Ross, 20, of Ganges, were handed three-month sentences while 24-year-old Joseph Claude Deschamps, 45 Sturdee, was given a two-month term for their part in a donnybrook which began inside Scott's Cafe, 650 Yates. The brawl spilled out into the street before order was restored, court was told.

The men had originally pleaded not guilty to the charge and a preliminary hearing was scheduled, but all entered changes of pleas and pre-sentence reports were ordered in all cases.

In addition to the two-month jail sentence, Deschamps was also placed on six months' probation and ordered to make restitution of $294.72 for damage to a police vehicle at the melee.

Allan noted that a large number of police officers were required to quell the outbreak and that it took about half an hour to subdue the men.

"This city is not going to put up with this conduct. If you can't drink and behave yourselves, then you should quit drinking," said the judge, who described the affair as "wild and drunken" and the five men as "violent, drunken hoodlums."

A Port Townsend, Wash., fisherman changed his plea to guilty on a charge of fishing in Canadian waters without a licence and was fined $400 and had two-thirds of his catch forfeited.

Leo Thomas Lineham, 41, first appeared before Allan on Wednesday and entered a not-guilty plea.

Crown counsel Kelly Edmison told the court federal fisheries officers, on a routine patrol Tuesday morning, boarded the 45-foot gillnetter Mary Carl 2.6 miles off Fort San Juan, three miles inside Canadian waters. He said 1,800 pounds of fish valued at $1,500 had been seized.

Legal-aid lawyer Lenore Boyes, appearing for Lineham, said the skipper received advice that the tide was running straight west when it was, in fact, running northwest.

She said Lineham's vessel also had a broken rudder and no radar and that it was foggy at the time. She said there were 296 fish in the catch but that there were only 70 fish in the nets which were being hauled in at the time of the arrest. She asked that only those 70 fish be confiscated by the crown instead of the whole catch requested by Edmison.

A Victoria firm which makes title searches at the Land Registry Office was fined a total of $750 for failing to file income tax returns. The firm, Victoria Searchmasters Ltd., was represented by 59-year-old William Morris, 9615 Eighth Street, Sidney. Morris operates a one-man business, defence lawyer Robert Monahan told the court.

Crown counsel Harold Turnham said the firm failed to file returns for the years 1973, 1974 and 1975 and had been convicted for the same offences earlier this year, when it was fined the minimum $200 on each count.

Monahan said his client had been in business for himself for the last four years but was currently suffering from an arthritis condition and had not been able to do the work for the last three months.

Allan levied fines of $250 on each count but gave Morris time to pay the fines at the rate of $75 a month.

Fined for impaired driving were Robert Allan, 34, of Lake Cowichan, $450, and Margaret Elizabeth Carroll, 30, of 3202 Mills Road, $100. In addition, Mrs. Carroll was ordered to perform 75 hours of community service work.

Barr Sets Pace

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dave Barr of Kelowna fired an eight-under-par 61 Thursday in the professional-amateur warmup competition for the Manitoba Open golf championship.

Barr, 25, had nine birdies. He missed only two greens — one cost him his only bogey — and barely missed scoring a 60 when his putt stopped a turn short of the hole on the 18th green.

Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., Bob Panasiuk of Windsor and Pat O'Donnell of Harrow, Ont., all had three-under-par 66 in the practice round over the 6,228-yard course.

In all, 13 pros shot 69 or better, despite a heavy afternoon shower and a stiff wind late in the day.

The 54-hole open, which has drawn a field of 83 professionals and 33 amateurs, started today at Rossmere Country Club and ends Sunday.

CALGARY (CP) — Linda Rankin, 17, of Calgary shot a five-over-par 78 Thursday for an 8-stroke victory in the Alberta junior women's golf championship.

Allison Gorgichuck of Calgary also 17, finished second with a 256 total for 54 holes. Rankin was at 248.

Colleen Finney of Calgary shot a last-round 81 to tie Laura Morrison of Ponoka at third place at 260.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — New York Mets infielder Lenny Randle was fined $1,000 and given a stern lecture Thursday for a slugging and kicking assault on manager Frank Lucchesi when both were with Texas Rangers.

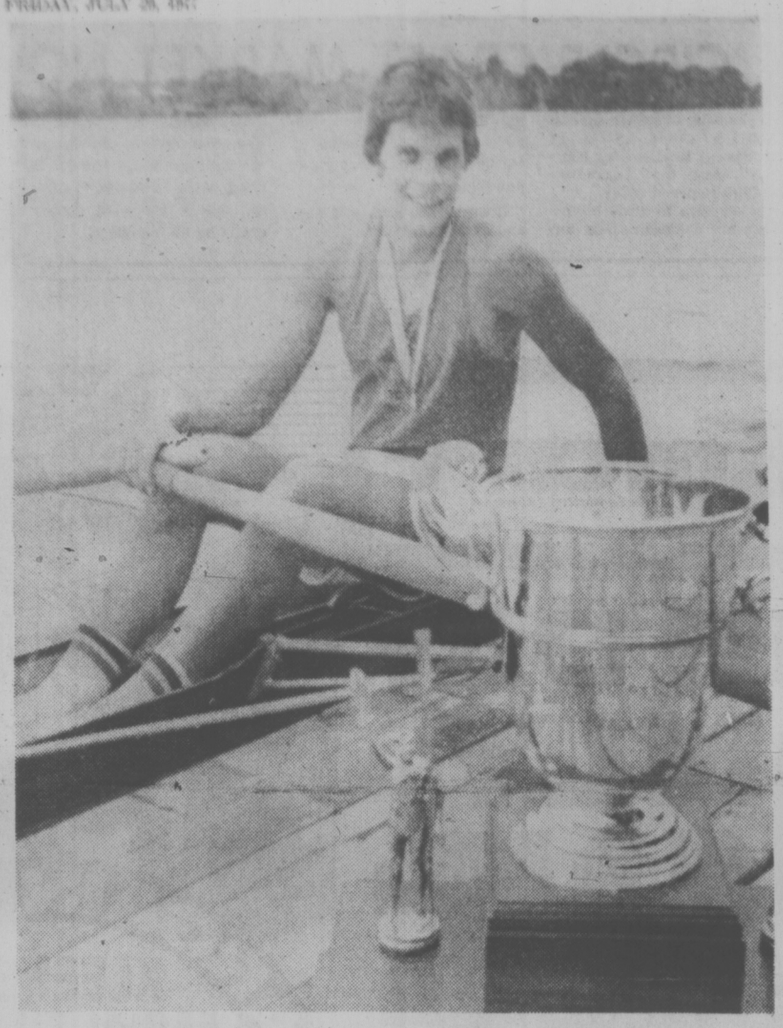

"If you prefer to engage in actions like this," Judge Maurice M. Paul told Randle, "you should change to the professions of boxing where your opponent is prepared to defend himself."

Randle was ordered to make sure that all Lucchesi's medical expenses were paid.

The attack on Lucchesi occured March 28.

Randle, unhappy about losing his starting job at second base to rookie Bump Wills, approached Lucchesi prior to an exhibition baseball game in Orlando against Minnesota Twins. Randle suddenly began punching Lucchesi, knocked him to the ground and kicked him.

The American League fined Randle $10,000 and suspended him for a month. He was waived out of the league and signed a five-year contract with the Mets where he has been a regular at third base. He is batting .312.

CITY ROWER CAPTURES HENLEY SINGLES TITLE

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The St. Catharines Rowing Club dominated the first day of the junior final events Thursday at the 95th annual Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

The St. Catharines club won three of eight finals for 79 points and first place in the aggregate point standings. The club is seeking its 17th Henley points championship.

Ecorse, Mich., Rowing Club is in second place with 33 points, Hamilton Leander is third with 29, Hanlan Boat Club of Toronto holds fourth with 24 and Wyandotte, Mich., and the Victoria Rowing Club share fifth place with 23 points.

St. Catharines recorded its wins in the heavy cox-four, 155-pound eight and the 135-pound singles, won by Jim Dwyer. Five other rowing clubs each picked up one win in Thursday's final events.

Kent, Conn., Rowing Club won the heavy pair with cox, Robert Cady of Ecorse took the 155-pound singles and Bruce Ford of Victoria won the heavy singles.

Wyandotte gained its win as Mike Bozenski and Mike Krat won the 145-pound double while Hanlan's victory came in the 145-pound four.

In heats run Thursday for today's 10 finals, St. Catharines led the way qualifying seven boats, Toronto Argonauts and London Rowing Club each advanced four and Victoria and Leander each moved three to the finals.

This year's event attracted a record 64 rowing clubs from across Canada, the United States and Mexico. The regatta, on a 2,000-metre course, continues through Sunday.

Pat Walter of Victoria finished second to Ford in the heavy singles while Ken McCrat, another Victorian, was fifth. Duncan McDonald of Victoria placed fourth in the 155-pound class singles.

George 'Aggressive' But 'Not a Criminal'

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — George Atkinson, who says he is aggressive but not criminal, plans no changes in his style of play just because he lost his slander suit against Chuck Noll and Pittsburgh Steelers.

"I'll go on being an aggressive player, the type of player I've always been," says Atkinson, a veteran defensive back with Oakland Raiders of the National Football League. "That's how I've lasted 10 years in this league, by being aggressive."

Atkinson was the loser in the two-week trial of his $2 million slander suit when a federal court jury returned a verdict for the Steelers and Noll, their coach since 1969.

Atkinson filed suit after Noll linked him to a "criminal element" in professional football and said Atkinson tried to maim receiver Lynn Swann of the Steelers when he clobbered him with a forearm during an Oakland-Pittsburgh game last September.

After the trial, Steelers lawyer James Martin MacInnis said the verdict might give Atkinson "an indication of how he should play and it may in the end make him a better and more glorious player."

"I don't think the court case had anything to do with making me a better player," Atkinson said. "I think I'm a good player now and most people around the league will agree with that."

Although some comments from the Steelers indicated they felt the verdict should be construed as a repudiation of excessive violence in football, Atkinson said that is not something that can be decided in court.

"I don't see how the case could have much bearing on violence in pro football," he said. "The trial was merely me suing Noll for a statement he made and it had nothing to do with violence.

"Football is a contact sport and as long as there is contact it's going to be a rough, tough game. Any reduction in violence would have to come from within the league and from rule changes."

Joan Claims Title

COQUITLAM (CP) — Joan Lawson of Victoria scored a one-stroke-victory in a three-hole playoff Thursday to win the British Columbia senior ladies' golf championship.

Mrs. Lawson shot an 83 Thursday for a 36-hole total of 166 and a tie with defending provincial and national senior ladies' champion, Margaret Todd, also of Victoria. Mrs. Todd shot 84 to go with a first-round 82.

The two players went on to a three-hole playoff where Mrs. Lawson shot 12 for a one-stroke victory. The difference was the first extra hole where Mrs. Lawson shot a bogey five to Mrs. Todd's double-bogey six.

JOAN LAWSON
. . . wins in playoff

Finishing third was Colleen McCulloch of Vancouver with 171.

Mrs. Lawson, Mrs. Todd and Mrs. McCulloch will join Jean Stewart of Richmond, on the B.C. senior ladies' team that will defend its championship at the Canadian senior ladies' tournament in Winnipeg in August.

The team was chosen on the basis of each player's four best scores in six designated rounds. Mrs. Stewart was out of the running in this week's tournament but qualified for the team on the merit of previous rounds.

The tournament was played at the Vancouver Golf and Country Club in this city just east of Vancouver.

It's Down to the Wire

NEW WESTMINSTER — Third place in the Western Lacrosse Association won't be decided until the final game of league play Saturday in Coquitlam.

That was determined Thursday night when New Westminster Salmonbellies thumped last-place Nanaimo Timbermen 19-7 at Queen's Park Arena.

The win moved the Salmonbellies into a tie for third spot with Coquitlam Adanacs and the teams meet at Coquitlam Sports Centre to determine their opponents in semi-final play. The third-place team faces first-place Vancouver Burrards while the fourth-place finisher has to play Victoria Shamrocks. The best-of-seven semi-finals start Tuesday in Vancouver and Wednesday in Victoria.

Adanacs hold a 3-2 edge in the season series with the Salmonbellies.

On Thursday, Brian Tasker and Dave Matheson each scored three goals for the winners and Wayne Goss, Bob Tasker and Keith Scott added two goals apiece. Others were scored by Norm Leuszler, Al Benson, Bill Mosdell, John Hannah, Ed Goss, Dave Wilfong and Al Lewthwaite.

Jim Lynch scored three times for Nanaimo and other goals were contributed by Frank Alexander, Rick Baker, Ian Kennedy and Kevin Alexander.

League scoring leader Brian Evans drew six assists for the Timbermen to push his points total to 127, 25 more than runnerup Kevin Alexander.

Wayne Goss set up seven goals and his nine-point effort moved him into fourth place at 95 points, two fewer than Brian Tasker.

Salmonbellies fired 64 shots at goalkeeper Earl Nicholson and Timbermen tested Ted Gernaey 46 times.

Homer Record, Oddities In 4 Hours, 50 Minutes

By The Associated Press

The game was a strange one, in many ways, for Chicago Cubs.

Rick Reuschel, normally a starter, came on in relief and beat Cincinnati Reds 16-15 in a National League baseball game Thursday. He pitched two-thirds of an inning and scored the winning run in the bottom of the 13th inning.

It was his second victory over the Reds in their four-game series and his 10th without a loss at Chicago's Wrigley Field.

The game marked the return to duty of reliever Bruce Sutter, who pitched three innings, didn't allow a hit and struck out six.

The Cubs collected 24 hits against six pitchers, and there were a total of 11 home runs, tying a major league record, is the game which lasted four hours and 50 minutes.

Chicago used 21 players, the Reds 16, and three Cubs changed positions four times. Outfielder Bobby Murcer even played shortstop and second for a while when the Cubs ran out of infielders in the late innings.

Dave Rosello, shifting between second and shortstop, depending on whether a lefty or righty was batting, drove in the winning run, making up for an error that gave the Reds a 15-14 lead in the top of the 12th.

Chicago manager Herman Franks was ejected in the ninth inning, but his game of musical Cubs paid off, leaving the Reds 12½ games behind Los Angeles in the West Division.

The Cubs hit six homers, two in the first inning, and the Reds had five, three in the first inning. The five homers in one inning by both teams also tied a major league record.

Bill Buckner and George Mitterwald had two homers each for the Cubs with Murcer and Jerry Morales hitting one each. Ken Griffey, Pete Rose, Johnny Bench, Mike Lum and Cesar Geronimo homered for the Reds.

In other games, Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Philadelphia Phillies 2-1, Montreal Expos downed San Diego Padres 5-4, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Houston Astros 9-4 and St. Louis Cardinals blanked Atlanta Braves 3-0.

Reggie Smith worked reliever Gene Garber for a bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the ninth, and Tommy John, 11-4, scattered six hits to give Los Angeles three victories in its four-game series with Philadelphia.

Bill Russell led off the ninth with a triple, the fourth Los Angeles hit. Garber was called in at that point to relieve Jim Kaat, 4-6, and issued intentional walks to Steve Garvey and Ron Cey. Garber then walked Smith.

Andre Dawson's two-run homer in the eighth inning lifted the Expos over the Padres and gave Montreal a split of the four-game series. Dawson's 12th homer of the season, off Bob Owchinko, 3-7, erased a 4-3 San Diego lead.

Reliever Joe Kerrigan, 2-3, picked up the victory.

Meanwhile, manager Billy Martin of New York Yankees still believes the role of his pitching staff will take added significance with each game as the race for the American League East Division title gets serious.

"I still think that my pitching will eventually overshadow Baltimore and Boston," said Martin after Mike Torrez tossed a four-hitter and beat Baltimore Orioles 14-2 for his first victory in more than a month. "If Torrez comes along like he should, it's going to be very important for us."

The victory left New York two games behind the Orioles with the Red Sox one game back.

Thurman Munson, Graig Nettles and Roy White homered in the Yankees highest-scoring game of the season.

"I like the way our pitching is right now," said Martin. "If the pitching stays just the way it is, we'll win games. Our pitching is so good that it's just one guy going out there doing better than the next."

In other American League games, Texas Rangers shut out Toronto Blue Jays 3-0, Boston blanked Milwaukee Brewers 12-0, Seattle Mariners downed Minnesota Twins 5-2, Kansas City Royals beat Cleveland Indians 5-4 in 11 innings and Oakland A's downed California Agnels 6-4.

Gaylord Perry, 9-8, pitched an 11-hit shutout to hand Toronto its seventh loss in a row—its longest losing streak of the season. Perry struck out eight in extending Texas's winning streak to six.

Jerry Garvin, 7-11, took the loss despite pitching a four-hitter.

McCARTHY SNAPS HIP, WAITING FOR SURGERY

BUFFALO (AP)—Joe McCarthy, who managed the New York Yankees baseball team during their earlier heydays, was in a hospital awaiting surgery for a broken hip on Thursday.

A hospital spokesman said the 90-year-old McCarthy had a fractured left hip but was in good condition after a fall in his suburban North Tonawanda home Wednesday.

McCarthy managed the Yankees for 15 seasons, beginning in 1931, after having spent 20 years as a minor league player and manager and also managing Chicago Cubs. After leaving the Yankees, he managed Boston Red Sox for several seasons.

Stings, Hunters Ahead in Series

Victoria Strathcona Stingers and Saanich E. J. Hunters won opening games in best-of-three Vancouver Island Junior "B" Lacrosse League semi-final playoff series Thursday.

Stingers bounced Nanaimo Timbermen 18-8 at Esquimalt Sports Centre and Hunters nudged Juan de Fuca Whalers 15-11 in overtime at Pearkes Arena.

Dwayne Ferguson, Randy Bryant and Davi Pallan each fired three goals to spark the Stingers while Jim Ferguson and Doug Tuck had triple tallies for Nanaimo.

Bill Van Buskirk led Hunters with three goals and doubles were contributed by Rick Gurney, Paul, Sharples and Murray McLaren.

Mark Roberts led Whalers with four goals and Bobby Grant fired two.

The second game in both series will be played Monday with the Stingers-Timberman game at 8 p.m. in Nanaimo and the Hunters-Whalers game at 9 p.m. in Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Third games, if needed, will be played Thursday.

Burnaby Trounces Coquitlam

COQUITLAM (CP) — Burnaby Cablevision downed the Coquitlam J-Hawks 26-14 in Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League action Thursday night.

Dan Perrault and Mark Schnarr each scored four goals for Burnaby. Three goal performances came from Ray Mattinson and Brad Parker. Eric Cowison, Dan Wilson, John Swan and Ken Sim each scored twice. Singles came from Matt Aitken, Paul Delmonte, Derek Dickson and Terry Bingley.

Coquitlam got two goals from four players — Erik Otterstrom, Brian Stewart, Mike Reelie and Jim Alward. John Stewart, Lance Owens, Wayne McAuley, Dave Scribner and Peter Rakic each scored once.

Stylish Cricket Debut

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuter) — Ian Botham, 21-year-old all-rounder making his England debut, captured five wickets for 74 as Australia mustered a disappointing 243 on the opening day of the third cricket test Thursday.

On a perfect batting pitch, Australia was badly let down by its middle-order batsmen. Shortly after lunch they were 131 for two but then slumped to 155 for eight before the last two wickets added 88 to highlight the feebleness of the earlier batting.

England was left with 13 minutes batting before the close and openers Mike Brearley and Geoff Boycott put on nine without being parted. Boycott, back on the England side after withdrawing from international cricket three years ago, survived comfortably against fast bowlers Jeff Thomson and Less Pascoe.

It was a thoroughly encouraging day for England which now must be confident of at least preserving its 1-0 lead in the five-match series.

Prospects Not Too Great For B.C. Derby Fishing

Prospects appear little better than fair for salmon fishing during the third weekend of competition in the B.C. Salmon Derby.

The area this weekend is centred in Cowichan Bay with a northern boundary drawn between Arbutus and Maxwell Points, an eastern boundary between Swartz Bay and Isabella Point on Saltspring Island, a southern boundary between Verdier Point and Yarrow Point in Saanich Inlet and a western boundary from Wilcuma Wharf to a marker near Genoa Bay.

Derby officials have assigned a handicap of six pounds to the area for the top prize of $25,000.

Fishermen mooching with live herring have been landing chinooks to 25 pounds in Sansum Narrows and off Separation Point while a few smaller fish of the same species have been picked up off Arbutus Point.

Fourteen-year-old Terry Snead landed a 22-pounder Monday near Wain Rock using a Krippled-K spoon to top fishermen working out of Deep Cove. A smattering of coho to five pounds have added some spice to the catch.

Most success was noted on at least 150 feet of line and up to two pounds of weighet.

If you're planning on strictly going after salfon this weekend, stick to waters between Sooke and Oak Bay.

Two 45-pounders care in at Sooke last weekend. John Brohman landed one Saturday trolling a minnow off Possession Point and Mark Grant boated the other Sunday while trolling a minnow the over-sized "Mark IV" flasher he's developed.

Loads of chinooks in the 20-pound range have been reported from the same spots and off Secretary Island along with a few coho, pinks and sockeye.

Use eight to 16 ounces of weight and 25 to 60 feet of line.

Just about every type of lure and bait is working between Aldridge Point and Beechey Head using 40 feet of line and about 1½ pounds of lead. The catch consists of chinooks to 42 pounds along with pinks, sockeye and coho.

"Mac" McDonald topped fishermen at Pedder Bay this week with a 30¾-pounder taken Wednesday on anchovy off Bentinck Island.

Pinks to seven pounds and the odd coho to 5½ have also turned up between Bentinck and Church. Fishing off the tip of Bentinck right at the tide change has been particularly effective.

Trollers are using 80 feet of line, up to 1½ pounds of lead and either anchovies or strip but a few fish have been caught by moochers and Buzz-Bombers.

Returns picked up Thursday morning off Oak Bay with chinooks to 19 pounds taken on Stingsildas or strip off The Flats and the Victoria Golf Club coastline.

Dogfish have been bothering bait fishermen off Sidney but some salmon eight pounds were taken Wednesday by Buzz-Bombers working Fairfax Point and a few in the same size range were landed off Cape Keppel and Hatch Point trollers using bait.

Good fishing for chinooks to 30 pounds is reported from Indian and Coles bays as well as Bamberton in the middle part of Saanich Inlet using Tye strip, anchovies or Tomic plugs. A few coho to 5½ pounds are also showing.

All the main spots in Finlayson Arm are yielding chinooks to 18 pounds and a few coho to seven on squirts, Tomic plugs and strip fished fairly deep.

Port Renfrew fishermen are pulling in chinooks to 25½ pounds and sockeye to 10 by trolling either strip or whole herring off the mouth of the bay.

Moochers and stripcasters are picking up chinooks to 15 pounds and a few coho in Porlier and Active passes while some good catches of coho to seven pounds off the south end of Hornby Island and Northwest Bay relieve an otherwise-slow pattern at Nanaimo. Buzz-Bombers are also starting to connect with the coho.

Swale Rock seems to be the lone productive spot at the mouth of Alberni Inlet with chinooks to 25 pounds coming in on strip.

Bucktailers are landing coho to 6½ pounds right at the crack of dawn off Bates Beach with either white and purple or white and black patterns working best. A few small chinooks have been taken at the same spot.

Copper Bluff, Row-and-Bedamned, Whiskey Point, Cape Mudge and Butler Point waters are yielding chinooks to 40 pounds along with coho to six, mainly on bait.

Some fishermen trying a new method of fishing with a bobber, four-foot leader and live herring cast into the kelp beds with a light rod are experiencing some dynamite coho action in the latter spot.

All of the larger lakes on Vancouver Island are producing a few trout but many of the smaller lakes can't be fished because of access problems created by the high fire hazard.

Peden Enjoys Twin Success

Sandy Peden of Victoria came up with a close individual victory and shared a team prize Thursday as competition got under way in the annual B.C. Rifle Association match at Heal's Range.

Peden was one of 12 shooters who tied at 50 out of 50 in the Victoria City match at 300 yards and it took two shootoffs and 19 shot-for-shot tie-breakers before he collected the win.

He also helped Victoria to the regional team championship with 285 out of 300. Others on the squad were Joe Gibault, Byron Bentley, Phil Watt, Don Ireland and Bill McCubrey.

Sid Thomas of Ladysmith captured the Woodward's match, restricted to shooters with marksman or sharpshooter status, with 50 out of 50 from 300 yards.

In the McDonald-Stewart match, shot at 400 and 600 yards, Crystal Drossos of Penticton placed first with 99 out of 100.

A cadet squad from Vernon won the Galletly team match for marksmen and sharpshooters at 60 yards.

The competition continues through Monday and gets under way at 8 a.m. each day.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Notebook Holds Answers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Terry Diehl has the first-round lead in the $200,000 Philadelphia golf tournament, a secret notebook that helped him get there and no intention of revealing his methods.

The notebook contains the wit and wisdom of Ken Venturi, a former United States Open champion and now a television commentator.

"He's a tremendous guy, and he's made a world of difference in my game," Dierl said after his six-under-par 65 gave him a one-stroke edge in Thursday's opening round of the chase for a $30,000 first prize.

"I'm a much better over-all player" since working with Venturi, said Diehl, "but he made me vow not to tell anyone" precisely the nature of the help.

"I think he's been plagiarized a couple of times," Diehl said. "If you want to know what it's all about, ask Venturi."

The instructions are scribbled in the little notebook 27-year-old Diehl studies from time to time.

"I worked with him several days down in Florida," said Diehl, whose only victory came in his rookie season of 1974. "The first day, I made notes of 55 items. The second day 27. The third, about a dozen. I kept adding to it."

Diehl, who lost a playoff for this title a year ago, said he sought help from Venturi early this season.

"My career was in a valley," Diehl said.

Since then, he said, "I haven't missed a cut since Doral (in March) and that's pretty good for me."

"I've played very steadily, very solidly."

His play over the last 11 holes bordered on the spectacular. He played those holes six under par and used only 12 putts in the stretch, once holing from a bunker.,

Those heroics lifted him one stroke in front of J. C. Snead, a former Philadelphia champion who birdied two of his last three holes for a share of second, and Tom Kite, the man who scored that playoff victory over Diehl a year ago.

"I was kind of apprehensive," Kite said of his first appearance in the role of defending titleholder. "I didn't want to put too much pressure on myself, but I did want to get a good start. I'm very pleased that I played exceedingly well."

THE SOFTBALL SCENE

Combos, Angels Advance to Final

Strong pitching performances helped settle the issue in both deciding games of best-of-three Victoria Senior Women's Softball League semi-final series Thursday at Hyacinth Park.

Cathy Wilkinson hurled a two-hitter to lead CRESC Angels to a 1-0 win over Colony Inn while Bev Gjernes scattered four hits to pace league-champion GSV Combos to a 5-2 win over CJVI Vicettes in the other series.

Angels and Combos clash in the opener of the best-of-three final Tuesday with further games Wednesday and Thursday, if necessary.

Cindy Smith drove in Marg Barber with a one-out single in the top of the fifth inning to provide the only run Angels needed and break a scoreless pitching duel between Miss Wilkinson and Debbie Derkson of Colony.

In the other game, Combos opened scoring with one run in the second inning but Vicettes came back to take the lead with two runs in the third. Combos went ahead to stay in the fifth when three singles, a base on balls, an error and a fielders' choice produced four runs.

At Central Park, Molsons topped Juan de Fuca Builders 6-2 in Stuffy McGinnis Men's League play.

John Kilgour struck out six batters and gave up six hits to record the pitching victory.

At Macdonald Park, Jim Miller hurled a four-hitter and drove in two runs with a single to lead Victoria Athletics to a 5-0 shutout over Strathcona Hotrel to complete a sweep of both league and playoff honors in the Macdonald Men's League.

In Sidney Men's League play, Harvey's Sporting Goods tripped Travelodge 8-2 at Sanscha Park.

Frank Scott had two home runs in a four-for-four performance for Hareveys.

At Heywood Avenue Park, Paul Baines and Lee York contributed homers as Remco Office Systems defeated Taylor House Movers 7-5 in Heywood Men's League action.

Meanwhile, two local men's tournaments are on tap this weekend at some area squads will be involved in a 12-team tournament at Nanaimo.

Three Heywood League teams — Capital Builders, Castle Properties and Century Inn — will be joined by Wright's Jewelers and Village Green of Duncan, Parksville 49ers, and Harvey's and Colony Inn of the Sidney League for the annual Heywood Park tourney.

In opening games Saturday, Wrights take on Capital at 10:45 a.m. Village Green tackles Parksville at 12:30 p.m., Century faces Castle at 2:15 and Colony battles Harevey's at 4.

Action continues Sunday at the same times with an additional game set for 5:45 and the tournament concludes Monday.

At Sooke Athletic Park, Juan de Fuca Builders of the Stuffy McGinnis League meets Sidney Hotel of the Sidney League tonight at 6:30 to open the 10-team Sooke Merchants tournament.

Other squads competing in the tourney are the host club, Ingraham Hotel of the Stuffy League, Victoria Athletics of the Macdonald League, Powell River Farewells, Vancouver Metro, Port Alberni Rainbow Lanes and two teams from Campbell River.

Action continues through Monday, starting at 9:30 a.m. each day.

VICTORIA TEENAGER CREATES A BIG STIR

SEATTLE (CP) — Victoria's Jennifer Bland, 16, scored an upset victory in the Washington State junior tennis championships Thursday, downing top-seeded Sherree Chin of Oakland, Calif, 6-2, 7-6 in the girls under-16 category

Miss Bland went on to defeat Annette Soffe, of Mercer Island, Wash, 6-0, 5-7, 6-2 in the girls under-18 contest.

In the boys under-18, Richmond's Michael Kerr inflicted a 6-4, 6-3 defeat on David Fish of Eugene, Ore, while Mark Roberts of Vancouver downed John Hammermeister of Puyallup, Wash., 6-3, 1-6, 6-3.

Fred Logewal of Vancouver defeated Steve Burke of Seattle 6-2, 6-0 in the boys under-14 category. In boys under-12, Steve Leier of Vancouver pounded Tim Larson of Mercer Island, 6-4, 6-1.

In the girls under-18, Suzanne Mathews of Vancouver handed Ann Doherty of Seattle a 6-0, 6-4 drubbing and in girls under-12, Kelly Davis of Victoria crushed Mary-Jo Grummel of Longview, Calif, 6-1, 6-6.

Grand Prix Draws Impressive Field

Some of the top sports car drivers in North America will be in town this weekend for the annual Victoria Motor Sports Club "Grand Prix" at Western Speedway.

Sanctioned by both the Canadian Automobile Sports Club and the International Conference of Sports Car Clubs, the event gets underway with qualifying and practice sessions at 11 a.m. both Saturday and Sunday.

Three-time Canadian national champion John Schuberg, 35, will be bringing over two 1977 vehicles from Vancouver — a Triumph TR-7 and an MG Midget.

Certain to be the most expensive car on the one-mile road circuit this weekend will be the $80,000 Corvette driven by Bob Henkel of Portland, Ore. This same car was driven by John Greenwood of New York for two consecutive years in the Le Mans 24-hour endurance test.

Several Porsches, including one California-based Porsch 940 Turbo valued at around $60,000, are also expected to compete.

Victoria drivers competing are two-time ICSCC champion John Kendrew in a 1-litre Mini Cooper "S", Gordie Munroe in a Brabham BT-21 Formula Atlantic racer, Larry Sandham, Bart Spruyt, Leigh Urquhart, Paul Whitworth, Janny Patterson, Harry Pillar, Roy Thomas, John Erith, Jim Bridger, Bob Slater, Graham Jones and Bill Okell.

Novice races will be held starting at 3 p.m. Saturday and the remainder of the action gets underway at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is $2 per person for one or both days.

Calgary Vet On Sidelines

CALGARY (CP) — Veteran defensive-back Dennis Meyer will be out of action for two months with a broken arm, Jack Gotta, general manager-coach of Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference, has confirmed.

Meyer was injured in last week's Canadian Football League interlocking game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Calgary won 13-11.

Gotta said he will activate running-back Scott Crawford who was recently cut by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern conference.

DIERKER SIDELINED

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals have placed right-handed pitcher Larry Dierker on the 21-day disabled list for the second time this season.

Blue Jays Buy Relief Pitcher

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Blue Jays have purchased relief pitcher Tom Murphy from Boston Red Sox and optioned rookie left-hander Dennis DeBarr to Toledo of the International League.

Murphy, 31, has seen little action this season with the Red Sox who have relied heavily on relief ace Bill Campbell. Murphy had one of his best seasons in 1974 with Milwaukee when he was second among American League relievers with a 10-10 record, 20 saves and a 1.90 earned-run average.

Smith One to Watch In Superstock Series

The final segment of the four-race B.C. open superstock championship series takes place Saturday night at Western Speedway and Sunday afternoon at Langley and the guy to watch isn't even in the top 20 on the points list.

He's Victoria's Roy Smith.

Smith will drive his new 1974 Stock Car Products Nova, the same car in which he showed to advantage in the recent six-race International Drivers' Challenge series. He did not have the Nova for the first two races of the Carling-O'Keefe B.C. Open in May.

Smith has a lot of catching up to do when the series resumes Saturday with time trials at 7 p.m. and racing at 8. Points leader is Ron Eaton of Tacoma, an old friend and rival of the Victoria hopeful and about as tough a competitor as any in the Pacific northwest. Eaton has 310 points, just 32 more than second-place Al Tourand of Vancouver, after winning the 75-lap series open at Western May 28.

George Stuart of Campbell River, in a beautifully-prepared '74 Nova, broke the Langley track record and won the second leg of the series May 29 on his way to third place in the points parade with 245.

Victoria's Roy Haslam, second to Stuart at Langley, is fourth in points with 237 followed by Ross Surgenor (second at Western and third at Langley), 10 points behind Haslam.

Dave Dalby, another Victorian, is only one point back of Surgenor while Cam Barnes of Surrey is the remaining driver at the 200-point level with 201, good for seventh place.

Guthrie Leaving Auto Club

NEW YORK (UPI) — The lure of bigger payoffs in NASCAR racing apparently deciding her future, Janet Guthrie announced Thursday that she has resigned her U.S. Auto Club license to concentrate on driving the stock-car field.

Guthrie, the first woman to drive in an Indianapolis 500 mile race when she qualified for the classic last May, said it was "with deep regret" that she tendered her resignation, but was doing so "because of USAC's policies concerning the conflicting races that I plan to drive on July 31 and Aug. 21."

The 39-year-old lady driver's schedule calls for Guthrie to compete in NASCAR's Coca-Cola 500 at the Pocono Raceway this Sunday — a date that conflicts with USAC's Texas 200. On Aug. 21, she will drive in a $138,025 stock car race in Brooklyn, Mich., which coincides with the race for Indy-type cars at Milwaukee.

Stock-car racing has been more lucrative for Guthrie, who is in the running for the $65,000 bonus that goes to NASCAR's rookie of the year. However, she's still winless in big time stock or Indy competition after winning several championships when she competed in sports car divisions.

Gorge Pads Lead

Derek Drinkwater boosted his season record to 14-3 by pitching league-leading Gorge Hotel to a 4-2 come-from-behind win over Farmer Construction in Victoria senior Amateur Baseball League play Thursday at Lambrick Park.

Drinkwater struck out nine batters while yielding four bases on balls and only four hits.

Comox Star Aids Canadian Squad

DAYTON, Ohio (CP) — The Canadian national men's volleyball team, preparing for next month's World Student Games in Bulgaria, defeated the United States squad 3-2 in a best-of-five series Thursday night

Canada won 16-14, 15-17, 15-13, 13-15, 15-6 to wind up with 2-2 record in a four-game series against the US

Tom Graham of Comox and Garth Pischke of Winnipeg were the offensive stars for Canada.

Toronto Rivals Drub Whitecaps

TORONTO (CP) — Drago Vabec, who joined Toronto last month, scored four goals Thursday night to lead the Metros-Croatia to a 6-1 triumph over Vancouver Whitecaps in a North American Soccer League game before 8276 fans.

The win increased Toronto's first-place lead over St. Louis Stars to 10 points in the Northern Division of the Atlantic Conference and gave the Metros-Croatia a 12-13 record. Vancouver is second behind Minnesota Kicks in the Western Division with a 12-11 record.

Toronto led 4-1 at the half with Vabec, formerly a top forward with Dinamo Zagreb of the Yugoslovian League scoring two goals in each half.

Dinko Zutelija and Veljko Tuksa, acquired with Vabec from Dinamo Zagreb last month, got the other Toronto goals. Derek Posse scored the lone goal for Vancouver with two minutes left in the first half.

Vabec increased the margin to 5-1 at the 155-minute mark of the second half and made it 6-1 seven minutes later.

It was the second time in the history of the Tornto team that a player has scored four goals in a single game. Eusabio accomplished the feat last season.

Island Girls In Running

VANCOUVER (CP) — There is a three-way tie at the top as golfers head into today's final round of the British Columbia junior girls' golf championship.

In first place after rounds of 80 Thursday are Tracy Stoddart of North Vancouver, Lisa Young of Prince Rupert and Jill Johnson of Ganges.

Anne Newman of Campbell River is two strokes back, while Sydney Thomson of Victoria remains in striking distance of the leaders after an 85 Thursday.

The tournament is being played at the Seymour Golf and Country Club.

Indian Affairs Has No Plans To Close Home

Indian Affairs has not decided to close a Victoria group home for native teenagers taking a secondary schooling at Reynolds secondary, as the Greater Victoria school board believed.

If the McKenzie Street home operated by Lillian and Peter Charlie does not function this year, it will be a decision of the Ahousaht band council, not Indian Affairs, D. J. Lavin wrote to the board.

Lavin, the district superintendent of education based in Nanaimo, said no decision had been reached and "I understand the Ahousaht band council is wrestling with the matter while giving consideration to alternatives for students attending the home."

In June the board wrote to Indian Affairs asking why the home, which was the basis for a successful education project, was being closed by the department.

Reynolds principal, W. J. Garner, had earlier reported to the board that the Charlie's home was a main reason for the success of the program.

"Outside forces are complicating the issue and its resolution," Lavin wrote back to the board.

"The Victoria area supporters of the group home are apparently not aware that there is rather mixed support in Ahousart for the group home."

Lavin said the trend by Ahousaht members is to keep their children closer to home, preferrably at Tofino.

Ahousaht is located on Flores Island, just north of Tofino.

The Victoria home was established as a place of transition for 12 to 15 Grade 8 students. "Yet, for the coming year, all parents of potential Grade 8 students have elected to place their children in private boarding homes," Lavin said.

And the Charlies told Indian Affairs they didn't wish to operate the home unless there were 10 students. This figure has not been realized, Lavin wrote.

TOWN TALK

Four or five city police cruisers converged on a Johnson Street alley Wednesday night after reports of a gang rumble, complete with flashing knives, was under way there.

Indeed it was, in a manner of speaking. Ron Way, director of the West Side Story production opening at the McPherson Playhouse Sept. 6, explained that what he was after was some publicity shots. So the cast was running through the "rumble scene" from the musical.

The show for the cameras was impressive enough to lead watchers to call the cops.

Way said the police reaction when they came rolling up was: "Please let us know about it next time."

So, anyway, after Jerry Gosley fell up the stairs, the next thing he knew he was telling jokes to the doctors at Royal Jubilee Hospital and THEY had HIM in stitches.

That's the punch line. How the beginning of the story goes, nobody is really quite sure.

The way Gosley tells it, he was coming home from his Smile Show performance Wednesday night when he managed to fall UP the stairs in front of his house.

Had a bit of a nasty fall, he did, as a person will when he falls up. For the doubters, the evidence was there for all to see on Thursday night, or at least for those near the front of the McPherson, because there definitely was a glimpse of bandage under his kilt. The show must go on.

Those flimsy milk pouches are here to stay, even if they are not very popular.

The dairy industry has invested millions of dollars tooling up for the pouches and is not about to throw the investment away. Supermarket managers have mixed feelings about them, particularly after the recent decline in sales.

But pouches have been selling for 10 years on the east coast and have become part of the merchandising establishment. Consumers can expect to buy cartons in the two-litre size and pouches in the four-litre size.

The Oak Bay Kiwanis Club was named international honor club at the Kiwanis convention held in Dallas.

The award, accepted by past president Gerry Finestone, is for outstanding achievements during the past year. The club started 18 new projects during the past 12 months as well as administering existing programs.

The club sponsors four hockey teams, five baseball teams and three soccer teams as well as helping children with learning disabilities.

South America conjures up images of brown-skinned women bartering in the marketplaces of Rio, or of wild gauchos riding herd in the tall pampas grass of Argentina, long before it makes one think of Ice Follies.

But the Follies are popular down there, and two Victoria teenagers are glad they are.

Deanna Lawson, 18, of 1834 Jade Place and Brenda Ferris, also 18, of 1662 Stanhope Place, were signed on by Follies choreographer Richard Dwyer for an eight-month tour of South America starting Aug. 17 in Buenos Aries.

First stop, however, is Sacramento, Calif. for two weeks training.

That electric power cutoff Thursday night wasn't really a power failure, B.C. Hydro spokesman Dorothy Tupper explained today.

Residents along Station Road and Millstream Road were without electricity between 11:30 and 11:50 p.m.

The power authority "killed" the feeder line to assist firefighters in moving hoses during a brush fire, she said.

Pierre Berton has now joined the fight to save the Crystal Garden.

He is one of five authors of a book titled Crystal Garden — The West Coast Fun Palace, the proceeds from which will be used toward the restoration of the old watering hole.

Berton's contribution is based on personal reminiscences, including boyhood swimming trips, while other chapters deal with various aspects of the building's architecture, designers and colorful history.

Co-authors, all prominent in the heritage preservation scene, are Carolyn Smyly, Terri Reksten, Martin Segger and Allstair Kerr.

Reksten says the book, which will be available in local book stores in about two weeks, contains more than 200 illustrations, many of which have never been published before.

Printed by Morris Printing Co. Ltd. of Victoria, the hardcover version in a limited edition of 250 copies will sell for $40, while the soft-cover copies are priced at $7.95.

ON THE BUS TOUR

A Lurching Look at Our Town

The sightseeing buses line up outside The Empress, and the seats are rapidly filling on the top deck of the Gray Line omnibus.

Lumbering leviathans, which once carried commuting Londoners to Putney, Ealing, Balham, Tooting and other faraway places with strange-sounding names, wait patiently to be fed another bellyful of passengers.

Ahead, legislator-turned-entrepreneur Jim Gorst stands beside his genuine San Francisco trolley, talking to a young woman. The trolley is empty.

The chatter begins.

"Oh, now I'll be able to see these beautiful flower baskets close up," says an elderly woman as she flops into her seat.

"I do admire the dear people who keep the gardens so beautiful," a companion gushes.

Two rows behind, a woman urges her husband to "look at the nice picture of Queen Elizabeth." She points to the garish portrait above the Black Ball ferry terminal.

With a lurch and a shudder the beast is mobile, heading up Government Street.

On the right is the Belmont Building, Victoria's first skyscraper and office building, Gary points out.

Then comes Rogers Chocolates and the Edinburgh Tartan Shop. "Find out what your crest is, or your family tartan," Gary suggests.

(The nonsensical thought occurs: Wouldn't it be fun to walk into the latter, feign a thick Russian accent and tell the store clerk, "My name is Boris Kuznetsov, please to show me my family tartan ...")

Passing the ugly grey slab that houses the main Post Office, Gary conveys the startling information that "letters posted here require Canadian postage."

Then, turning the corner into Yates, the driver mentions that this quarter of town was once the bawdiest, rowdiest of them all, "with 26 bars and brothels on this one street alone."

A little girl from the front seat pipes up, in a clear voice that can be heard the length of the bus: "Mum, what's a brothel?"

Mum tries to ignore the reasonable question until it's repeated, with greater insistence. "Shush up and listen to the driver," she states, with motherly firmness.

The little girl fails to point out that that's exactly what she was doing.

Now the bus is ascending the lower slopes of Fort, east of Cook, which Gary says was once called Nob Hill because that's where all the stately mansions were.

"Doesn't look much now," an elderly man observes.

Gary offers a comment about Victoria's apartment zoning policies which would cause some raised eyebrows in the city planning department.

The city doesn't allow apartments to be built "higher than the existing trees," he explains, and a passenger praises it as a "great idea."

Well, Gary, dunno where you got that information but that's not exactly how it works ...

The driver keeps up his patter throughout the 90-minute trip, but for the last half-hour or so the tourists lapse into a desultory silence.

Until another young voice asks: "Mum, why don't you sit with Pauline?"

This mother is less polite than the one whose offspring was inquiring about brothels.

"Why don't you shut up?" she replies. Junior obliges.

Back outside The Empress the passengers disembark, apparently satisfied with their four-bucks' worth of Victoria-viewing.

Gorst's trolley still stands there, still empty. Gorst looks kind of lonely and forlorn.

FIRST WINE LOUNGE in British Columbia opened Thursday night at the Red Lion and Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair (centre) was in attendance. The lounge sells wine, beer and food and allows customers to taste small portions of wine before deciding on order. At opening were (left to right) Vic Woodland, general manager of liquor control and licencing; Patti Ballard, Mair's secretary; Mair; Mrs. Ken King, wife of the hotel's general manager; Larry Watling, hotel manager.

Bus Passes On Again For UVic

B.C. Hydro today announced it will reinstate the university bus pass, starting in September.

The pass was cancelled by B.C. Hydro in the spring because, the company said, students were not interested.

Protests were lodged by the University of Victoria administration and students council and the pass has been reinstated on a one-year trial basis.

Dean Trevor Matthews said the decision could be significant to the future of the university landscape if the experiment can be made to be a success this time.

"If more students will use the buses we will not have to turn the university into a blacktop campus. The cost saving would also be important."

The pass allows university students to have unlimited bus travel in the Greater Victoria area for one semester of 14 weeks. The price is $40. Actually B.C. Hydro charges $44 but the university and students' council jointly subsidize the $4 portion. They also absorb all administration costs of the bus pass system.

The pass was introduced last fall and 964 were sold. When the second pass went on sale after Christmas, the number of students buying them declined to under 900 and B.C. Hydro subsequently announced there was not enough interest to continue the pass.

The university and students' council conducted surveys among those students who did not renew the pass and found that a large portion had met someone who had a car and therefore had moved into a car pool.

Matthews said he is hopeful that more than 1,000 passes will be sold in September to prove to B.C. Hydro the demand is there.

"Anything we can do to reduce the amount of car traffic will be beneficial to the university and to the city as a whole. We feel there will be a greater emphasis on public transportation in the very near future and we should be taking the lead in this."

Unless more students take the bus, the university will soon have to begin constructing a new parking lot to handle the demand.

"We don't know if we will be able to sell 1,000 passes but it won't be for lack of trying. We hope the students will support us in this," Matthews said.

No Rent Funds For City

An additional $15.2 million has been made available to British Columbia branches of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation under the assisted rental program, but none will be spent in Victoria which has surplus apartment accommodation.

Victoria CMHC spokesman Ray Pitt said the funds will be diverted to B.C. areas which still have a shortage of rental units.

Funds would be available to Victoria when the need becomes evident but it is not clear how soon that will be, he said.

Under the program, CMHC makes an interest-free loan to a builder but rents are controlled until the loan is paid back in full.

Pair Faces Charges

A Saanich couple was to appear in court later today after a Colwood doctor's office was broken into overnight and drugs and a book taken.

Colwood RCMP said Charles William Kariam, 24, and Nancy Lynn Doerges, 18, will probably face charges of break, enter and theft and possession of stolen property.

They were arrested in a car on Wishart Road early today after a security guard had earlier reported a suspicious vehicle beside the office of Dr. Robert Pledger at 3320 Metchosin Road.

The same doctor was the victim of an armed robbery a few months ago in which drugs were taken.

Police said today that a rear door had been forced open and a small quantity of a local anesthetic and a manual on drugs were missing.

Another girl was in the car when the arrests were made but has not yet been charged.

Last-Ditch Bid: Crystal for $1

In what appears to be a last despairing bid to solve its dilemma over the Crystal Garden's future, the city of Victoria has offered the dilapidated building to the provincial government for $1.

Mayor Mike Young said following Thursday's council meeting that Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf has promised to take the proposal to the provincial cabinet at an early date.

Young said city representatives had discussed the matter with Bawlf over the last two months, and came to the conclusion that the city cannot finance the Crystal Garden's reconstruction.

Under the draft terms of the offer, read to council on Thursday, the government would agree to restore the building, preferably as a public arboretum (in keeping with earlier restoration plans which the city had to shelve), and retain the structure in public ownership.

Alternatively, if the building is not occupied by the Crown, any tenancy would be restricted to uses permitted in the city's zoning bylaw.

When Bawlf was a Victoria alderman he was the strongest advocate of saving the Crystal, and it was he who persuaded his council colleagues at that time to think in terms of an aboretum.

Contract Extension Rejected

The city of Victoria's inside workers Thursday night rejected an offer from the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association to extend their present one-year contract to two years, which would have placed them on the same footing as six other Canadian Union of Public Employees locals.

At the meeting of CUPE local 388, the GVLRA's offer was turned down by a 57-to-2 vote.

President Rick Doyle said today the main reasons for rejection were the uncertainty surrounding the future of the Anti-Inflation Board, and the membership's feeling that "we have a better contract than the JNC (joint negotiating committee of the other locals) settled for."

"It seemed to us that one year is better than two years when the AIB could be dropped in the fall," he added.

Saving Jones Building Not Viable, Says Bank

The Royal Bank has told the local Hallmark Society that its appeal to save all or part of the old Jones Building is not viable.

The society, in company with some other community groups, had appealed to the bank to incorporate at least the facade of the 65-year-old structure in plans for the bank's new headquarters at Fort and Douglas.

In a letter to society president Pim Manning received Thursday, W. Earl McLaughlin, chairman and chief executive officer of the bank in Montreal, wrote: "The consensus of the professional view is that, due to a number of factors, your suggestion that we make the facade of the Jones Building an integral part of the over-all complex is not viable."

Principal reasons are that the structure, mechanics and wiring of the building can't be "recycled" to meet regulations and still be a viable project, McLaughlin wrote.

"Further, energy conservation and public safety requirements cannot be met if the building undergoes major structural alterations.

"Of no less importance is the question of architectural integrity of the development."

McLaughlin said a demolition contract has been awarded.

"Notwithstanding our differing points of view, I feel confident that when the project is completed you will agree that a tasteful landmark has been added to the Victoria scene."

A spokesman for the Jones Building coalition, representing several groups pledged to saving the building, asked Victoria city council Thursday to intercede with the Royal Bank.

Charles Ball said the city should urge the bank to consider the society's proposal but Mayor Mike Young said he thought it was too late, considering a demolition permit had already been issued.

But the mayor said he hoped the bank had "exhausted every possibility in determining that the building cannot be saved."

Wallace Apologizes

Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace has apologized for his earlier criticism of two Greater Victoria high schools, saying he had relied on information which proved inaccurate and exaggerated.

"I made a serious mistake. I very much regret it," he said today and added that he wants to apologize to teachers, students and others affected by his remarks.

In the legislature Wednesday Wallace said discipline at two schools, Spectrum and Lambrick Park, was lax and quality of education poor.

Spectrum principal Wally Russell later branded Wallace's remarks as foolish and said the MLA didn't know what he was talking about.

Wallace said having been told unfavorable things about the schools, he had tried to check it out with people directly involved but had not been able to reach them before the matter came up in the house.

His apology is also directed at the principals of the two schools.

"While there is clearly an honest difference of opinion within the education system as to differing styles of teaching and types of schools, the comments I made regarding Spectrum and Lambrick Park were not in keeping with the facts, and I very much regret the distress my remarks have caused the principals, students and teachers of those schools," he said.

Tentative Accord

A tentative agreement on a two-year contract has been reached by Camuson College and CUPE Local 2081, the two parties announced Thursday.

The tentative settlement covers nine outstanding issues — none of them monetary — and was reached at 4:30 p.m. after an all-day session with mediator Clark Gilmour.

CUPE also agreed to drop an unfair labor practice charge it had filed with the Labor Relations Board after the college council had rejected an earlier agreement on the grounds that the person negotiating for Camosum wasn't authorized to make final commitments.

The agreement now goes to the college council and the union local's 80 clerical and support staff for ratification.

STYLE OF LIVING BRINGS DISEASES

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (Ap) — "We are caught in the 'lifestyle' diseases," says Dr. Mary McLaughlin, director of community medicine at Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Centre.

"Heart disease and accidents, two major killers, can to traced to a great degree to lifestyle," she says. "One's mode of living is probably primary in the case of emphysema, cirrhosis and at least two types of cancer. It is also a basic factor in venereal disease, in alcoholism, in obesity, in the ills resulting from drug abuse."

Lifestyle plays a primary or contributory role in chronic aliments such as mental illness, ulcer, diabetes, and, in the case of stroke, it is an important element, she adds.

"We need to dust off some of the old-fashioned, common sense health rules even though this may require some radical changes in the way we live," says the physician, former commissioner of health for New York City and later commissioner of health for Suffolk County.

AFTERNOON AND EVENING CLASSES IN INTERIOR DECORATING

Joseph Egoyan

Once again the fascinating study of interior decorating will be introduced to you by theoretical and practical analysis. These lectures will be held in the store and also supplemented by on-location studies in selected homes including a visit to the residence of Mr. Egoyan to discuss the problems arising in furniture arrangement, color schemes, lighting, styles, theme, drapery and carpet selection, and proper use of pictures and accessories.

Mr. Joseph Egoyan, B.A. ED., your instructor, is well qualified with extensive theoretical and practical knowledge. He is a graduate from the Art Institute of Chicago and the California College of arts and Crafts; has taught at Oakland Tech High Calif., the American College in Cairo and the Evening Adult Education program in Victoria. In addition, he has a wealth of practical experience in retail field as proprietor of Ego Arts Gallery in Cairo for five years, and Ego Interiors in Victoria for sixteen years. Mr. Egoyan is a qualified artist and has exhibited his art works in a number of one-man shows in the U.A.R. and U.S.A. He won first prize in Vancouver Island Jury Show at the Art Gallery of Victoria, also a one-man show theme "BIRDS" was displayed at The Victoria Provincial Museum, The Burnaby Art Gallery and is now at Ego Interiors.

For the past thirteen years this course in interior decorating has been given by Mr. Egoyan twice yearly in three separate classes each week. At an average of twenty students in each class, more than a thousand students have taken the course to date.

THE CLASSES WILL BE HELD TUESDAY AFTERNOONS FROM 1 TO 2:30 P.M. AND ALSO EVENINGS ON MONDAY OR WEDNESDAY, 7:30 TO 9 P.M.

CLASSES START SEPT. 26th, 27th and 28th AT EGO INTERIORS. TOTAL COST OF SIX LECTURES ONCE A WEEK, $25.00.

Foetus Feels Outer Stress

LONDON (UPI)— Prof. D. H. Stott thinks he may have found an answer to one of the social puzzles of our time and it seems to bear out an Old Wives' tale that what happens to a pregnant woman emotionally affects the child in her womb.

Stott said that Sir Keith Joseph, a leading Conservative Party politician in Britain, had once challenged social scientists to explain why a cycle of social, biological and even mental incompetence showed up in certain families generation after generation.

Since there did not apear to be any demonstrable genetic or postnatal basis for this inheritance of misfortune, Stott reported in an article in New Society, he ventured "on the tricky ground of prenatal influences."

With the co-operation of health officers in Glasgow and Lanarkshire in Scotland, a sample of children born in these localities was observed for up to four yars.

Stott said they found that injuries suffered by the mother-to-be during pregnancy, providing they did not damage the child-bearing organs, were not related to ill-health in the child.

"What did emerge with surprising significance was that the great majority of the mothers who had suffered from interpersonal tensions during their pregnancies had exceedingly unhealthy children," said Stott, who was professor of psychology at Guelph University in Ontario.

"The most damaging types of such stress were marital discord, tensions with other members of the family and, to a lesser degree, quarrels with the neighbor. When the pregnant woman was subjected to continuous or recurrent serious interpersonal tensions to which she could find no solution, the child ran twice the usual risk of handicap in health development or behavior.

"It could not be explained by birth complications, prematurity or postnatal differences."

Stott said there were slightly more cases of affected children among the poor, and poverty is obviously a cause of stress. But this did not mean that it was poverty itself that had caused the handicaps.

Subsequent research in Canada tended to support this theory, Stott said. He found, for example, that a mother's bronchitis during pregnancy resulted in her child being, on average, 53 per cent more prone to a variety of handicaps.

Grammar School Hangs On

LONDON (CP) — At old-fashioned Marylebone Grammar School the boys still wear ties and blazers, the masters wear old-fashioned gowns and mortar boards and the old-fashioned Head sometimes lays his old-fashioned cane across the seat of recalcitrant students.

Founded in 1792, the school is now the storm centre of a last-ditch stand against England's old-fashioned grammar schools being converted into state-operated comprehensive schools.

The stand is being taken by parents who want their sons educated in the boys-only grammar school rather than in co-educational comprehensives, where dress and discipline are more relaxed.

Three previous attempts to merge Marylebone Grammar School with larger state schools in the area have been fought off by angry parents backed by the grammar school governors. Now there is a threat that Marylebone Grammar School may close altogether.

"We lived in Canada until recently," said Mrs. Elizabeth Rimmer, the mother of two boys at the grammar school.

"Frankly we didn't like the school system there. They were too casual about dress and there was too much familiarity between the sexes.

"Our boys are doing well at the grammar school and we don't want them pushed into another co-educational school."

Halston Cuts Bottoms Off His Fall Fashions

By BERNADINE MORRIS
New York Times

NEW YORK — "We left off the bottoms," a Halston associate expained a few weeks ago when the designer showed has fall collection on Seventh Avenue. That's the collection that goes to stores all over the country. The mannequins almost always wore heavy knitted tights with short tunic tops.

Halson recently presented his made-to-order collection in his salon on Madison Avenue. It's where his private clients shop for clothes that are fitted to them personally. The likes of Elizabeth Taylor, you know, and Barbara Paley, who is said to be the chicquest of all, and Martha Graham, and women whose names never hit the papers, unless they happen to be photographed wearing something Halson.

There were even more tunic tops and they looked even better because they were in cashmere. Soft and luscious they were, and always worn with tights that were also knitted in cashmere.

Back in 1974 when Halston had another go at reviving short skirts he called them "the skimp" and likened them to Florentine tunics. They didn't make it that time, but nothing in fashion goes to waste — if you wait long enough.

And so the tunics are with us again, and it looks as if this time around they'll catch. Halston doesn't have a pet name for them this time. In fact, looking slightly puzzled, he says, "I don't have a name for them." He refers to them as "short tops" and believes they're "good for everything."

Quite right, if your figure is fine and your legs are superb, and it might help to be 20 years old. Kissing cousin to the cashmere tunics and tights are the satin ones with skinny pants. They're for evening, of course, and you throw a fluffy fox jacket over them and you're ready for a night on the town. Don't have to worry about catching your skirt in taxi doors or anything like that.

Now, it isn't all pipe-stem legs and easy tops at Halston for fall. At those special parties, women will need evening dresses too. The designer provides togalike affairs that tie on one shoulder.

Halston's leggy look for fall

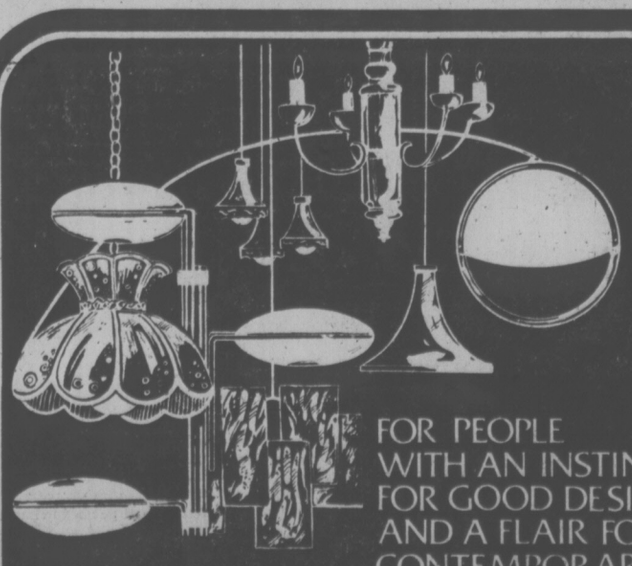

For ample figures, there are chiffon caftans, lifted a little in front to show the legs, and an assortment of dresses that look as if they were made of cloth of gold or cloth of silver. Then, for real drama, there are knitted cashmere union suits. You wear them with a cahsmere coat and a stole to wrap around. Purple is a nice color.

Marisol, the sculptor, managed to pull her eyes away from the purple union suit. It was the purple fox coat she coveted, she said at the show. The one with the fox tails hanging down over the hem, she added.

Cooling a Home All Over

caveat emptor

By LYNNE GORDON
Toronto Sun Syndicate

For those people really sold on home air conditioning, a room model may not be the total answer to climate control. Room air conditioners can be noisy and dirt tends to get by them unless the unit is installed through a wall. And also consider price — if you want an entire house cooled, several separate units may cost more than one central system.

The most common kind of central unit is a "split system," which is connected to your forced air heating system. The air cooled condenser is installed outside the home and connected to a cooling coil installed on the top of your furnace. You can use the "split" unit if you have hot water heating, but it means putting in a network of ducts which may well double the price of the installation.

Since the condenser is out of the house, this kind of system may be noisy and won't work well if the temperature is cool — some models become ineffective if the temperature dips below 55 degrees F.

A water-cooled system is much quieter to operate, since the condenser is located inside the house and can be used even when the temperature is lower than 55 degrees. However, not all municipalities allow this kind of system because of wasted water. Others allow their use, but stipulate that the water must be re-circulated and re-used on the garden or lawn.

As with a room air conditioner, several factors affect the size of the unit you select for your home and the price you will pay. Charts do exist that list the number of BTU's required to cool so many thousand square feet, but these are ideal conditions, and you should take other things into account when making a selection. For example: How good is your insulation? Do you have a black roof that will absorb more heat? How many windows do you have, and do they face south and west?

Since the heating and cooling systems are inter-related, some extra maintenance measures may be needed to keep the system in good working order — removing debris from ducts, checking the fan belt and changing the furnace filter regularly are some of the ways to improve your cooling system, your winter heating system, and conserve energy.

A central system may be ideal for your home and your lifestyle, and one dealer told me that the installation is almost like a home improvement and may substantially add to the resale value of your home. But stop and figure out what you really need — do you like to sleep in cool comfort during the night, but like the fresh summer breezes during the day? If that's the case, maybe a room model located in the bedroom is more suited to your comfort and lifestyle. And how much do you want to pay? Two room air conditioners — even used models — may do the trick and keep you calm, cool and collected for the rest of the summer.

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a bachelor who lives alone in my building. I'm a divorcee also living alone. It all started with a "good morning" when we were both walking our dogs. (He has two.)

Pretty soon he asked me to walk his dogs while walking my own. Then he started coming after work every evening for a drink. I invited him to dinner several times and we'd watch TV, play backgammon and neck a little. He seems to like me but he never invited me out. Meanwhile I fell for him—but hard!

Two months ago he said he was going away for the weekend, and I was sure he was going to ask me to go along, but instead he asked me to keep his dogs!

When he came back for the dogs he spent the night with me. After that I couldn't get him off my mind.

Now he goes away every weekend and leaves his dogs with me, and when he comes back, he stays all night. He's driving me crazy. I told him I was in love with him, but he's never committed himself. How can I get him interested in me? I feel a 40-year-old teenager. — FORTY AND FOOLISH

DEAR FOOLISH: As I see it, your neighbor sleeps with you occasionally in exchange for your looking after his dogs. It's a good deal for him, but a dog's life for you. There's no way you can get him "interested" in you. Break it off now. The longer you wait the more painful it will be.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a person who can't pass a mirror without taking a good long look at herself? Wouldn't you say that she was very conceited?—WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Not necessarily. She could be exactly the opposite. Very insecure.

DEAR ABBY: A widowed friend of mine is 50, very wealthy, very attractive and a lovely woman. She recently confided that she longs to marry but can't seem to attract a man.

I ache to tell her that the strikingly snow-white hair she takes enormous pride in WAS an asset when she was in her 30s and was prematurely grey, but now it makes her look like an old woman.

She hasn't asked for my advice and is oblivious to my hints, yet she keeps suggesting that I introduce her to my eligible friends her age. I know that these men think she is too "old" for them because of her white hair.

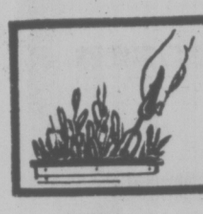

She still thinks that like Samson her strength lies in her hair. Dare I destroy her self-image for "her own good"? — HER CONFIDANT.

DEAR CONFIDANT: If she doesn't ask for your advice, don't offer any. There just may be some men who LIKE white hair on women.

Let Your Pumpkins Sprawl Up

indoor gardens

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

How do you grow sprawled-out pumpkin vines on a cramped, suburban lot? Make them sprawl up, the way MOTHER reader Patrick Fanning of Richmond, Calif., does!

My wife and I always wanted to grow pumpkins, but the size of our yard (20'x30') made it seem impossible. Last summer, though, we raised pumpkins in spite of ourselves!

It started when the seeds from our Halloween jack-o'-lantern found their way into our compost pile. Naturally, we expected the heat of decomposition to kill the seeds. Instead, a series of winter rains kept the pile of wastes from heating up as it should have.

In the spring — after applying the soggy mulch-compost to our plants — we began to see little pumpkin vines popping up all over!

We pulled dozens of the seedlings, but one vine — hidden behind our peas — escaped notice. When the peas finally gave out in June, we discovered the vine thriving underneath.

Rather than uproot it, we decided to see if we could coax the vine into growing upwards rather than outwards.

To do this, we drove a spike into the eaves of our patio roof, looped a hunk of manila rope over the nail and tied the two longest pumpkin runners to the ends with a rag.

We found it necessary every few days to tie the growing ends of the vines to the rope with strips of rag to keep the plant from flopping over and heading for the ground again.

The higher the plants got, the faster they grew. By the Fourth of July, the two original vines had travelled three feet along the ground and eight feet straight up to the patio roof.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

Dear Lynn and Joel: My Aralia is in trouble. It was happy all winter and now that spring is here, all the leaves have fallen off. What can the matter be? — J.W.

Dear J.W.: The aralia (Dizygotheca elegantissima) is considered by some a difficult plant to grow indoors. They are temperamental and will drop their leaves from time to time, especially if there's a change in the environment. Ours dropped all its leaves when it was moved from one side of the room to another. It now resides happily outdoors, where it has grown three feet, and has toughened up.

Everyone like the elegantissima and it is a popular plant in spite of its temperament, judging by the number of questions we're asked about its care. The biggest problem, as with many houseplants, is the lack of humidity indoors, especially during the winter when the heat is on. Mist the plant frequently, and of course a tray of moist pebbles is recommended. The aralia needs very bright light and water when the soil feels dryish. A friend had hers growing in a teacup for a few years and it looked like a Bonsai. Don't worry about transplanting — they like to be in close quarters, nice and cozy.

When the plant becomes leggy, simply cut it to a desirable level and new leaves will eventually sprout near the point of cut.

The dizogetheca elegantissima resembles cannibus sativa (marijuana), but smoking it is not recommended.

ABORTIONS PASS BIRTH

NEW YORK (AP)— There were more abortions than births during 1975 in New York City, the New York department of health says. There were 106,317 abortions during 1975, compared with 105,249 live births. Among New York City women who became pregnant during 1975, the health department found that 46 per cent sought abortions.

your health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I am newly married. I am 28. I am taking a contraceptive pill. I smoke about a pack a day. I can't get it clear if the combination of the pill and tobacco is dangerous. My husband says "yes". My friends say "no." Now I want a doctor's opinion. — Mrs. G.

Dear Mrs. G.:

My first reaction to your concern is that your husband and your friends, all well-meaning, are not an adequate substitute for the information you might have quickly obtained from your own doctor.

As a medical columnist, my function is to reinforce the message of your doctor, rather than to substitute for it.

Recent reports indicate that the combination of the contraceptive pill and tobacco invites a rather severe risk of eventual heart attacks known as "myocardial infarctions."

A well-documented British study states, "Women between the ages of 40 and 44 who neither smoke nor take 'the pill' have a 7-in-100,000 chance of experiencing a fatal heart attack in any year.

"For non-smokers who are taking the pill, the risk rises to 10-in-100,000. And for smokers NOT taking the pill it's 16 per 100,000.

"But when smokers in this age group also take the pill their risk climbs sharply to 50 per 100,000. And for heavy smokers (15 cigarettes a day or more) the risk is 83 per 100,000."

Women in your age group, and in the thirties, show similar relative risks, even though the hazards are reduced by about one-third.

Read and re-read these statistics. They are obvious and tell a dramatic story. The choice is yours. If you want to maintain good health and reduce the possibility of a heart attack, either stop smoking or stop using the pill. The combination is a treacherous one.

I heard that French people do not have virus infections because they drink so much wine. Is this true?—Mr. M.M.

Dear Mr. M.:

Only recently, a group of Canadian research workers reported that grapes, grape juice, raisins and wine all had the ability to kill certain viruses. However, they pointed out that grapes and grape juice proved stronger virus killers than wine. So there's no need to become a 'wino'!

These scientists attribute this special capacity to the presence of tannic acid and phenols that are found in grapes. The exact anti-viral mechanism is not yet known.

Drug Roust Couple Sue

VANCOUVER — A couple from Surrey who said they were assaulted July 13 when police mistook them for drug suspects, Thursday filed a suit for damages against the arresting officers.

Gerald and Sharon Schuck filed a writ in British Columbia Supreme Court, seeking general and punitive damages claiming arrest without lawful justification, false imprisonment and assault.

YELLOWKNIFE — Prince Andrew returned here tanned and healthy Thursday afternoon following a two-week canoe trip down the Coppermine River with four Ontario school friends. Terry Guest, headmaster of Lakefield College School where the prince had studied since January, said the 300-mile voyage was completely successful. The five teenagers were accompanied by Guest, another teacher and an RCMP officer. The trip started two weeks ago at Point Lake, 200 miles north of Yelowknife, and ended at the Inuit community of Coppermine on the Arctic coast.

DOVER — Texan Tom Hetzel has swum the Channel for the eighth time, making the 22-mile crossing to France in 13 hours 59 minutes. Hetzel, 41, who teaches police studies in Corpus Christi, returned to Dover Thursday by boat after completing his crossing.

MADISON, Wis. — Nancl Nelson has placed a $15,000 price tag on a stolen kiss. Nelson, a legal secretary, filed suit Thursday seeking $15,000 in damages from Jeffery Weber, who she says broke into her Madison apartment and stole at least one kiss. Miss Nelson charged that she awoke the night of June 18 to find Weber, a Madison construction worker, in her bed trying to kiss her. She said she got out of bed and told Weber to get out of her apartment. The suit said Weber went to the door but refused to leave without a kiss. When Miss Nelson refused to kiss him, the suit said, Weber grabbed her, kissed her and left. Nelson is asking $5,000 actual damages and $10,000 punitive damages.

LOS ANGELES—Traditionally, any fireman receiving a promotion is expected to buy ice cream for colleagues in his firehouse, but John Gerard has carried the tradition to new heights. Gerard, who took over this week as fire chief, bought enough ice cream for everyone in the department — 3,000 persons — and had it delivered to firehouses throughout the city. A spokesman said the bill is strictly the new chief's personal expense.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Alan Ladd Jr., son of the late movie star, has been elected to the board of directors of Twentieth Century Fox Corp. Ladd is president of the corporation's feature film group, which produced the movie Star Wars. Earnings for the second quarter of the year, when the movie was released, jumped to $5.8 million, compared to a loss of almost $1 million in the same quarter last year. The movie, which may become the most profitable ever made, has grossed $66 million so far.

LONDON — The rock music group Led Zeppelin has cancelled the last 10 concerts of its trouble-plagued U.S. tour following the death of singer Robert Plant's five-year-old son Karac, a spokesman said Thursday. Plant, 20, flew to his farm near Kidderminster in the English midlands from New Orleans, La., after his wife Maureen telephoned him with news of the tragedy. Spokesman Moira Bellas said Karac was stricken by an unknown illness last week and collapsed Monday. Doctors decided to place him in hospital, but he died before they could do anything. Plant's other child, eight-year-old Carmen, was not affected by the illness, the spokesman said.

His Dream Comes True

KELOWNA — Kelowna businessman Douglas Mervyn has bought the historic 30,000-acre Alkali Lake Ranch, 25 miles southwest of Williams Lake, for a reported $3 million.

Mervyn, 43, who developed the Big White Ski area here, will move his family into the ranch in September.

Mervyn said at the British Columbia Cattleman's Association meeting in May that he was interested in buying a ranch to fulfill his childhood dreams.

He said then that his two greatest ambitions were to develop a ski area and own a ranch.

CROFTON GROUP FIGHTS N-PLANT

CROFTON — A group here is fighting a proposal by Puget Power and Light company to build two nuclear reactors 50 miles east of Victoria in Washington state.

The group has obtained 2,000 names on a petition opposing the plants on the Skagit River at Sedro Woolley. Puget Sound Power plans two reactors, each capable to 1,280 megawatts, which were to have started this summer but have been delayed by protests.

A brief on behalf of the Crofton group was represented at a hearing of the U.S. nuclear regulatory commission in Seattle by Hilda Kellington of the Cowichan Valley.

The brief noted that a U.S. study found an area running west from Bamfield and Port Alberni, north to Pemberton and east to Princeton would suffer radiation damage in the event of a major accident. Vancouver and Victoria are included in the area.

Kellington stressed the need to develop solar and other forms of energy.

Dead at 124

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AFP) — Maria Saturnia Garcia, reported to be 124 years old, has died in Montevideo, where she is said to have been born. Reports said Miss Garcia had retired from housekeeping after turning 100 only at the insistence of her family. She was a non-smoking teetotaller who enjoyed Italian pasta and watched television without glasses until the end.

Bastion Schedules 5 Big Events

After several months of searching and planning, Bastion artistic director Ed Stephenson has announced from Toronto five mainstage events which add up to a season of premieres at the McPherson Playhouse.

Opening on Oct. 7 will be the world premiere of Victoria author Ron Chudley's After Abraham. Principal characters are the two historic generals, Wolfe and Montcalm, involved in the situation surrounding the 1729 battle on the Plains of Abraham. Stephenson feels this is an apt selection.

The Canadian premiere of the play, The Runner Stumbles, will follow on Nov. 4, and the comedy, The Girl in the Freudian Slip, a West Coast premiere, will entertain Bastion audiences for the Christmas season, starting Dec. 23.

Another West Coast premiere, the English play, Comedians, comes in February.

A play described by Stephenson as "a marvellous comedy" will be the third West Coast premiere. It's by Maxine Fleischman and its title is And Nothing But .... It will open in March.

All the plays will have an extended run of two weeks next season. Bastion subscriptions are available now on a first-come, first-served basis. They can be ordered by phone, 386-8301, or at the Bastion office, 1002 Wharf.

Bastion executives have announced that Peggy Keenan Hodgins has joined the staff as public relations director. A writer with an active interest in the arts, Mrs. Hodgins has 20 years experience as a broadcast, advertising and public relations executive in Canada.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

One of our nation's bridge luminaries is Tobias Stone, of New York City. In partnership with Alvin Roth, Stone developed the Roth-Stone System of bidding, which is employed by many tournament players.

Stone is an excellent player of the cards, both as declarer and defender. In today's deal, he gave a fine exhibition of imaginative defensive play. The hand arose in a total-point team-of-four match, in which the play is akin to rubber bridge. He was sitting East.

Neither side vulnerable. East deals.

◇ J
♣ 10 9 7 3

WEST	EAST
♠ 9 6 4	♠ K 10 8 3
♡ 9 6 5 3	♡ 8 2
◇ 9 7 5 2	◇ A 10 6 4

SOUTH
♡ A
◇ K Q 8 3
♣ J 6 4 2

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ◇	Pass	Pass	2 ♡
Pass	3 NT	Pass	Pass Pass

Opening lead: Two of ◇.

Stone won the opening diamond lead with his ace and took a time-out to analyze the situation. Based on the bidding — especially South's jump to three no-trump — South figured to have just about every outstanding high card. And, of course, the ace of hearts was one of those cards.

If South had either the A-x or the A-x-x of hearts, his contract figured to be unbeatable. In this case declarer would make the ace of spades, six hearts, and if he had the king and queen of diamonds — which he rated to have — he would have nine tricks. There was one hope for the defenders, as Stone viewed it: that was for declarer to have the singleton ace of hearts.

And so, playing on this assumption, at trick two Stone plunked down the spade king! When dummy captured this lead with the ace, declarer now had three spade tricks. But, simultaneously, he had just lost five heart tricks, since the sole outside entry to dummy had been knocked out. The only heart trick that declarer made was his ace. When play had ended, it was two tricks short of his contract.

If Stone, at trick two, had made the normal return of a diamond (hoping that his partner possessed either the king or queen), declarer would have waltzed in with his contract. He would have captured the diamond lead with his queen, and cashed the king of diamonds and the ace of hearts. He would next have entered dummy via the spade ace, and taken five more heart tricks. But Stone's superlative defensive play at trick two gave declarer no control over his destiny.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, July 30

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Money, friendship, eccentric proposals all seem to blend. Capricorn, Cancer and Aquarius figure in important ways. Older individual will lecture you concerning love, money and health. Don't dissent. You get more with honey than . . . and you know the rest. Act as if aware!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Culmination of experiment, sales effort, personal campaign is indicated. Key is to know when the final scene is being played. Avoid hanging on for nothing. Be proud of achievements — refuse to acquiesce to situation which would humiliate and take away from your potential.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Highlight romance, creativity, love, new starts, independence. Recent "back problem" can be alleviated. Relax! Accent on travel, taking notes, submitting for format. You gain wider recognition — perhaps in spite of yourself! (Yes, you've been difficult in recent days.)

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You get hunch which, if you follow it, could be profitable. Teacher tells you what you need to know. If you overcome false pride, you'll benefit. Emphasis on other people's money, including partner, mate. Yes, the dispute will be resolved, but you do owe an apology.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What you do may seem to be akin to a voice in the wind. But you are making contacts for future. Be wary concerning one who makes grandiose promises. Legal methods, rights, permissions are vety much a part of scenario.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Full Moon position, aspects coincide now with special study, unique service, ability to stick with project until you perceive ultimate goal. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio individuals figure prominently — so does the number "4".

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be direct, express yourself — get to heart of matters. Emotions tend to dominate — love is very much in picture. Check tendency to be extravagant. Gemini, Virgo individuals play roles in your personal scenario. Change, travel, writing, children, variety crowd way into your busy world.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Credentials are "tested." Accent on building on solid base. Taurus, Libra persons figure in scenario. Property, home, domestic life grab spotlight. Budget needs scrutiny. Family member makes major concession.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Secret is revealed. What had been lost, misplaced or hidden will be discovered. Relative aides. See as is, not merely as you might be directed by wishful thinking. You're able to perfect techniques, to express yourself in a more interesting manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money, personal possessions, special collections are featured. You get organized. You contact individual with excellent track-record. Means you are in touch with authority, with person whose experience enables you to do the best for yourself. Answer is affirmative.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lunar cycle is such that obstacles boomerang in your favor. Apparent adversity works to your advantage. Emphasis on personality, quick moves, adventure, the excitement of discovery. Elevation of prestige is indicated. Aries, Libra figure prominently — so does the number "9".

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Highlight initiative, creativity, capacity to love — and be loved. Specifically, what was a matter of dissent, doubt, fear comes into open. You'll be free! Light replaces darkness. Confidence shoves fear aside. Leo, Aquarius persons figure in picture.

IF JULY 30th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you have sparkling sense of humor you're very much conscious of appearance, weight. You are fond of travel' you're a natural entertainer — you're creative, artistic and high-strung. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. October could be a turning point for you in 1977, a year which has been filled with contradictions — promise, disillusionment, money, loss, love, grief. But, betinning with October, you'll be stronger financially and emotionally, too.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"That's an odd 4-digit number," said Don, pointing to his son's wallet. "and I don't mean because its digits total 12, the number of our house."

Harry smiled. "My new licence," he replied. "Sure it's an odd number, but what's special about that?"

"Look." Don jotted down the number on a scrap of paper. "Reverse the order of its digits and subtract from the original. Then reverse that new 4-digit number and subtract from itself. You get zero."

That did make it unique, so what was the number?

Thanks for idea to J. Nelson, Montreal, Quebec.

Shawnigan Artists Dazzle

By AUDREY JOHNSON, Times Staff

Noted American pianist Abbey Simon opened Thursday's International Festival concert at St. Michael's University School with the Bach-Busoni Organ Toccata, Adagio and Fugue in C Major and Beethoven's E major Sonata Op. 109.

Both works displayed Simon's technical mastery and musical competence but the Bach proved the most compelling of the two, both stylistically and in the clarity and definition with which its musical detail and character were projected.

Simon applied exactly the right amount of pedal to this originally organ composition, providing it with fully sustained sonority.

Canadian mezzo Phyllis Mailing, capably accompanied on the guitar by Javier Calderon, once more charmed her audience with the full spectrum of her rich voice in beautiful renderings of Renaissance songs from Spain and England.

Calderon's performance of an Albeniz group of Spanish songs forms translated to guitar was marked by the mellow sound an extreme sensitivity of touch this artist commands, and by clarity of character, style and technique.

Earlier in the week Ukrainian-Canadian Violinist Yuri Mazurkevich amazed his audience with the beauty of his tone and his fluent, at times spectacular technique in the performance of a famous virtuoso piece — Tartini's "Devil's Trill" Sonata.

This work in which he was supported at the piano by William Aide, contrasted strongly with the Bach G minor Sonata in which he proved himself an excellent interpreter of Bach. The overall quality of this musicianly playing made a few minor bowing flaws in the Fugue and Presto movements inconsequential.

A finely blended performance of impeccable precision marked the ensemble work of flautist Robert Aitken, violinist Dana Mazurkevich and violist Eberhard Klemmstein in Serenade in G major by Reger.

Mid-week concert programs in the Shawnigan Summer School-sponsored festival occasionally include contributions by one or more of the school's outstanding students. This week's two programs included highly promising piano student Beverly Short, who gave a dynamically well balanced performance of the Chopin Scherzo in B minor.

A nicely proportioned and blended presentation of Popper's Requiem for three cellos was played by students Suzanne Bass, Barry Gold and Carol Morrow. They were accompanied by pianist Kim Sook-Chung.

Sunday's concert at McPherson Playhouse at 8 p.m. will offer Schubert and Beethoven quartets by the school's outstanding faculty ensembles and solo numbers by Ms. Mailing and Yuri Mazurkevich.

Fisheries Head Named For Pacific

Dr. W. A. (Wally) Johnson has been appointed director-general of fisheries management for the Pacific region of the federal fisheries and environment departments.

Johnson, 54, has been acting director-general since April. Previously, he had been director of the Pacific biological station in Nanaimo.

Born in Osseo, Wisc., Johnson joined the Pacific biological station in 1955 where he conducted ecological studies of salmon-producing lakes. One of his publications received the 1962 North American Wildlife Society award as the year's outstanding publication in fish ecology and management.

At Least Two Years Before Jetfoil Says Davis

Efforts to expedite a meeting with Washington State Ferry authorities will be made by members of his department, Transport Minister Jack Davis said in the legislature Thursday.

But the minister noted it would be at least two years before a contemplated jetfoil ferry service might be put into operation by the state-owned ferry system in neighboring Washington.

Davis spoke in reply to a question from Conservative leader Scott Wallace (Oak Bay), who wondered whether steps were being taken to speed up alternative service to the Princess Marguerite.

Wallace noted the government steamship had experienced an 18-per-cent drop in traffic and asked whether Davis was concerned about the possibility of further loss of traffic across Puget Sound and Juan de Fuca Strait when the 300-passenger Boeing jetfoil craft goes into service. Davis agreed that could happen.

Pianist's Style in Top Form

By AUDREY JOHNSON, Times Staff

The summer music series of chamber recitals presented by the University of Victoria concluded Thursday with a fine solo program by pianist and principal of the Conservatory of Music Robin Wood.

One of the busiest and most brilliant teachers in this area, Wood is often short of time for preparation of his all too occasional solo appearances, which is a pity for his gifts as a performer are rare.

Thursday provided an event when, rested and in top form, Wood's exceptional artistry was in full command throughout.

Qualities of imagination in producing lovely tonal shadings; an introspective communing with the spirit of the music, sensitive phrasing and perfectly balanced dynamics illuminated two Chopin Nocturnes — F major and C minor.

These were followed by Chopin's B minor Sonata where the same properties were matched by a scintillating virtuosity, powerful and rich tonal episodes all encompassed by a warm romantic spirit that is consistently tempered by itelligence and taste.

The program's highlight, following the captivating vivacity and brilliance of Poulenc's Mouvements Perpetuels and Toccata, was Samuel Barber's Sonata Op. 26. This is a splendid work, richly dramatic and rewardingly pianistic.

Wood's profound sense of the musical content, his technical mastery and command of tonal textures and colors and above all his never-failing artistry in balancing and shaping a performance to its musical demands, provided a satisfying interpretation.

The capacity audience in MacLaurin auditorium demanded and were given, several short, delightful encores.

Cross New Deputy

Gerald Cross has been appointed acting deputy provincial secretary, replacing L. J. Wallace who leaves for London next month to become agent-general for B.C. in Britian and Europe.

The appointment of Cross, director of civil law with the attorney-general's department, was made Thursday by Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy. Cross starts his new job today.

Cross was born in Victoria and educated at Lampson Street School, Oak Bay High and the University of British Columbia. He was called to the bar in 1948.

Wallace replaces Robert Strachan in London. Strachan, former highways minister in the NDP government, is retiring as agent-general after two years.

GARDENING
hilda beastall

An Ounce of Prevention . . .

The prevention of damage to food crops by certain insects is less time consuming, less expensive and certainly less harmful to everyone concerned than controls applied after an infestation is noticed.

Observation is needed but that is just a part of the pleasure of gardening. Take the cabbage white butterfly.

When we notice these hovering over the garden rows we know they are searching for the cabbage plants and all the close relatives such as broccoli, cauliflower. Eggs are laid singly on the underside of leaves, hatching out in a few days to the small light green caterpillar.

The butterflies apparently go by scent. By creating a counter scent stronger than cabbage scent, the confused insects have difficulty locating the cabbage rows. The small bright green caterpillars which chew away at cabbage leaves all night will emerge elsewhere, perhaps even on plants they cannot use as food.

What do we use as a repellant? Crushed mint leaves, dropped fresh on and between the cabbages every second day. Early in the morning is the best time, for it is then we notice the flight of white butterflies. Later in fall they disappear to hibernate as coccoons nearby.

Mint is a prolific grower. There is always plenty to spare and it has a refreshing odor to humans so there is nothing unpleasant in handling it.

The mint odor may also distract the carrot-rust fly from laying eggs at the crowns of young carrots. I haven't relied on it for that purpose, but have used another method.

Less pleasant than mint but apparently satisfactory as a repellant is the scheme of putting a piece of rag into a medium size can, without holes in sides or bottom, then pouring a teaspoon of kerosene or stove oil on the rag. Set a few cans among the carrots at about four foot intervals. Since there are no holes in the cans, no oil gets into the soil to contaminate either soil or carrots.

I found that a little water in the cans from sprinkling or a light shower seems to spread the odor of the oil further. When having a sprinkler on for long periods however, it is best to first collect the cans. Put them back when finished.

The carrot-rust fly has two to three hatches yearly at dates related to weather and other natural occurrences. It is a small creature that few of us can identify with certainty so that even though our carrots are clean and healthy we cannot be positive our method of control will hold for the entire season. We just know that the grubs have been absent from our carrots when we continue the preventive measure while the carrots are in the ground.

With late carrot sowings and winter cabbages (savoy and cauliflower) just planted, it will pay to take simple precautions to keep them healthy.

Petals Cheer Bhutto Return

ISLAMABAD (Reuter) — Former prime minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, ousted by an army coup earlier this month, was welcomed by several thousand people today when he arrived at his home in the southern Pakistani town of Larkana.

Supporters showered him with petals as he drove in procession the 18 miles from the airport after arriving by special plane.

The 49-year-old former prime minister was released by the army along with other leading politicians Thursday after 24 days of protective custody following the coup on July 5.

He and the 15 others had been held at an official government residence in the summer hill resort of Murree, northeast of here.

Bhutto has still not said whether he will contest an election that the army is organizing for October.

He said Thursday night he will spend a few days in Larkana before visiting Karachi and Lahore and summoning a executive committee meeting of his Pakistan People's party.

Bhutto said in an interview Thursday that the current crisis in Pakistan is as serious as that in 1971 during the secession of Bangladesh and the war with India.

Bhutto said that he has pledged not to question the army's justification for the coup either in the election campaign or otherwise.

The army took over after four months of political unrest that took about 350 lives. It began after Bhutto's political opponents accused his party of rigging the last election.

Indian Book Market Flooded With Exposes of Indira Rule

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — After 21 months of news restrictions, Indian publishers are flooding the market with books "exposing" former prime minister Indira Gandhi's tough emergency rule that ended with her shattering election defeat last March.

The books are described variously as "inside story," "indepth study," "investigative report," "a definitive account."

All are aimed at feeding the insatiable public hunger for stories about the state of emergency. But some Indian journalists criticize the speed with which they were written.

About 35 books already are on the market. A leading publisher estimates 30 others are in the pipeline.

Narendra Kumar of Vikas publishing house, who staged a publishing coup by printing the first book about the emergency, The Judgement by journalist Kuldip Nayar, says the credit should go to publishers rather than authors. "The best books about the emergency are yet to be written," he said.

Nayar's book leads the best-seller list and his publishers say that more than 72,000 copies of the hard-cover edition have been sold at the equivalent of $3.40 a copy.

The Judgement is also the most controversial of the "emergency books" and even Nayar hesitates to claim that it is the best of his several books.

But The Judgement is the most successful.

His publishers estimate that Nayar will net close to $55,100.

Maneka Gandhi, the former prime minister's daughter-in law, has accused Nayar of picking on her husband, Sanjay.

In an article in the illustrated weekly of India, she wrote: "In the book, The Judgement, large chunks are a figment of Mr. Nayar's muddled fantasies."

She quotes Nayar as telling her recently that he picked on her husband because Sanjay picked on him. "You hit me. I hit you," he is quoted as saying.

However, Nayar says this is "absolute rubbish" and that there is no truth in the allegations.

The growing controversy, however, is helping publishers sell the book.

Almost all the books have painted the former prime minister, her family and close associates in dark colors and Sanjay is portrayed as the one pulling strings behind the scene.

The former prime minister and her son have not yet reacted publicly to the books.

N-Testing Ban Talks Open October 3

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced Thursday that the United States, Britian and the Soviet Union will begin preliminary talks Oct. 3 aimed at completely banning all nuclear testings.

Carter also told a news conference broadcast across the country that he believes Israel's move to legalize settlements on former Arab lands in the West Bank area has set up "obstacles to peace." But he called them "obstacles which I think we can overcome."

He said he hopes the nuclear talks, to be held in Geneva, might lead to other countries also agreeing to ban all nuclear testing.

"It is my hope," he said, "that sufficient basis for agreement can be reached that all other nations of the world will join us in the ultimate prohibition against testing of nuclear devices."

More than 100 countries — including the United States, Soviet Union and Britian — have agreed not to explode any nuclear device above ground, underwater or in outer space. China is the only country currently exploding nuclear devices in the atmosphere.

Treaties also have been reached between the United States and the Soviet Union limiting the explosive power of undergraound atomic tests and banning underground tests except for peaceful purposes. However, the U.S. Senate has not yet ratified these agreements and they are not officially in effect.

There is no ban or pending ban on underground testing for peaceful purposes. Both the United States and the Soviet Union have exploded numerous underground bombs in recent years.

Other topics discussed during the 35-minute news conference included:

—The projected U.S. annual trade deficit of $25 billion is due wholly to oil imports and, in Carter's view, underscored the need for a national energy conservation program.

—Having interviewed six candidates to succeed Clarence Kelley as FBI director, the president said he feels no pressure to act quickly and "we reserve the right to interview more in the future if we like."

—Carter favors new congressional charters to spell out the responsibilities of the FBI and the Central Intelligence Agency.

—Despite planned fresh arms shipments to the Middle East, Carter remains committed to restraining arms sales and expects them to drop in the coming year.

PAY-OFF ON HOFFA?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI has information that organized crime figures and Teamsters union officials paid more than $250,000 to the Nixon administration to make sure that Jimmy Hoffa was kept out of the union when he got out of prison, it was reported today.

NBC-TV said federal investigators turned up the evidence while probing Hoffa's apparent abduction on July 30, 1975, from a suburban Detroit parking lot. The former Teamsters leader has not been seen or heard from since.

The network said the FBI learned that two separate payments were made to members of the Nixon administration to influence the decision to release Hoffa in 1971 but prohibit him from union activities.

Investigators reportedly have questioned former Nixon White House counsel Charles Colson, although Colson denies he was questioned, the report said.

They also want to question three other Watergate figures — White House advisers H. R. Haldeman and John Dean, and former Attorney General John Mitchell, NBC said.

The broadcast report said investigators also have asked the Carter administration for permission to question Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons, Hoffa's rival, and the administration is conducting a "high level inquiry" into the case.

Under the Ford administration, NBC said, investigators twice were ordered not to call Fitzsimmons before a federal grand jury investigating Hoffa's disappearance.

NBC said investigators believe they can show what happened to Hoffa if the administration allows them to pursue all of their leads.

Hoffa's son, James Hoffa Jr., told NBC the government needs to do much more to find out what happened to his father.

Nixon commuted Hoffa's 13-year sentence for jury tampering and mail fraud in 1971.

Arctic Gas Pipe Company Calls It Quits

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd., a multinational consortium of 15 petroleum and pipeline companies, said today it has abandoned its $140-million bid for a natural gas pipeline for the North.

William Wilder, company chairman, said "the technical and other resources" of the firm will be maintained for the time being to see whether it can make a contribution to the planning and construction of a rival pipeline project, Foothills Pipe Lines Ltd.

Earlier this month, the National Energy Board, the federal pipeline regulatory agency, rejected the Arctic Gas proposal for a pipeline through the Mackenzie River valley.

It recommended to government that the Foothills proposal for a pipeline along the Alaska Highway through the Yukon be selected intead to carry Alaskan gas to U.S. markets. A connecting link into the Mackenzie delta to move Canadian gas could be built sometime in the 1980s.

Wilder said eight U.S. member firms of Arctic Gas have advised him they now will support the Alaska Highway project through Foothills' U.S. partner, Northwest Pipeline Corp. of Salt Lake City, Utah.

He also said that the Canadian member firms of the consortium "have under consideration their possible future interest in the Canadian portion of the proposed system."

The company chairman said that while the technical resources of the firm will be maintained until it is decided whether they can be used by Foothills, there will be reductions in staff at both Canadian Arctic Gas and its U.S. affiliate Alaskan Arctic Gas.

The decision on the future of the company came at a meeting of its 15 member companies in Toronto Thursday.

While that meeting was taking place, a federal environmental panel released a preliminary report saying that the Foothills pipeline could be built thorugh the Yukon without seriously endangering the environment.

Meanwhile, the president of Shell Oil of Canada said Thursday that a federal environment department report that favors the Alaska Highway natural gas pipeline proposal is general and superficial.

Bill Daniel said the report can't be an in-depth environmental impact study because it was done during such a short period.

He added that, if Canada is not careful, there may be no pipeline in the north. He said the United States may choose a tanker route, by-passing Canada, leaving the country with no way to transport natural gas south.

JANITOR BLAMED IN FLOOD

TANNERYVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Many angry residents of this rural town, wrecked by last week's flood in the Johnstown area, blamed the caretaker of the Laurel Run Dam for not warning them of the pending disaster.

As friends and relatives helped search the rubble of destroyed homes for possessions worth salvaging, threats were directed at Timothy Lentz, who temporarily left town as talk turned violent.

"He did nothing to warn us," said Lloyd Reger before a bulldizer levelled what remained of his parents' home.

"He saw the dam cracking and he took his family to higher ground.

"He only saved himself when he saw that the water was already two feet over the flood gates and he couldn't get to them to open them."

The dam, however, has no flood gates. It has only a small pipe at its base which is supposed to help lower the water in the 100,000,000-gallon reservoir. Officials of the company that operates the dam say this is a slow process.

Attack On Vance Feared

United Press International

Diplomats in Cairo are concerned Libya may attack Secretary of State Cyrus Vance during his visit to Egypt next week even though the radical Arab nation has observed a cease-fire along the tense border.

Already strict security in effect for Vance's trip in search of an Arab-Israeli peace was tightened even further after six days of pitched border battles with Libya last week, officials said Thursday.

The fragile cease-fire declared by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Sunday held for a fifth day, but Libya had yet to accept either the truce or an Egyptian proposal for permanent peace along the 650-mile border.

BLEEDING has become something of a habit for Cyril Reeve (centre), who works in the ship repair unit at dockyard of Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt. He gave 100th donation earlier this month at Red Cross blood donor clinic, one of only 72 people to reach that record in 30-year history of such clinics. Congratulating him are Gerry Savage, clinic coordinator, and Florence Edwards of Vancouver, recruitment director. (Canadian Forces photo)

More Fires Threaten

Times News Services

A brush fire flamed through 1,000 acres of Southern California today, briefly putting to flight dozens of residents of Corona, even as homeowners in fire-devastated Santa Barbara got the bad new about their insurance.

Fire insurance policies outdated by inflation will cover only about half their losses — meaning some victims may never be able to rebuild their homes.

At least four fires burned throughout the region, tinder dry from two years of drought and a hot summer.

The most serious erupted in Tin Mine Canyon in the Cleveland National Forest about 45 miles east of Los Angeles. The blaze doubled in size every 10 minutes for the first two hours, menacing a rich citrus area and the southern outskirts of Corona, where fire officials ordered 25 homes evacuated for a period Thursday afternoon.

The fire destroyed at least one avocado grove and a barn and was still officially out of control today.

Meanwhile, in Lewiston, Idaho, a massive fire that roared through the Potlatch Corp. timber yards early today was brought under control at about 2 a.m. No injuries were reported.

The blaze started in the plant's hog fuel (wood chip) pile. At its height, flames leaped 300 feet into the air and could be seen 30 miles away in Moscow, Idaho.

Trident Base Stalled

BANGOR, Wash. (AP) — A carpenters' strike has done in less than a week wxat protesters failed to do for more than a year — slow construction at the Trident nuclear submarine base here.

Construction work has been cut by about 65 per cent because of the strike, which began Monday morning, a navy spokesman said, but added that the strike has not affected any critical operational schedules for the first submarine due to arrive in early 1979. The base is about 25 per cent completed.

Anti-nuclear submarine protesters have shown up at the base for months, distributing leaflets, trespassing, getting arrested and unsuccessfully trying to blunt the navy's headway in completing the project.

WHITE HOUSE WALLS HAVE EARS . . . TAILS

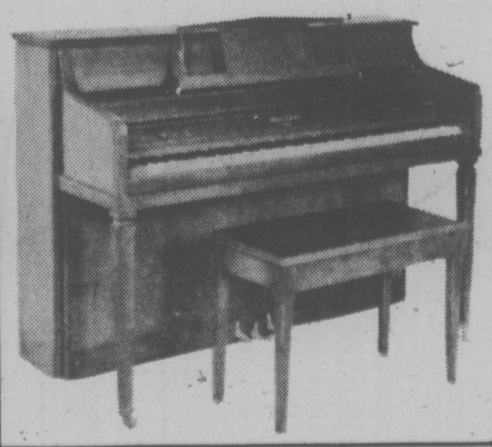

WASHINGTON (WPI) — The walls near the Oval Office of the White House have ears — and apparently feet and tails, too.

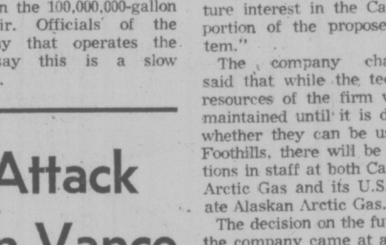

No one has told the president, and it is not known if he has noticed the patter of little paws in the walls, floors and ceilings in his working area. But the fact is that employees and visitors to the building have seen mice scampering up the drapes, inching up the electrical cords of the few remaining television sets, even darting across state room floors.

Nor is it only the sight and sound of the rodents that have captured observers' attention. Just before the arrival this week of Prime Minister Andreotti of Italy, a dead mouse, traced by its smell, was removed from the baseboard air ducts in an office near where the president works. Mice enter the ducts through gratings and then scatter to all corners of the mansion.

Actually, the White House apparently has never been without rodents. "The White House traditionally has had difficulty with the little tykes," says a spokesman in the office of the chief usher, although a major renovation of the White House in 1952 did significantly diminish the mouse population for a time.

White House mice, like other Washington mice, have traditionally been caught in traps. That was until a year or so ago, anyway, when environmentalists claimed that such traps were a cruel way to snuff out lives. Since then, insecticide spray has been used in areas of general concern, but traps are still set in specific areas where mice have been spotted.

LAST CONTROL TALKS

OTTAWA (CP) — Business and labor representatives meet today with Prime Minister Trudeau and other cabinet ministers for what will probably be the final joint consultation before the government announces a termination date for wage-and-price controls.

Among the dates mentioned are Oct. 14, the second anniversary of the program, and Jan. 1.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald has said he will probably set a target for the end of controls early in August.

Both big business and labor have been pressing for a quick end to the program at a time when the economy is ailing.

Cancer Exposure In Lake Swim

VANCOUVER (CP) — Okanagan health officials said Thursday they fear that people who ignored government warnings and swam in Skaha Lake immediately after application of the herbicide 2,4-D may have been exposed to a cancer-causing agent.

The herbicide was used in the lake last month to combat infestations of eurasian milfoil weed. Hundreds of swimmers used the beaches the next day, despite signs warning of the contaminated water.

Dr. David Clarke, medical officer of health for the south Okanagan health unit, said he is worried about the long term effects of exposure to the herbicide.

"Imagine the outcry if 2,4-D was used in the lower mainland's water supply at Cleveland dam."

Clarke said tests of the water found only negligible amounts of the chemical, but "guards should have been posted around the lake."

Jay Lewis, chairman of the Okanagan Environment Coalition, a group opposed to the use of the herbicide, said in a telephone interview that he saw hundreds of people break down fences around the signs and head into the water.

"We don't question the fact that it takes large doses of the chemical to cause problems, but no-one knows what the long term effects are," Lewis said.

Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said he has no reason to suspect the swimmers are in any danger, although he criticized them for ignoring government warnings.

"People will ignore health warnings on cigarette packages and stop signs on roads," he said. "There is only so much we can do to protect the public."

Nielsen said his department investigated the long term risks in the use of the chemical before its application and he rejected suggestions from Avery King, chairman of the Okanagan union board of health that local health officers had been ignored.

His department had received no requests for information since Jan. 26, Nielsen said.

King accused the government of "making a dictatorial" decision to use 2,4-D without letting locally-elected officials participate in the decision-making.

Seven Drown in the Grip Of Safety

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Lifejackets became deathjackets for seven handicapped persons on Thursday when a small pontoon boat flipped over on Lake Cowichan.

An RCMP spokesman said the seven, who were attending a summer camp run by the B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children, were trapped under the boat, unable to escape because of a wire mesh railing and the buoyancy of their lifejackets.

Names of six of the seven were released today.

They are Samuel Aubrey Hundleby, 48, and Linda Maria Poitras, 29, both of 936 Mt. Newton in Saanichton; Robert Goodwin Walker, 35, of 991 Abbey, Victoria; Joan Scaife, 33, Frances Rice, 57, and Minnie Sorba, all of 5241 Koksilah in Duncan.

Name of the last victim, a man, is being withheld pending notification of next-of-kin.

Duncan coroner Tom Lines has ordered an inquest and the RCMP have called in a naval architect for an opinion on the seaworthiness of the boat. It was designed and built by Conrad Hungle of Shawnigan Lake under the auspices of the Malahat Lions Club, and donated to the camp two years ago.

The camp, located on the south shore about four miles west of Lake Cowichan village, closed after the accident and arrangements made to send the campers home.

The tragedy has sent shock waves throughout the province, evoked an expression of sympathy from the legislature, and has put the continuation of the society's summer program at the lake in jeopardy.

"We just don't know whether we'll complete the summer programs or not," said society executive director Frank Wade who flew over from Vancouver as soon as word of the accident reached him.

The mood around the camp Thursday afternoon was one of total shock.

Camp administrator Judi Nyquist looked down and shook her head.

"Who could have believed it?" she said. "It's the most shocking thing that's ever happened to any of us here."

Mrs. Nyquist said today the camp will re-open Aug. 7 provided the staff agrees to return to work.

The boat was seized by police late Thursday.

The victims were part of a group of 48 mentally and physically handicapped adults who were only two days into an eight-day holiday sponsored by the society.

John Baker of Victoria, vice-chairman of the board of directors of the society, said the accident occurred shortly before 11 a.m.

The seven, two in wheelchairs, were being taken by boat to a point down the lake where they were to have joined the others of their group in a picnic and afternoon watching skiers. The others hiked the distance.

New CUPW Leader Keeping Militant Line

Times News Services

HALIFAX — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers today elected Jean-Claude Parrot to lead the union in its long-running battle with the government.

Parrot, who succeeded Joe Davidson as president, said the union will continue on a militant line.

"Our union is not about to give up in the face of an employer that is sparing no effort to demolish our union and to crush us all," Parrot said.

The 268 delegates elected Parrot by acclamation. The convention earlier gave the new executive authority to call a national strike if necessary to press contract de-number one s.o.b.," Parrot the election.

He has worked closely for said in an interview before the past years with Davidson, who plans to become a postal clerk in downtown Ottawa after nine years as a high profile union leader.

In his final speech to delegates, Davidson told members they must be tough because they are up against the most unscrupulous employer in Canada."

The union will not decide its next move until Parrot and the new executive have met in Ottawa.

Parrot said earlier the executive will not use the strike mandate unless attempts at negotiation fail.

Tired after an all-night policy session, Davidson thanked his fellow union members for giving me some of the toughest times I have ever had, but also some of the happiest times I have ever had."

They gave him a rousing sendoff. One delegate said, He done great."

Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday he has no prescription for the ills of the post office but added that if postal troubles continue those worse off will be the postal workers themselves.

He told his weekly news conference that it is obvious that some people in the post office are politicized and are hellbound for strikes."

"They might in the long run destroy their own union," he added.

Trudeau also said he does not always trust the post office and sometimes uses private delivery services.

He used the private companies to get material from Montreal because that way you are sure to get them: by the mails it takes days," he said.

With private enterprise using private delivery systems more and more, he said, the postal workers have to realize that there is a threat to their operations."

"If they cannot guarantee the delivery of the mail, the state has no right to have a monopoly in this area," the prime minister added.

QUE. WANTS OWN MONEY

LONDON (CP) — The Times, in a report from Quebec City, quotes Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau as saying his province will become an independent state with its own currency and central bank.

The newspaper said today that in an interview Parizeau stated that "when the chips are down," the rest of Canada would negotiate a customs union and enter into freight agreements with a separate Quebec.

Police Kill Two Blacks

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Two blacks were shot dead today when simmering unrest broke into widespread violence in Soweto township.

Police said one of the victims, a 19-year-old woman student, was killed after demonstrating students stoned police near a high school in the Orlando district.

Wildlife Still Berger Concern

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Thomas Berger urged today that special measures be taken to protect the wilderness and wildlife of the Yukon if the government approves an Alaska Highway pipeline.

In a summary of the second volume of his inquiry into the impact of a pipeline on the Northwest Territories, Berger said any agreement between Canada and the United States to approve such a pipeline should include provisions to protect the Porcupine Caribou herd and the wilderness of the North.

"By this agreement Canada should undertake to establish a wilderness park in the Northern Yukon and the United States should agree to accord wilderness status to its Arctic national wildlife range, this creating a unique international wilderness park in the Arctic," the British Columbia Supreme Court justice says.

The second volume of the report won't be available until September, but Berger provided the summary to help MPs who will debate the pipeline issue in the Commons next Thursday and Friday.

Berger repeats the recommendations he made in his first report that no pipeline be allowed in the Mackenzie River valley for 10 years and that a ban be placed on ever constructing a line through the northern Yukon.

The National Energy Board, the federal regulatory agency, agreed with him in its report earlier this month, spelling an end to a pipeline proposal from Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd.

Berger noted that the board has recommended a possible connection between the Alaska Highway pipeline and Canadian gas reserves in the Mackenzie delta sometime in the 1980s.

The link would follow the route of the nearly completed Dempster Highway but Berger said he is still concerned over the impact the highway itself will have on the Porcupine caribou, one of the continent's last great herds.

New Car Paint Rusted, Owner Collects Damages

BURNABY (CP) — William Thauberger of Burnaby has been awarded $792.75 damages in small claims court for rust blisters which appeared on the paint work of his 1974 Mazda in what is believed to be the first decision of its kind in British Columbia.

The award was to pay for repainting his station wagon which showed signs of rust blisters within 18 months of its purchase from Simon Fraser Sales Ltd., a Mazda dealership in Burnaby. He had bought the car new.

In an interview, Thauberger said he first attempted to solve the problem by writign the dealer, distributor and Japanese manufacturer but that he was told the 12-month warranty had expired.

"No one would even look at the car," he said.

Thauberger, a marine radio officer, said he was eventually offered a $200 goodwill payment but refused this when he received repainting estimates ranging from $700 to $2,000.

He pinpointed 118 blister spots on the car in his small claims court presentation.

Provincial court Judge E. O'Donnell said in a four-page written decision that "the blistering condition of the paint work is due to the extensive permeability of the paint foim on the vehicle . . . due to a defect in manufacture, and not to external factors."

TOWN TALK

Four or five city police cruisers converged on a Johnson Street alley Wednesday night after reports of a gang rumble, complete with flashing knives, was under way there.

Indeed it was, in a manner of speaking. Ron Way, director of the West Side Story production opening at the McPherson Playhouse Sept. 6, explained that what he was after was some publicity shots. So the cast was running through the "rumble scene" from the musical.

The show for the cameras was impressive enough to lead watchers to call the cops.

Way said the police reaction when they came rolling up was: "Please let us know about it next time."

So, anyway, after Jerry Gosley fell up the stairs, the next thing he knew he was telling jokes to the doctors at Royal Jubilee Hospital and THEY had HIM in stitches.

That's the punch line. How the beginning of the story goes, nobody is really quite sure.

The way Gosley tells it, he was coming home from his Smile Show performance Wednesday night when he managed to fall UP the stairs in front of his house.

Had a bit of a nasty fall, he did, as a person will when he falls up. For the doubters, the evidence was there for all to see on Thursday night, or at least for those near the front of the McPherson, because there definitely was a glimpse of bandage under his kilt. The show must go on.

Those flimsy milk pouches are here to stay, even if they are not very popular.

The dairy industry has invested millions of dollars tooling up for the pouches and is not about to throw the investment away. Supermarket managers have mixed feelings about them, particularly after the recent decline in sales.

But pouches have been selling for 10 years on the east coast and have become part of the merchandising establishment. Consumers can expect to buy cartons in the two-litre size and pouches in the four-litre size.

The Oak Bay Kiwanis Club was named international honor club at the Kiwanis convention held in Dallas.

The club sponsors four hockey teams, five baseball teams and three soccer teams as well as helping children with learning disabilities.

South America conjures up images of brown-skinned women bartering in the marketplaces of Rio, or of wild gauchos riding herd in the tall pampas grass of Argentina, long before it makes one think of Ice Follies.

Deanna Lawson, 18, of 1834 Jade Place and Brenda Ferris, also 18, of 1662 Stanhope Place, were signed on by Follies choreographer Richard Dwyer for an eight-month tour of South America starting Aug. 17 in Buenos Aries.

First stop, however, is Sacramento, Calif. for two weeks training.

That electric power cutoff Thursday night wasn't really a power failure, B.C. Hydro spokesman Dorothy Tupper explained today.

Residents along Station Road and Millstream Road were without electricity between 11:30 and 11:50 p.m.

The power authority "killed" the feeder line to assist firefighters in moving hoses during a brush fire, she said.

Pierre Berton has now joind the fight to save the Crystal Garden.

He is one of five authors of a book titled Crystal Garden — The West Coast Fun Palace, the proceeds from which will be used toward the restoration of the old watering hole.

Berton's contribution is based on personal reminiscences, including boyhood swimming trips, while other chapters deal with various aspects of the building's architecture, designers and colorful history.

Co-authors, all prominent in the heritage preservation scene, are Carolyn Smyly, Terri Reksten, Martin Segger and Alistair Kerr.

Reksten says the book, which will be available in local book stores in about two weeks, contains more than 200 illustrations, many of which have never been published before.

Printed by Morris Printing Co. Ltd. of Victoria, the hard-cover version in a limited edition of 250 copies will sell for $40, while the soft-cover copies are priced at $7.95.

ON THE BUS TOUR

A Lurching Look at Our Town

The sightseeing buses line up outside The Empress, and the seats are rapidly filling on the top deck of the Gray Line omnibus.

Lumbering legiathans, which once carried commuting Londoners to Putney, Ealing, Balham, Tooting and other faraway places with strange-sounding names, wait patiently to be fed another bellyful of passengers.

Ahead, legislator-turned-entrepreneur Jim Gorst stands beside his genuine San Francisco trolley, talking to a young woman. The trolley is empty.

The chatter begins.

"Oh, now I'll be able to see these beautiful flower baskets close up," says an elderly woman as she flops into her seat.

"I do admire the dear people who keep the gardens so beautiful," a companion gushes.

Two rows behind, a woman urges her husband to "look at the nice picture of Queen Elizabeth." She points to the garish portrait above the Black Ball ferry terminal.

With a lurch and a judder, the beast is mobile, heading up Government Street.

On the right is the Belmont Building, Victoria's first skyscraper and office building, Gary points out.

Then comes Rogers Chocolates and the Edinburgh Tartan Shop. "Find out what your crest is, or your family tartan," Gary suggests.

(The nonsensical thought occurs: Wouldn't it be fun to walk into the latter, feign a thick Russian accent and tell the store clerk, "My name is Boris Kuznetsov, please to show me my family tartan . . .")

Passing the ugly grey slab that houses the main Post Office, Gary conveys the startling information that "letters posted here require Canadian postage."

Then, turning the corner into Yates, the driver mentions that this quarter of town was once the bawdiest, rowdiest of them all, "with 26 bars and brothels on this one street alone."

A little girl from the front seat pipes up, in a clear voice that can be heard the length of the bus: "Mum, what's a brothel?"

Mum tries to ignore the reasonable question until it's repeated, with greater insistence. "Shush up and listen to the driver," she states, with motherly firmness.

The little girl fails to point out that that's exactly what she was doing.

Now the bus is ascending the lower slopes of Fort, east of Cook, which Gary says was once called Nob Hill because that's where all the stately mansions were.

"Doesn't look much now," an elderly man observes.

Gary offers a comment about Victoria's apartment zoning policies which would cause some raised eyebrows in the city planning department.

The city doesn't allow apartments to be built "higher than the existing trees," he explains, and a passenger praises it as a "great idea."

Well, Gary, dunno where you got that information but that's not exactly how it works . . .

The driver keeps up his patter throughout the 90-minute trip, but for the last half-hour or so the tourists lapse into a desultory silence.

Until another young voice asks: "Mum, why don't you sit with Pauline?"

This mother is less polite than the one whose offspring was inquiring about brothels.

"Why don't you shut up?" she replies. Junior obliges.

Back outside The Empress the passengers disembark, apparently satisfied with their four-bucks' worth of Victoria-viewing.

Gorst's trolley still stands there, still empty. Gorst looks kind of lonely and forlorn.

FIRST WINE LOUNGE in British Columbia opened Thursday night at the Red Lion and Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair (centre) was in attendance to sample the wares. The lounge sells wine, beer and food and allows customers to taste small portions of various wines before deciding what to order. At opening night were (left to right) Vic Woodland, general manager of liquor control and licencing; Patti Ballard, Mair's secretary; Mair; Mrs. Ken King, wife of the hotel's general manager; Larry Watling, hotel manager.

Bus Passes On Again For UVic

B.C. Hydro today announced it will reinstate the university bus pass, starting in September.

The pass was cancelled by B.C. Hydro in the spring because, the company said, students were not interested.

Protests were lodged by the University of Victoria administration and students council and the pass has been reinstated on a one-year trial basis.

Dean Trevor Matthews said the decision could be significant to the future of the university landscape if the experiment can be made to be a success this time.

"If more students will use the buses we will not have to turn the university into a blacktop campus. The cost saving would also be important."

The pass allows university students to have unlimited bus travel in the Greater Victoria area for one semester of 14 weeks. The price is $40. Actually B.C. Hydro charges $44 but the university and students council jointly subsidize the $4 portion. They also absorb all administration costs of the bus pass system.

The pass was introduced last fall and $964 were sold. When the second pass went on sale after Christmas, the number of students buying them declined to under 900 and B.C. Hydro subsequently announced there was not enough interest to continue the pass.

The university and students council conducted surveys among those students who did not renew the pass and found that a large portion had met someone who had a car and therefore had moved into a car pool.

Matthews said he is hopeful that more than 1,000 passes will be sold in September to prove to B.C. Hydro the demand is there.

"Anything we can do to reduce the amount of car traffic will be beneficial to the university and to the city as a whole. We feel there will be a greater emphasis on public transportation in the very near future and we should be taking the lead in this."

Unless more students take the bus, the university will soon have to begin constructing a new parking lot to handle the demand.

"We don't know if we will be able to sell 1,000 passes but it won't be for lack of trying. We hope the students will support us in this," Matthews said.

No Rent Funds For City

An additional $15.2 million has been made available to British Columbia branches of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation under the assisted rental program, but none will be spent in Victoria which has surplus apartment accommodation.

Victoria CMHC spokesman Ray Pitt said the funds will be diverted to B.C. areas which still have a shortage of rental units.

Funds would be available to Victoria when the need becomes evident but it is not clear how soon that will be, he said.

Under the program, CMHC makes an interest-free loan to a builder but rents are controlled until the loan is paid back in full.

Contract Extension Rejected

The city of Victoria's inside workers Thursday night rejected an offer from the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association to extend their present one-year contract to two years, which would have placed them on the same footing as si xother Canadian Union of Public Employees locals.

At the meeting of CUPE local 388, the GVLRA's offer was turned down by a 57-to-2 vote.

President Rick Doyle said today the main reasons for rejection were the uncertainty surrounding the future of the Anti-Inflation Board, and the membership's feeling that "we have a better contract than the JNC (joint negotiating committee of the other locals) settled for."

"It seemed to us that one year is better than two years when the AIB could be dropped in the fall," he added.

Saving Jones Building Not Viable, Says Bank

The Royal Bank has told the local Hallmark Society that its appeal to save all or part of the old Jones Building is not viable.

The society, in company with some other community groups, had appealed to the bank to incorporate at least the facade of the 65-year-old structure in plans for the bank's new headquarters at Fort and Douglas.

In a letter to society president Pim Manning received Thursday, W. Earl McLaughlin, chairman and chief executive officer of the bank in Montreal, wrote: "The consensus of the professional view is that, due to a number of factors, your suggestion that we make the facade of the Jones Building an integral part of the over-all complex is not viable."

Principal reasons are that the structure, mechanics and wiring of the building can't be "recycled" to meet regulations and still be a viable project, McLaughlin wrote.

"Further, energy conservation and public safety requirements cannot be met if the building undergoes major structural alterations.

"Of no less importance is the question of architectural integrity of the development."

McLaughlin said a demolition contract has been awarded.

"Notwithstanding our differing points of view, I feel confident that when the project is completed you will agree that a tasteful landmark has been added to the Victoria scene."

A spokesman for the Jones Building coalition, representing several groups pledged to saving the building, asked Victoria city council Thursday to intercede with the Royal Bak.

Charles Ball said the city should urge the bank to consider the society's proposal but Mayor Mike Young said he thought it was too late, considering a demolition permit had already been issued.

But the mayor said he hoped the bank had "exhausted every possibility in determining that the building cannot be saved."

Pair Faces Charges

A Saanich couple was to appear in court later today after a Colwood doctor's office was broken into overnight and drugs and a book taken.

Colwood RCMP said Charles William Kariam, 24, and Nancy Lynn Doerges, 18, will probably face charges of break, enter and theft and possession of stolen property.

They were arrested in a car on Wishart Road early today after a security guard had earlier reported a suspicious vehicle beside the office of Dr. Robert Pledger at 3320 Metchosin Road.

The same doctor was the victim of an armed robbery a few months ago in which drugs were taken.

Police said today that a rear door had been forced open and a small quantity of a local anesthetic and a manual on drugs were missing.

Another girl was in the car when the arrests were made but has not yet been charged.

Last-Ditch Bid: Crystal for $1

In what appears to be a last despairing bid to solve its dilemma over the Crystal Garden's future, the city of Victoria has offered the dilapidated building to the provincial government for $1.

Mayor Mike Young said following Thursday's council meeting that Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf has promised to take the proposal to the provincial cabinet at an early date.

Young said city representatives had discussed the matter with Bawlf over the last two month, and came to the conclusion that the city cannot finance the Crystal Garden's reconstruction.

Under the draft terms of the offer, read to council on Thursday, the government would agree to restore the building, preferably as a public arboretum (in keeping with earlier restoration plans which the city had to shelve), and retain the structure in public ownership.

Alternatively, if the building is not occupied by the Crown, any tenancy would be restricted to uses permittel in the city's zoning bylaw.

When Bawlf was a Victoria alderman he was the strongest advocate of saving the Crystal, and it was he who persuaded his council colleagues at that time to think in terms of an aboretum.

Wallace Apologizes

Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace has apologized for his earlier criticism of two Greater Victoria high schools, saying he had relied on information which proved inaccurate and exaggerated.

"I made a serious mistake. I very much regret it," he said today and added that he wants to apologize to teachers, students and others affected by his remarks.

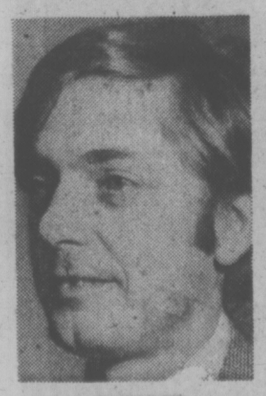

In the legislature Wednesday Wallace said discipline at two schools, Spectrum and Lambrick Park, was lax and quality of education poor.

Spectrum principal Wally Russell later branded Wallace's remarks as foolish and said the MLA didn't know what he was talking about.

Wallace said having been told unfavorable things about the schools, he had tried to check it out with people directly involved but had not been able to reach them before the matter came up in the house.

His apology is also directed at the principals of the two schools.

"While there is clearly an honest difference of opinion within the education system as to differing styles of teaching and types of schools, the comments I made regarding Spectrum and Lambrick Park were not in keeping with the facts, and I very much regret the distress my remarks have caused the principals, students and teachers of those schools," he said.

Tentative Accord

A tentative agreement on a two-year contract has been reached by Camuson College and CUPE Local 2081, the two parties announced Thursday.

The tentative settlement covers nine outstanding issues — none of them monetary — and was reached at 4:30 p.m. after an all-day session with mediator Clark Gilmour.

CUPE also agreed to drop an unfair labor practice charge it had filed with the Labor Relations Board after the college council had rejected an earlier agreement on the grounds that the person negotiating for Camosum wasn't authorized to make final commitments.

The agreement now goes to the college council and the union local's 80 clerical and support staff for ratification.

What's Mikey Like When He's Not Eating?

Advertising history was made in 1971 when two little boys, confronted with an untasted cereal called Life, used their brother "Mikey" as a guinea pig. "He likes it!" one exclaimed as the silent Mickey munched the oats. The commercial was a sensation, resulted in a sequel referring to "the cereal Mikey likes," still plays on network and local television six years later, and got Mikey's picture placed prominently on every box of Life.

Where is Mikey today?

In the first place, the kid's name is not Mikey. It is John Gilchrist of Yonkers, New York. He was 3 when the commercial was made and he doesn't even remember making it. When he sees it on TV now, he says, "I laugh."

His two brothers, Tommy, now 14 and Michael, now 12, are the other two boys in the commerical. But John is the one most often recognized as the immortal Mikey.

"When we went to Disney World," his mother says, "people get more excited at seeing 'Mikey' than they did about Disney World. It happens so often."

John still "works" a little, his mother says, doing commercials, but one knowledgeable Madison Avenuer says the kid has already made at least enough money to put himself through college. At the very minimum, the Life spot brings the Gilchrists $12,000 every year it's on.

Asked if would like to stay in acting, John says, "Yeah. I like the business." He would like to be a singer, too. When he is asked for an autograph, he says, "I sign it 'John Gilchrist' and then in parentheses I put 'Mikey.'"

Fame does not seem to have been a burden for him.

Mrs. Gilchrist and her husband Tom have six kids. "We're trying to keep them very normal," she says. "We try not to make too big a thing out of any one of them. John's just a regular kid and we want to keep him that way."

Television land is kiddie land.

Ad agencies drag kids in to sell everything from tires to Ravioli-O's. Kids are added like chemicals to formulas for situation comedies and other shows, to raise the cuteness quotient and snare more viewers.

These kids are the victims of television even more than the most addicted of TV-watching children are. And we are victims of them.

And yet, among the hundreds of children's faces plastered across television screens every week, some belong to kids who have managed, even while being manipulated, to retain their dignity as children.

By luck, through perseverence, or just because they are superior to the others; these children can still convey the integrity of innocence. Even if their incomes are approaching six figures a year and they are thinking of getting a better agent. And they have a pilot in the can. And they read the trades by the swimming pool.

These are the great kids of television.

Kristy McNichol got her start in an Opel commercial. "I was 7. I thought it was great." Now 14, she plays the continuing role of Buddy in the popular ABC prime-time drama series, "Family."

"Burt Reynolds called me and he wants me to do a movie with him," she casually mentions when reached at her Sherman Oaks, Calif., home. Her mother had been cautious when answering because Kristy has been getting crank calls from over-zealous fans.

Still, Kristy has no doubts about the show-biz life and doesn't think she's missed much by not having a normal childhood.

"I think I've gained, not lost. In all ways," she says.

"I love acting. Everything about it. It doesn't get boring. I've done billions of commercials. At least 50. I've done Hostess Twinkies, and McDonald's and Kraft Cheese. A lot of them. When I have free time, which is hardly ever, I go off and do a commercial.

"But now I'm too busy to work on anything but 'Family.' I'd like to do more "Afterschool Specials.' But it's just a rat race. I don't think I can."

Nine-year-old Marcus Gordon Issoglio, whose professional name is Sparky Marcus, says: "I've never taken advantage of being a star, I'm not really a star yet. I'm just an actor now. I don't really see how action could go to my head. It's just a job. If you have it, you gotta do it. It's like owning a house. If you have it, you gotta pay the taxes on it."

Sparky has appeared in Afterschool Specials, movies like Freaky Friday, and TV specials like The Night That Panicked America. But the role that brought the young lad with the over-intelligent face to prominence was Rev. Jimmy Joe Jeeter, the pintsized evangelist, on Norman Lear's Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman.

He stayed up late to watch Rev. Jimmy expire on the show — electrocuted, as the script went, when a TV set fell into his bathtub.

"Instead of dropping a TV, they threw water balloons into the bathtub," he explains from his home in suburban Los Angeles.

"The first time I got in the tub they had pure hot water in it — well, not that hot, but after about five minutes my head was getting wet, my shoulders were sweating, my knuckles were sweating — ugh!"

Soap Operas Cleaning Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Soap operas are gaining ground and games shows are losing the contest for women's attention during daytime television.

While night time offered soap opera spoofs such as . .Norman Lear's "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," and ABC's naughty "Soap," scheduled for the fall, the daytime soap opera people are laughing all the way to the bank.

That's the word from the BBDO Network Programming Department of Batten, Barton Durstine and Osborn, one of Madison Avenue's top advertising agencies.

BBDO has published a report on daytime television which says that the increasing expense of daytime game shows, pitted against the sturdy loyalty of soap opera fans, will see game shows going the way of the dodo.

Soap operas currently make up 52 per cent of daytime network programming. Game shows occupy 34 per cent of that time but BBDO predicts the number may sink to 30 by the end of 1977. Reruns of situation comedies help fill in the gaps.

The soap operas, or course, go back to radio days, although only " The Guiding Light" managed to make the transition to the small screen. The reason they were dubbed soap operas was because they were produced by soap companies, primarily Procter and Gamble. P and G still makes five soaps — "As The World Turns," "Guiding Light," "Search for Tomorrow," "Another World" and "The Edge of Night." Colgate-Palmolive puts out "The Doctors."

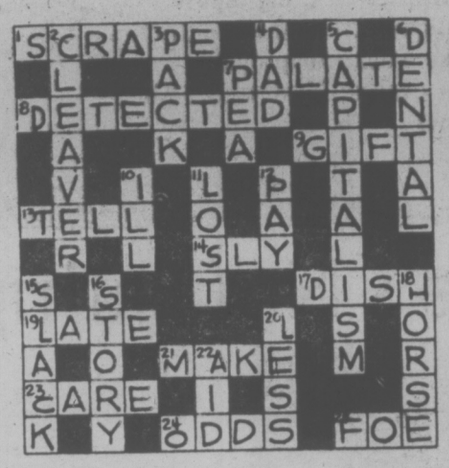

Most soaps take place in mythical small towns or small cities, mostly in the midwest, which is a carryover from the radio tradition.

"Ryan's Hope" takes place in New York City.

PAYOFF PUZZLE

Correct Answers to Last Week's Puzzle

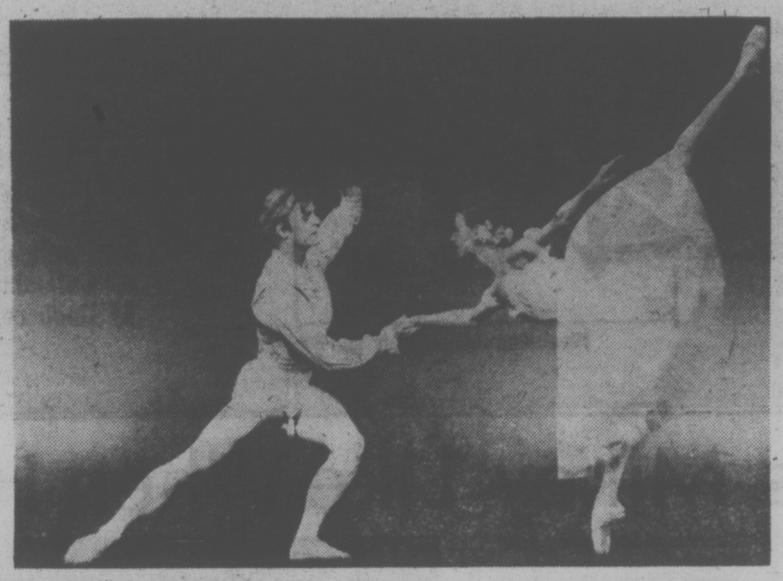

CLUES ACROSS:

1. SCRAPE not scraps. "Rebellious" (i.e., against authority) links up better with SCRAPE rather than scraps.
7. PALATE not palace. A "fine" PALATE, or any sort of palace.
8. DETECTED not dejected. The idea of a burglar, specifically, being DETECTED is very apt. After bungling a job, almost anybody might be dejected.
9. GIFT not lift. The idea of being "thought well of" links up with people who know you, favoring GIFT. A lift is commonly given to a stranger, whose esteem is irrelevant.
13. TELL not sell. "Keep them to yourself" (rather than for yourself) links up better with TELL.
14. SLY not shy. One who may get "better" is regarded in a bad sense (e.g., as SLY). It is not really bad to be shy.
17. DISH not wish. The clue favors something specially produced "for him," to mark the occasion, such as a "very special" DISH. A birthday wish would be of an ordinary enough nature.
21. MAKE not rake. The question of wanting it to look neat applies more directly to a domestic bed you MAKE. When you rake a seed bed, say, for the purpose of getting the soil in suitable condition, it is not your immediate concern to tidy it.
23. CARE not cure. It's a question of CARE or of treatment (rather than cure so understood) of the sick.

CLUES DOWN:

2. CLEAVER not cleaner. A cleaner may not be of the kind that has such a thing as "the handle." This does not apply to a CLEAVER.
3. PACK not pick. "Various" things need very careful protection when you PACK them up in parcels, etc., for transportation. Few things (that one might reasonably pick up) are too fragile to stand being picked up with ordinary care.
5. CAPITALISM not capitalist. The one "ISM" is aptly opposed to the other. An individual capitalist may well take quite a liberal attitude towards communism as a theory.
6. DENTAL not mental. A prisoner suffering from bad teeth will be given DENTAL treatment. Severe mental illness may call for a man's transfer to a specialized institution (rather than being "attended to" in a direct sense.)
11. LOST not last. It is a "fact" that he has LOST; but, if an injured athlete doesn't finish the race, he is not last (to finish).
12. PAY not day. The clue's apparent attitude is that reduction of "this" is regrettable, favoring PAY. Day is apt only insofar as it implies less PAY (which it may not do).
15. SLACK not black. The clue's phrase: "In business," while lending aptness to SLACK (which relates to trade, etc.), is not wanted for black (which applies to times in a general sense).
16. STORY not store or storm. The idea of "leaving people cold" applies best to that which is supposed to stir the emotions, in which respect "STORY" is stronger than "store" or "storm."

WOLF TRAP is the name of a park for the performing arts near Washington, D.C., and Mikhail Baryshnikov and Gelsey Kirkland are two of the performers who appear in a public television dance special — In Performance at Wolf Trap — Sunday on Channel 9 at 6:30 p.m.

That's the Crunch!

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Avery Schreiber, the man with the jolly face and bushy moustache, sat in a corner of the posh chow hall, braced for all intruders who might dash up and say, "crunch."

For six years he's put the bite on a corn chip in those snack food commercials, causing minor earthquakes each time. The pay is excellent and the fame greater than he's ever known.

Alas, he sighed, "Everywere I go I find a maitre d' coming up with a bag of Doritos and saying crunch. Even in some of the gourmet hot-shot spots.

"Truck drivers park in front of me, say crunch and have a big laugh. Meanwhile, traffic backs up. Things like that."

Fortunately, crunching has not bitten that much into his performing life. For example, he recently finished a part in the new movie by British comic Marty Feldman, The Last Remake of Beau Geste.

And this fall, he will do a serious drama for public TV, The Ascent of Mt. Fuji.

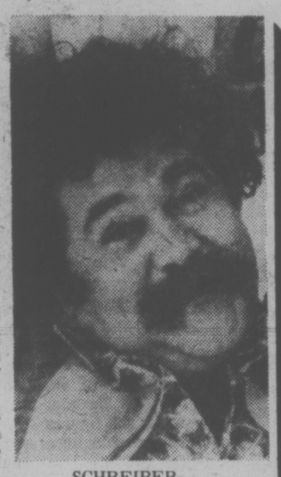

For laughs, he will be seen next fall in a new syndicated TV series with the distinguished rock music group, Sha Na Na. He will play a joke-cracking cabbie called Herb Gross, the Hack Comic.

Schreiber, 40, is a Chicago native who got started in 1960 as a member of Chicago's famed Second City improvisational troupe. It was in the troupe three years later that he met Boston comic Jack Burns.

"I get my kicks in the theatre, in live performances," Schreiber said.

During the interview, no one approached the man who bites corn chips on TV and said, crunch. Schreiber looked relieved.

But when he stepped outside in the Beverly Hills sunlight to pose for a quick picture, a good-looking blonde driving by in a Volkswagen gave him a big smile and said "crunch."

TV MAILBAG

By THOM MEAD

HOLLYWOOD — The TV Mailbag:

Q. Is it true Farrah Fawcett-Majors is leaving ABC's popular "Charlie's Angels" and is being replaced for the coming season? — B.C., Warren, Ohio

A. As it stands now, the answer is yes to her leaving the series. She is currently in a contract dispute with both Spelling-Goldberg Productions, producers of the show, and ABC Television Network. Fawcett-Majors contends she never signed a contract with Spelling-Goldberg and thus is free to leave the series so that she can go into movies. The producers contend she made an oral agreement and must continue to honor that pledge to star in the series. Obviously, the matter is destined for the courts and a long legal battle.

But she is not appearing in episodes filmed so far for the new season, including a special two-hour season opener filmed on location in Hawaii. It is unlikely she will be seen at all until the matter is resolved.

Fawcett-Majors' role as Jill Munroe is not being filled with someone else on a temporary basis until she returns, if ever. Instead, the producers are introducing a new angel who will play the younger sister of Jill. She is being played by Cheryl Ladd, who says her role is not to replace Fawcett-Majors.

"I don't feel any pressure because I'm not in any way going to try to be Fawcett-Majors. I will just be myself," Ladd says.

As for the effect of Fawcett-Majors leaving the series on the other two lovely angels, both Kate Jackson and Jaclyn Smith, who play Sabrina Duncan and Kelly Garrett respectively, feel "Charlie's Angels" will survive without her. Both have refused to comment on Fawcett-Majors' departure, although Jackson recently said, "When one signs a contract one should keep it."

Q. What's the latest on Gary Moore's departure from the program "To Tell the Truth?" — L. R., Carson, Calif.

A. I recently reported that Gary Moore was on vacation and temporary hosts were substituting for him until he returned. At least that was the official word from NBC officials.

Since then, however, I have been informed that Moore is not returning to the popular game show. At 62, he has been wanting to retire for some time, but kept postponing it because of his popularity with his television audience. But he is now in retirement.

Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies. Inquiries should be sent to Thom Mead, TV Mailbag, in care of Prevue, Box 300, Victoria, B.C. V8W 2N4.

Today's Highlights

Short Story Special, on 4 at 11 a.m. My Dear Uncle Sherlock — Children's drama about a young boy searching for the man who knocked a neighbor unconscious and stole her watchdog.

Penticton Peach Festival Parade, on 2 at noon. Live coverage of Penticton's 30th annual parade. Ted Reynolds and Mike Roberts are the commentators.

What Now, Canada? on 13 at 4:30 p.m. Federal Transport Minister Otto Lang is the guest.

Magic Flute, on 2 and 6 at 5 p.m. Mozart's musical-comedy opera is performed with the National Arts Centre Orchestra under the direction of Mario Bernardi. Broadcast live from Ottawa.

Seafair Torchlight Parade, on 7 at 8 p.m. and 5 at 8:30 p.m. A Festival of People is the theme of the 28th annual parade telecast from downtown Seattle.

Saturday Night, on 5 at 11:30 p.m. Host Ralph Nader is questioned about his inflatable party dolls.

For Those Who Think Young (x), on 11 at noon. For those who think stupid. About a college where surfing and romancing seem to be the main courses. (1964).

Susannah of the Mounties (xx), on 11 at 2 p.m. Mountie Randolph Scott raises orphan Shirley Temple in this predictable but entertaining Temple vehicle (1939).

The Green Helmet (xx), on 4 at 5 p.m. Auto racer Bill Travers finds more troubles off the track than on it. Some good racing footage from the U.K. circuit. (1961).

The Thief Who Came to Dinner (xxx), on 8 at 8 p.m. and 6 at 11:15 p.m. Jacqueline Bisset and Ryan O'Neal star as a couple of unlikely, but surprisingly enough, highly successful thieves in this tongue-in-cheek plot about a computer expert who turns cat burglar. (1973).

Spotlight on Movies

A Day at the Races (xx), on 12 at 9 p.m. One of the better Marx Bros. vehicles, set at a race track. High point is where Chico, at a tout, tries to give Groucho a hot tip. (1937).

The Trap (xx), on 11 at 10 p.m. Fairly suspensful crime melodrama as the head of a crime syndicate trying to flee the country isolates a small desert town. (1959).

The Flight of the Phoenix (xxx), on 7 at 10:30 p.m. An exciting old-fashioned adventure about a group of plane-crash survivors who fight the desert and awesome odds to rebuild their plane. Stock characters, but well cast, with James Stewart, Richard Attenborough, Peter Finch, Hardy Kruger. (1966).

Day of the Wolves (xx), on 12 at 11:05 p.m. Good action plot that almost works when taken seriously otherwise stale drama. Ex-sheriff Richard Egan thwarts bizarre attempt by strange group to isolate a small town. (1973).

The Man Outside (xx), on 2 at 11:45 p.m. Van Heflin is the spy who's put out in the cold by his boss in this predictable spy story set in London. (1968).

Frankie and Johnny (x), on 4 at 11:45 p.m. Shoddy Elvis Presley musical loosely based on the folk ballad. (1966).

Honeycomb (xx), on 13 at midnight. Psycholigical drama of a rich couple who play their own little games until reality fades. Per Oscarsson. Geraldine Chaplin. (1969).

The Glen Miller Story (xxx), on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Highly romanticized biography of the famed band leader who was lost during the Second World War. Plenty of music in the big band tradition. The personal charms of James Stewart and June Allyson carry the film's more sentimental sequences. (1954).

The Rising of the Moon (xxx), on 5 at 1 a.m. Trio of Irish tales directed by John Ford. Full of the ould blarney, but still charming, with Frank Lawton, Dennis O'Dea. (1957).

Sweet Smell of Success (xxxx), on 6 at 1:15 a.m. See Sunday movies, Channel 8 at 12:10 a.m. for details.

Crucible of Horror (xx), on 13 at 1:30 a.m. Murdered man returns to haunt the living. Nothing new here. (1971).

Burn, Witch, Burn (xx), on 2 at 1:45 a.m. A professor's wife becomes obsessed with witchcraft, is convinced she must die in his place. Well made supernatural thriller carried carefully through the more far-fetched phases. (1962).

Entebbe Wins Award

The ABC network and David Wolper have received Brith Sholom's Humanitarian Award for bringing the story of the Israeli raid on Entebbe Airport to the public.

Victory at Entebbe, which aired as a special movie presentation on the ABC Television Network, December 13, 1976, boasted an all-star cast including Helmut Berger, Linda Blair, Kirk Douglas, Richard Dreyfuss, Helen Hayes, Anthony Hopkins, Burt Lancaster and Elizabeth Taylor.

The award to ABC and David L. Wolper for Victory at Entebbe was to acknowledge the public service performed in bringing this heroic effort to the attention of the public, "as a declaration of the rights of all human beings to life and freedom, without threat of violence and terror."

Victory at Entebbe was the first screen recreation of the stunning and unexpected manoeuvre that freed hostages through a lightning swift attack on their captors at Uganda's Entebbe Airport in July, 1976. The attack was carried out by Israeli commandos who began their action in Israel, several thousand miles from Uganda.

Spotlight on Movies

Swing Time (xx), on 12 at 10:30 a.m. Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers. Dancing is tops, and the slight story — dancer with a yen for gambling saves money to marry, then falls for another girl — doesn't get in the way too much. (1936).

Zulu (xxx), on 5 at 11 a.m. An exciting adventure based on a real life incident in African history, the massacre of a British mission. The cast, including Stanley Baker, Jack Hawkins, James Booth and Michael Caine, is excellent, but the battle sequence is the real star of the film. (1964).

Treasure Galleon, on 7 at 11:30 a.m. Documentary showing how divers and archeologists set about raising the remains of a Spanish galleon sunk in 1715. (1973).

The Creeping Unknown (xx), on 11 at noon. Ordinary sci-fi, with space craft returning to earth with title beast as stowaway. (1956).

Glory (x), on 4 at 1 p.m. Another in the endless line of stories about a girl (or boy) with a horse. No glory for anyone involved. (1956).

The Time of Their Lives (xx), on 11 at 1:30 p.m. One of the better Abbot and Costellos, with less stress on slapstick and more on story. Good supporting performances. (1946).

Mardi Gras (xx), on 4 at 3 p.m. Pure escapist fare, as Pat Boone, Gary Crosby, Sheree North, Tommy Sands and others sing, dance, march and act through this technicolor romance set in New Orleans. (1958).

Grizzly and the Treasure, on 5 at 3 p.m. Semi-documentary on the Klondike and one man's search for his own El Dorado. Good outdoors footage. (1975).

Commandos Strike at Dawn (xxx), on 7 at 3 p.m. Nazis invade Norway, partisans resist and pave the way for commando raid. Occasionally exciting war drama. (1942).

Lonely Are the Brave (xxx), on 11 at 3 p.m. Offbeat western about a cowboy who escapes jail, is hunted by the posse. Big difference here is the well portrayed contrast between the old way of life and the modern, with the cowboy out of his time element. Excellent performance by Kirk Douglas. (1962).

J. W. Coop (xxx), on 4 at 9 p.m. Vivid character study of none-too-bright drifter who sets his sights on becoming No. 1 rodeo star. Tour de force for director-writer-star Cliff Robertson, who scores in all departments. (1972.

Hannie Caulder (xx), on 7 at 9 p.m. Modest, uninteresting western with Raquel Welch as bitter woman out to avenge murder of husband and her rape. Only standout; Robert Culp's performance. (1971).

The Silence, on 5 at 9:30 p.m. Dramatized documentary of the case of Cadet James Pelosi, who was accused at West Point of cheating on an exam and subjected to the silent treatment — only addressed on official business, sat at a separate table, and ostracized by his classmates until he graduated. (1975).

Man with the Icy Eyes (x), on 12 at 11 p.m. Young Mexican is falsely accused of a senator's murder. The plot drags through the quasi-legal tangles. (1971).

The 39 Steps (xxxx), on 5 at 11:30 p.m. A young man is accidently thrown into a spy plot, races through England and Scotland with both the police and spies at his heels. A thriller classic. Excellent chase drama, one of Alfred Hitchcock's best. Robert Donat, Madeleine Carroll. (1935).

The Mephisto Waltz (xxx), on 7 at 11:30 p.m. World famous pianist (Curt Jurgens) is dying of a rare blood disease when he grants journalist (Alan Alda) an interview. Journalist's wife (Jacqueline Bisset) has a feeling her husband is changing as eerie music introduces demonic possession.

Portrait from Life (xxx), on 2 at 11:45 p.m. Army major runs into a spy plot when he tries to help a girl regain her memory. Good melodrama, with Mai Zettering, Guy Rolfe, Robert Beatty. (1948).

Hollywood Cavalcade (xx), on 4 at 11:45 p.m. Film which traces the history of the motion-picture industry — to 1939 — has some wonderful moments before it gets bogged down in cliches. Earlier scenes are worth catching. (1939).

The Glenn Miller Story (xxx), on 6 at 11:45 p.m. See Saturday movies, Channel 8 at 12:10 a.m. for details.

Spell of Evil (xx), on 13 at midnight. An old-time witch takes the guise of a beautiful modern woman to work her evil ways. (1973).

Sweet Smell of Success (xxxx), on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Biting, no-holds-barred look at the ruthless world of a powerful and evil New York columnist. This is the film in which Tony Curtis emerged as a first rate actor and stopped being just another handsome Hollywood face. Burt Lancaster is miscast as the columnist. (1957).

The Raven (xx), on 7 at 1:30 p.m. Lurid thriller about a plastic surgeon who adores the works of Edgar Allan Poe. Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi. (1935).

Spotlight on Movies

Irma La Douce (xxx), on 8 at 1 p.m. Delightfully raucous comedy about Paris prostitutes and their pimps. Jack Lemmon is forced into leading a double life in order to keep his love, street walker Shirley MacLaine, and his energetic performance is his best. Miss MacLaine is perfect as the sweet tart named Irma. (To avoid cutting, this 1963 movie is being shown in two parts. Conclusion at 1 p.m. Tuesday.)

My Girl Tisa (xx), on 11 at 1 p.m. Immigrant girl Lilli Palmer works to bring her father to New York and help her boyfriend become a lawyer. Pleasant but leisurely costume comedy-drama. (1948).

Desperate Mission (x), on 5 at 3 p.m. U.S. agent hunts nuclear scientist in Hong Kong. Desperate fare. (1964).

Lolly-Madonna XXX (x), on 5 at 9 p.m. A family feud in Tennessee with little emotional or intellectual interest. (1973).

The Death of Me Yet (xxx), on 12 at 9:30 p.m. Happily married newspaper editor in small town, actually ex-spy for U.S. in Russia, suddenly questioned by government agent and sought by another agent. Good suspense, adequate performances by Doug McClure, Darren McGavin. (1971).

Knight Without Armor (xxx), on 2 at 11:45 p.m. Suspense tale of a couple fleeing from the Russian revolution. Gripping, well made, with Robert Donnat, Marlene Dietrich. (1937).

Number One (x), on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Fumbling football soap opera—Number One delivers zero. (1969).

Kiss of Fire (xx), on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Adventure with a capital A. Fast paced yarn of Spanish traitors, hostile Indians, rebels, renegades and a Spanish Robin Hood. Good cast of Jack Palance, Barbara Rush, Martha Hyer. (1955).

An Echo of Theresa (xx), on 13 at 12:30 a.m. Good suspense as a couple goes off on a seeond honeymoon to make up for short-comings of the first and find it turning into a nightmare. (1973).

Zigzag (xx), on 7 and 12 at 12:40 a.m. Another variation on a murder-for-insurance theme has George Kennedy as a terminally ill man who frames himself for a murder to get insurance for his wife. Good performances by Kennedy, Anne Jackson and Eli Wallach.

The Burglar (x), on 7 at 2:40 a.m. Diamond thieves and doublecrosses form a leaky vehicle for Jayne Mansfield, but she misses the boat. (1957).

Today's Highlights

Summer '77, on 2 at noon. Premier Bill Bennett, broadcaster Jack Webster and Susan Jacks are the guests.

Merv Griffin, on 12 at 5 p.m. Guests include Lucille Ball and James Michener.

Szysznyk, on 7 at 8:30 p.m. Six-week comedy series about an ex-Marine working as a playground supervisor. Nick Szysznyk, played by Ned Beatty, tries to save a sinking community centre in Washington, D.C.

Age of Uncertainty, on 9 at 9 p.m. A report on the causes of poverty all over the world.

Realidades, on 9 at 11 p.m. Classrooms in Miami, Los Angeles and Chicago are visited in this survey of bilingual education in the U.S.

Spotlight on Movies

Irma La Douce, on 8 at 1 p.m. Conclusion. The first part of this movie was shown on Channel 8 at 1 p.m. Monday.

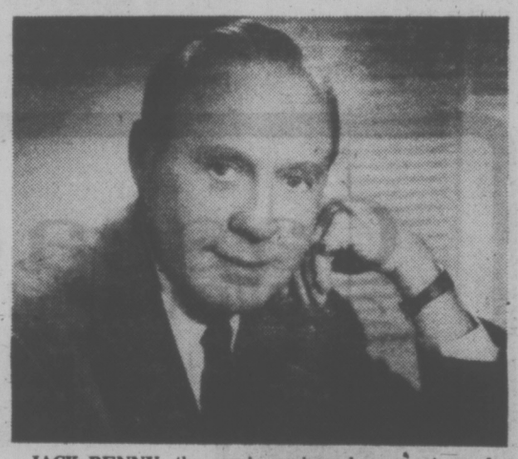

Career (xxx), on 11 at 1 p.m. Strong drama about an actor whose ambition and unwillingness to quit enables him to surmount obstacles in getting to the top of his profession. Story stacks the cards against him a bit too much, but the film is continually absorbing, has fine performances by Anthony Franciosa, Dean Martin. (1959).

The Seven Hills of Rome (xx), on 5 at 3 p.m. Mario Lanza singing and romancing a la Roma. Slight plot, several attractive senioritas displaying hills of their own. Lotsa Lanza lungwork. (1957).

Goodbye, Columbus (xx), on 4 at 9 p.m. Philip Roth's stinging portrait of successful suburban family as seen through eyes of young man who falls in love with the daughter. Screen debuts for Ali McGraw, Richard Benjamin. (1969).

A New Leaf (xxx), on 4 at 11:30 p.m. Walter Matthau plays a sly snob who's looking for a rich woman to marry within six weeks. He finds Elaine May, a rich botanist and one of the world's clumsiest ladies. Laughs and love ensue. Miss May also wrote and directed the film, and her direction is perfect, never slick, always warm and slightly askew. (1971).

The Last Run (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30 p.m. Mediocre tale of aging gangland driver who has to make one more run for his ego. Good photography. (1971).

JACK BENNY, the comic genius whose mastery of timing and delivery made generations of audiences laugh, from the days of vaudeville through the era of radio and into the age of television, will be seen on The Jack Benny Show, a series of four memorable and representative television performances to be rebroadcast beginning on Channel 12 at 8 p.m., Tuesday.

Banjo on My Knee (xx), on 2 at 11:45 p.m. Barbara Stanwyck is the whole show in this riverboat saga, singing with Dean Martin, dancing with Buddy Ebsen and scrapping with Katherine DeMille. (1936).

Straight on Till Morning (xx), on 13 at midnight. Rita Tushingham makes this show as the lonely young girl who follows her dreams from Liverpool to London, then gets involved with a big-time lady chaser. (1972).

Private War of Major Benson (xxx), on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Charleton Heston is the hard-bitten army officer forced to accept a transfer to military school as commanding officer. Comedy is enjoyable if a bit prolonged. (1955).

My Man Godfrey (xx), on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Disappointing remake of the sophisticated comedy of the '30s about a butler who competes for his mistress' romantic attentions. David Niven is fine but June Allyson can't can't carry off the more subtle comedy aspects of the script. (1958).

Hell Below Zero (xx), on 7 at 1:30 a.m. Inept Alan Ladd drama of erupting emotions and conflicts aboard an Antarctic icebreaker. (1954).

Today's Highlights

Only Then Regale My Eyes, on 9 at 8 p.m. Documentary on how the social upheaval in France between 1774 and 1830 is reflected in the art of the time. Works include The Oath of the Horatii and the Death of Socrates by David and Napoleon Enthroned by Ingres.

Jack Benny, on 12 at 8 p.m. Four-week series of highlights from the Jack Benny Show, which ran from 1950-1964 on CBS. In the opener, tight-wad Benny is visited by two men from the U.S. Treasury Department.

Woman Alive, on 9 at 10 p.m. A film portrait of five women from Georgia who led a wildcat strike to protest their working conditions.

Robbie Burns, on 13 at 11 p.m. Dramatization of the life of Scottish poet Robbie Burns.

Tomorrow, on 5 at 1 a.m. Speed-reading expert Randy O'Neil is the guest.

700 Club, on 12 at 1:30 a.m. Treatment of alcoholism is discussed.

Spotlight on Movies

The Vintage (xx), on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Strangely cast melodrama set in a vineyard of France involving two brothers on the lam. Pier Angeli, Mel Ferrer, Leif Erickson. (1957).

The Savage Innocents (xxx), on 11 at 1 p.m. Unusual drama of Eskimo life, and the struggle of one family to keep alive in the barren wastes. Some spectacular photography, gripping scenes. Story line is uneven, occasionally confusing—but at least out of the ordinary. Anthony Quinn, Yoko Tani, Peter O'Toole. (1960).

The Big Gamble (xx), on 5 at 3 p.m. Not-too-convincing account of Irish adventurer and bride Juliette Greco who dally on the Ivory Coast seeking to build their future the easy way. (1961).

Time to Run (xx), on 7 at 7:30 pm. Billy Graham, playing himself, confronts a youth who's running away from home. (1973).

The Deadly Trackers (x), on 7 and 12 at 9 p.m. Sheriff seeks vengeance on the outlaws who killed his family. Lots of violence. (1973).

Night of Terror (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30 p.m. Aims to scare, and often succeeds despite several contrived situations. Seeking vital information, a killer stalks two girls who share an apartment. (1972).

Coroner Creek (xx), on 2 at 11:45 p.m. Good little western, Randolph Scott seeks vengeance on his fiancee's killer. (1948).

Someone at the Top of the Stairs (xx), on 13 at midnight. Two American girls go to stay in an old English mansion. The character of the other residents turn this into a fresh little thriller. (1973).

M-A-S-H (xxxx), on 6 at 12:10 a.m. One of the finest American comedies of the decade and joy from start to finish. Irreverent, perceptive screenplay superbly acted, it's an extraordinarily funny film about a U.S. army medical unit during the Korean War. Donald Sutherland, Elliott Gould, Sally Kellerman. (1970).

Town Without Pity (xx), on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Army major in Germany is assigned to defend a quartet of GIs accused of attacking a young girl. Downbeat, grim drama moves stodgily, is obvious in its presentation. (1961).

Jeanne Eagels (xx), on 7 at 1:05 a.m. Kim Novak is sorely miscast and overacts throughout this glorified yet watered-down depiction of the rise and fall of actress Jeanne Eagels. (1957).

Today's Highlights

Audubon Wildlife Theatre, on 13 at 3 p.m. Some good wildlife photography as African animals facing extinction through the encroachment of civilisation are examined.

World of Survival, on 2 at 6 p.m. Hell's Gate, a water-eroded gorge on the floor of the Rift Valley in Kenya is examined. Wildlife of the area and volcanic action in the Rift are studied.

Americana, on 9 at 7:30 p.m. The Oneida-Indians of Wisconsin explain their history and traditional life style, also the problems of land claims.

Kallikaks, on 5 at 9:30 p.m. Bonnie Ebsen, daughter of Buddy Ebsen of the Beverly Hillbillies, stars in this five-week series about a poor family that moves to California, opens a gas station, and tries to scrounge a living.

Last Cause, on 13 at 11 p.m. The abdication of King Alfonso XIII and Franco's coup which led to the Spanish civil war are shown in this three-part documentary which continues Thursday and Friday.

ROD TAYLOR stars as a bandit tracked into Mexico by an avenging sheriff whose wife and son he has killed, in The Deadly Trackers, to be shown for the first time on television on The CBS Wednesday Night Movies, on 7 and 12 at 9 p.m.

Today's Highlights

Wodehouse Playhouse, on 9 at 7:30 p.m. Rodney Fails to Qualify. All the usual P. G. Wodehouse style as a girl realizes that ability on the links is essential in her intended.

Summer Close-Up, on 2 at 9 p.m. Toronto's Mayor David Crombie explains the problems of urban sprawl, core decay and aggressive developers, and what that city is doing about.

Best Sellers, on 6 at 9 p.m. First part of a three-part series based on Norman Bogner's novel Seventh Avenue. The story is set in the New York garment district.

Towards Tomorrow, on 8 at 9:30 p.m. How to feed the growing population is examined in this program, which studies shortages blamed on agri-business interests and developments in syntheitic foods.

ABC News Closeup, on 4 at 10 p.m. Follow-up on items in the news, including inflammable sleepwear, food additives and hyperactivity, DES, auto airbags, and strip coal mining.

Silent Running (xxx), on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Spectacular space effects highlight this skilful sci-fi speculation on the state of ecology in the year 2008. Bruce Dern plays the head of a rocket crew who have been sent to circle Saturn with man's only remaining vegetation. Dern is excellent, and is aided by two robots, Huey and Dewey, who have a marvellous scene playing poker. (1972).

Sabrina (xxx), on 11 at 1 p.m. The fun is not always consistent, but the many delights more than atone for the occasional lapses. Audrey Hepburn is the chauffeur's daughter, and Humphrey Bogart and William Holden are the two scions of wealth after her hand. Superior comedy. (1954).

UNKNOWN ACTORS were selected by Director Peter Brooks to play feature roles in Lord of the Flies, the screen adaptation of William Golding's novel about British schoolboys on a deserted island slowly reverting to savagery. The film is on Channel 9 at 9 p.m. Thursday.

Spotlight on Movies

Limbo Line (xx), on 5 at 3 p.m. It's an underground railway with unwilling passengers as a group kidnaps Soviet defectors to return them behind the Iron Curtain. Smooth spy thriller. (1968).

Guilty or Innocent: The Sam Sheppard Murder Case (xx), on 5 at 8 p.m. This dramatized documentary once again raises the question who really murdered Dr. Sheppard's wife, but focuses more on the U.S. legal system than the mystery angle. (1975).

Lord of the Flies (xxx), on 9 at 9 p.m. Offbeat study of English schoolboys, stranded on an island, and their gradual reversion to savagery when left to their own devices. The film has numerous gripping moments, but is not quite the success it should be. (1963).

Once Upon a Dead Man (xx), on 12 at 9:30 p.m. Pilot movie for the series McMillan and Wife. Standard, homespun police drama as stolen sarcophagus precipitates San Francisco police commissioner's involvement in case. (1971).

The Palm Beach Story (xxxx), on 2 at 11:45 p.m. Poor engineer's wife runs away to Florida, is romanced by a stuffy multi-millionaire. Frantic comedy is sophisticated and slapstick, and successful at both. Claudette Colbert shines. (1942).

Man At The Top (xx); on 13 at midnight. This sequel to Room at The Top isn't in the same class as its parent, but has some dramatic moments as seduction, blackmail and drug-dealing circles tangle together. (1973).

The Minotaur (x), on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Occasional atmosphere fails to elevate story of mythical hero thwarting evil queen subjugating city dwellers with hideous monster. (1961).

Tropic Zone (xx), on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Rhonda Fleming looks worried but beautiful, Ronald Reagan tries to look rugged, and the plot is indifferently saddled on a banana plantation. (1953).

The Executioner (xx), on 7 and 12 at 12:40 a.m. Enjoyable spy-chase-adventure thriller, which uses plot turns to advantage. Set in lush landscape from London to Athens, the action remains tense throughout. (1970).

The Star Stranger Wore a Gun (xx), on 7 at 2:45 a.m. Oddball plot in this Randolph Scott western; hero is befriended by bandit and is involved in bank holdup before he can return to normal living. (1953).

Spotlight on Movies

Yuma (x), on 8 at 1 p.m. Clint Walker rides again as a cool sheriff who tames a wild town. Filmed in Arizona and New Mexico, the backgrounds offer a picturesque setting for a big wooden Clint. (1971).

Paradise Canyon (x), on 11 at 1 p.m. Strictly for John Wayne fans. Others will find it too routine, even for westerns. (1935).

The Ravine (xx), on 5 at 3 p.m. Partisan fighters oppose the Nazis, this time against a background of Yugoslavia in winter. (1969).

Lucan, on 4 at 8 p.m. Boy raised by wolves in northern U.S. sets out to find his real parents. (1977).

They Call Me Mr. Tibbs (xxx) on 7 at 9 p.m. A sequel to the first-rate In the Heat of the Night, but nowhere near as good. Sidney Poitier's playing Virgil Tibbs again, but a lot has been lost in his change of locale to San Francisco. Routine homicide drama. (1970).

Let's Kill Uncle (xx), on 12 at 9 p.m. Outrageous tale of 12-year-old who tries to kill his uncle because his uncle is trying to kill him, thanks to a $5 million inheritance. Lots of hokey thrills involving sharks, tarantulas and the like. (1966).

The Moneychangers (part II), on 13 at 9 p.m. Based on Arthur Hailey's novel about the banking world, this 1976 made-for-television movie is being shown in three parts, Fridays at 9 p.m.

The Legend of Hell House (xxx), on 4 at 9:30 p.m. Harrowing story of occult phenomena as four researchers agree to spend one week in house known to be inhabited by spirits. Not the usual ghost story, but certain to curl a few hairs. Roddy McDowell, Pamela Franklin, Clive Reville. (1973).

The Invisible Ray (xx), on 7 at 11:30 p.m. Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi keep the story shuddering along, but the scientist whose touch is deadly is familiar stuff to horror fans. (1936).

Zabriskie Point (xx), on 12 at 11:30 p.m. Rambling study by a non-American of the materialistic, hide-bound American way of life. Worth watching, but difficult to stay with. (1970).

Seven Times Seven (x), on 13 at midnight. An Italian copy of the hilarious British film Two Way Stretch, about thieves breaking out of prison to stage a heist, then returning to their cells as an alibi. Fails to match the original. (1969).

To Hell and Back (xxx), on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Audie Murphy plays himself with a surprising lack of arrogance in this biography of his heroics in the Second World War. Battle sequences are superior to personal drama injected in the film. (1955).

Airport (xxx), on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Helen Hayes is so memorable as an unlikely little old lady who manages to visit her daughter whenever the spirit moves her, she's worth the film. Based on the Arthur Hailey best seller, this film holds many worthwhile parts: Burt Lancaster as the unflappable airport manager, Dean Martin as the sturdy yet sensitive pilot, Jacqueline Bisset's charm as his stewardess mistress. (1970).

The Phantom Thief (x), on 2 at 12:45 a.m. One of the less memorable of the Boston Blackie series, involving spiritualists and murder. (1946).

The Black Cat (xx), on 7 at 1:15 a.m. Some of the Karloff-Lugosi nonsense is palatable, but the film is designed mainly for all-out horror fans. (1934).

The Falling Man (xx), on 13 at 1:30 a.m. A policeman who was framed and lost his job sets out to take the law into his own hands. (1968).

CHILDHOOD spent growing up wild in the forest proves invaluable to Lucan (Kevin Brophy) when he saves Mickey's (Stockard Channing) life in Lucan, the opening film of the ABC Friday night movie double feature on Channel 4 at 8 p.m.

9:04 p.m. Thanks for the Use of the Hall — Bolshoi Theatre, Moscow — program includes an interview with Karen Kain of the National Ballet of Canada.

Nice Average

Raymond Singer, co-starring in "Operation Petticoat," comedy series premiering this fall on ABC, came to Hollywood 18 months ago "just to look around" before returning to New York for a stage engagement. But within a week he was cast in his first television role — followed, in rapid succession, by 36 more.

"I don't suppose that's a record," Raymond says, "but it seems like a nice average."

PLAN Nº 76-1232
AREA: 1232 sq.ft.
WIDTH: 48 ft.

Quality Design in Split Level

This contemporary, back-to-front, split-level home has exterior attraction in its interesting roof lines and the floor-to-ceiling windows, featured at the front. The entry is conveniently sheltered by the roof overhang of the double garage.

Inside, a short flight of stairs lead to the central hallway. The L-shaped living and dining area is dominated by a large corner fireplace which can be viewed from both rooms and provides a perfect conversation area for entertaining.

The convenient U-shaped kitchen has a cosy nook for casual family meals. Stairs lead from the kitchen to a large, undeveloped area below the bedrooms, which can be finished as a delightful family-entertainment room. There is no basement under the living room. One could easily convert the crawl-space to a basement if required. From the central hall, a stairway leads up to three spacious bedrooms. The central bathroom has a separate vanity area and the bathtub installation is raised above floor-level with a vanity for access, creating a dramatic setting.

A three piece ensuite is provided in the master bedroom. This large and luxurious arrangement is accessible from the bedroom through a closet-dressing room and is designed for convenience as well as luxury.

Plan for Design No. 76-1232 may be obtained at a cost of $50 for the first set and $9 for each additional set, plus $3.50 for postage and handling. B.C. residents please include 7 per cent sales tax.

Send for the current edition of Select Home Designs Series No. 33 featuring imaginative decorating and home improvement ideas plus more than 300 quality home plans of every type. Available for $2.25 ($1.75 plus 50 cents postage and handling). To order these items please send cheque or money order payable to the Home of the Week. Address to: Home of the Week, c/o Victoria Press, 382 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C. V5Y 1R2.

SOAP OPERA SCENE

Twins Identical In Appearance Only

By STEVEN H. SCHEUER

NEW YORK (KFS) — SEEING DOUBLE. Talk about identical twins! A stranger meeting "Days of Our Lives" (NBC) Deidre Hall and her sister from Tallahassee, Fla., schoolteacher Andrea Hall Lovell, is unable to tell them apart.

If pretty Deidre, who plays psychiatrist Marlena Evans on the soap opera, walked out the door, and Andrea returned, wearing the same outfit, only close friends would know the difference.

Perhaps Andrea's lovely nose is a shade sharper, but otherwise Florida's Hall sisters are exact duplicates, a truly matched set.

That spells spice in soap opera land, an idea new writer Ann Marcus latched onto a few months ago when she began working on "Days of Our Lives." Actually, Deidre Hall suggested using lookalike sister Andrea, because her character Marlena was coasting along having an affair with Don, with nothing big on the horizon.

After passing her taped screen test, Andrea was accepted, and flew to Hollywood when school closed in June. As Marlena's sister Samantha, Andrea made her debut in mid-July, arriving in Salem with a rotten headache. Right off the bat, Samantha is seen popping pills, a troublemaker guaranteed to foul up sister Marlena's serene life (see Plot Portents at the end of today's column).

As lookalikes, Samantha will be able to pass for Marlena and cause havoc, becoming the opposite side of the coin from her sweet sis. "It's a natural," says Deidre.

Identical twins have always been good for story plotting, but in the past such actresses as Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland and Patty Duke had to play both parts when lookalikes were involved. And there were the Mauch twins, Billy and Bobby, of such '30s films as "The Prince and the Pauper."

Now "Days" sports a set of lovely indentical twins — and hopes to make the most of it.

Sister Andrea may lack acting experience, having taught the retarded and handicapped for the past six years in Tallahassee, but she's ready to embark upon her new career.

So far Andrea hasn't lost her cool before the cameras. "I thought I would be nervous," she admits, "but I'm too busy watching my marks and learning."

Andrea has signed up with Deidre's acting coach, and her sister is giving her every encouragement. And if things really get rough, Andrea can rely on her double — the cast, alone, would know the difference.

CHANNEL CHATTER. Audrey Peters (she's Vanessa Sterling in CBS's "Love of Life") taped a couple of shows as a guest panelist on "To Tell the Truth." Look for them in the fall . . . The Mike Douglas Show will feature a week with daytime leading ladies. It will air in mid-August, and Mike has set quite a lineup: Jaime Lyn Bauer of "Young and the Restless" (CBS); Denise Alexander of "General Hospital" (ABC); Susan Seaforth Hayes of "Days of Our Lives"; Maeve McGuire of "The Edge of Night" (ABC); and Jacquie Courtney of "One Life to Live" (ABC). This quintette of soap opera heroines will give Mike an earful . . . Kathleen Devine has graduated from "day parts" to a juicy regular role as Nurse Fay Chandler in "Search for Tomorrow" (CBC). For the uninitiated, "day parts" are small roles which usually take one day to play. Kathleen had one day's work on "Love of Life" and "The Guiding Light" (CBS) before the part in "Search" came her way.

PLOT PORTENTS. Here are the latest bulletins from "General Hospital." Georgianne gives birth to a baby boy, and names him Stephen Lars after Dr. Hardy and his dad. Diane is still trying to adopt young Mike; Tom Baldwin plans to take up shop in Salt Lake City, leaving his son Tommy behind; and — because fans want it — Jeff has asked Heather to marry him.

It's hard to figure out psychiatrist Brad Eliot's reasoning for leaving his wife Leslie on "The Young and the Restless." Brad feels separation can only help Leslie grow and find herself in her music. Rapist Ron Becker continues to fool the authorities through medication of his wife Nancy, and it looks as if Snapper and Chris may not be able to keep Rod's daughter Karen.

A wife-beating case is beginning to take shape on "Days of Our Lives." Jean Barton, Maggie's upstairs neighbor, is the victim of her terrible-tempered husband Fred. With Brooke out of the picture after dying in the auto crash, Neil's affair with Mary collapses and Mary continues to be out of her father's favor for blowing the whistle on Brooke. Marlena's twin sister, Samantha, may be pretty but her jealousy of her sister and her constant pill popping augur trouble ahead. Poor, loving Marlena doesn't suspect it but Don may go for Samantha.

Patsy for Fred

Fred, the unflappable cockatoo who plays Tony Baretta's roommate in ABC's "Baretta," recently was awarded the Grand Patsy (for best animal or fowl actor) for the second consecutive year.

When a visitor to the "Baretta" set asked him about his reaction to the honor, Fred's response was a typical silence. His interpreter, series star Robert Blake explained: "That means I ain't got no squawk."

The Stars of Yesterday

Where Are They Today?

By NANCY ANDERSON

HOLLYWOOD — When Buck Jones knocked his pretty leading lady off her horse in "Stranger From Arizona," he may have known that she was the well-bred, well educated daughter of a surgeon, but he could never have imagined the honors eventually in store for young Dorothy Fay.

Carrying out the mandate of the script, Dorothy and Buck fell wrestling to the ground with such realistic vigor that the crew applauded. Jones' ex-leading lady now remembers laughing.

"And you know that was unusual," she says.

But getting a hand from the hard-bitten crew on a Western movie was nothing compared to triumphs Dorothy would later score.

Her greatest achievements, she's sure, were to have married Tex Ritter in 1941 and to have borne his two sons, Tommy, now 28 and active in music and politics, and Johnathan, 26, star of the hot new ABC-TV series "Three's Company."

But her list of lesser achievements is so extensive that she's been listed in "Who's Who of America" and "International Who's Who of American Women."

While she was finishing Hollywood High School, Dorothy and a student from North Hollywood, Alan Ladd, appeared in a one-act play called "House Party" and were so good that each was offered a Universal contract.

Ladd signed, but Dorothy didn't, preferring to continue her education before plunging into professional theatre.

She was in London for two years attending the University of London, the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts and Oxford. Then she came back to the University of Southern California where she was studying when she first heard of Tex Ritter.

"I had a friend, Joan Woodbury, who was already working in pictures. She later married Henry Wilcoxon," Dorothy says. "So one day while my mother and I were having lunch she joined us only long enough to say that she was on the way to the airport to meet Tex and his horse.

"Actually I had no idea who he was but I didn't want to say so."

Two years after Tex made his movie debut in "Song of the Gringo", Dorothy made hers in "Stranger from Arizona", and their roll from their horses was a highlight of the drama.

Dorothy continued to work in Westerns and, in due course, was cast in a picture starring Ritter, though the first time they appeared together she wasn't his leading lady.

That honor went to Jinx Falkenberg, while Dorothy played opposite Dave O'Brien.

But in Ritter's next picture, "Sundown on the Prairie," and in his next, "Rollin' Westward," she was the female lead.

Dorothy and Tex worked together in five films, but more often they worked apart, though this certainly wasn't a matter of choice.

They enjoyed being together so much that in 1941 they married and remained happily so until his death in 1973.

After her marriage, Dorothy gave up acting so that she could devote full time to her husband, their sons and to civic and charitable activities, especially to those aiding cerebral palsy victims, since her oldest son, Tommy, is one of them.

"Tommy is such a wonderful young man and is absolute proof of what special education can do. It can succeed!" Dorothy says. "God works in that wonderful boy."

She'd broken her back shortly before the baby was born so that the delivery was difficult, nearly fatal to her, and her son was deprived of oxygen briefly but with serious effect.

However, through his parents' prayers, his own courage, and the gifted efforts of doctors and teachers, Tommy's become an outstandingly productive young man.

Meanwhile, son John has become star of a television series.

In 1965, the Ritters moved to Nashville where Tex not only appeared on the Grand Ole Opry but ran for the Senate. The first of these endeavors was a great success but the second a failure.

Since his death, Dorothy has continued to live in Nashville working at the Grand Ole Opry House and with numerous community organizations.

In 1974, the Country Music Association named her Ambassador of Country Music, and during the same year, the governor of the state appointed her Director of Entertainment Industry Relations under the Tennessee Department of Economic and Community Development.

Her honors have been numerous, her interests broad, but nothing has meant as much to her as her marriage to Tex Ritter and the two fine sons it gave her.

India and the Queens, Rasputin and the Great Bernhardt

One day, inevitably, some historian is going to attempt to write the story of the closing years of British rule in India, and because the emphasis is bound to be placed on the complexities of the political situation only the keenest of students will be strong-willed enough to digest it. Poor students! Fortunately, the rest of us needn't bother because there is an enticing alternative.

I refer to The Raj Quartet, by Paul Scott, four superb novels which not only describe events, but, more importantly, present a portrait of the real India in a way no formal history could.

The main events in the sequence of four novels take place in the period between the "Quit India" riots of 1942 and the communal massacres that accompanied independence and partition in 1947. The novels, published between 1966 and 1975, were uniformly brilliant and were rightly hailed as a major literary achievement.

The good news is that these four novels — The Jewel in the Crown, The Day of the Scorpion, The Towers of Silence and A Division of the Spoils — have now appeared in one volume at an extremely reasonable price.

There is one tiny fly in the ointment. For people who read only in bed, and for those who are somewhat frail, there is a logistical problem. The book contains almost 2,000 pages and, according to my bathroom scales, weighs 4½ pounds.

My advice to those interested is to get up and go into training; The Raj Quartet is well worth the effort.

The most miserable year of my life as a book reviewer was 1967, Canada's centennial year, when, thanks mainly to the absurd largesse of the Canada Council, it seemed as if everyone who was bright enough to feed paper into a typewriter had a book published.

This is the Queen's Silver Jubilee year and British publishers are subjecting reviewers to the same sort of drivel as we suffered in 1967. We haven't received the full barrage in Canada, thank heaven, but there has been enough to turn the stomach. I have mentioned one or two in previous columns but the real horrors I have kept to myself.

Bad books by nonentities can be ignored but it's distressing when well-known writers prostitute their talents to make a fast quid — writers like Norah Lofts, who has dashed off a thing titled Queens of Britain.

In a book of only 192 pages which is plentifully illustrated, she deals with 45 queens, from Boadicea to Elizabeth II. The great Eleanor of Aquitaine receives a scant five pages of text, Elizabeth I even less, and Henry VIII's six wives are wrapped up in under 12 pages. History presented in this manner is tantamount to inspecting the flora of Canada through the windows of a speeding train.

No one understands this better than Norah Lofts, who should feel thoroughly ashamed of herself, and who, hopefully, will now go back to being one of the most distinguished of contemporary novelists.

The only good thing I can say about Sarah Bernhardt and Her World, by Joanna Richardson, is that it is richly illustrated.

BERNHARDT . . . more gushing

That's the trouble. The book is so profusely illustrated that the text, by comparison, is insignificant. Not that this matters much anyway, because Joanna Richardson, in common with all the others who have written about Bernhardt, has failed to capture the essential woman.

Maurice Baring, for one, called her the source of inspiration of all modern art, poetry, prose, music and painting. Dani Busson went further. He wrote that "all our aspirations are her own. She is indeed our muse and our queen and the most sublime expression of our time." To which Richardson adds, "Sarah had been not merely an actress, not merely a woman: she had been a symbol and an epitome."

What it amounts to is that Sarah Bernhardt — as lover, painter, talented sculptress and outstanding actress — was larger-than-life and no one has so far been able to capture her adequately in prose. It's probably too late to do so because so much idiotic gushing prose has been written about her that the flesh and blood woman is doomed to remain for all time concealed behind the phantasmal creature conjured up by feverish imaginations.

For somewhat different reasons Grigori Rasputin falls into the same category. Because Russia's "holy man" and adviser to the ill-fated Romanovs was passionately hated by both the nobility and the communists, and no unbiased foreigner ever knew him, the world has come to see in him the devil incarnate.

Instead of this wholly black portrait it would have been nice to read an unprejudiced account of the man that offered at least some shades of grey. In place of this we now have a book that presents him as almost wholly white.

Rasputin: The Man Behind the Myth: A Personal Memoir, by Maria Rasputin and Patte Barham is one of those "Here, for the first time, is the full story of . . ." type of books.

Patte Barham, having stumbled across Rasputin's daughter, Maria, now an elderly woman living in the U.S., must have felt it was too good an opportunity to pass up. And Maria, an impressionable teenager when her father was murdered and now in her 80th year, has obliged with what must be one of the most astonishing examples of total recall.

She remembers her father as the kindest and most considerate of men, one whose motives were misunderstood. He was, she firmly believes, nothing less than the new Christ.

It's difficult to reconcile this with certain known facts. He left his wife in their peasant home while he lived in an imposing house in St. Petersburg with a servant named Dunia, who was also his mistress. He drank like a fish, was obsessed by his love of dancing and taught and practised group sex before religious contemplation "as a relief from the tensions of the flesh."

Maria goes into vivid detail when describing her father's clothes, and when recalling her cosy afternoons spent with the Imperial family, as well as describing the intimate behavior of noble families she never met — and the actual assassination of her father by Prince Feliks Yussupov and his friends.

Although the story is clearly a piece of romantic nonsense no one should blame poor Maria Rasputin, who has experienced a terribly hard life and has done well to survive. But I do blame Patte Barham, who, not content with dressing-up Maria's tale, would have us believe she went to Paris where, she says, she was introduced to a sect which worships Rasputin as Christ, using his penis (which was hacked off by Yussupov in 1917) as a sacred relic.

It's books like this that, from time to time, cause me to consider throwing in the towel as a reviewer and returning to my first love, the study of history. Then I fondly recall all the talented writers whose works I am privileged to read, and the moment of irritation passes.

Poetry as Propaganda, But in Good Cause

By STEPHEN HUME

Robin Mathews is a poet who despises Yankee culture.

Anyone who looks down on gasoline guzzlers, plastic bread and Ronald McDonald, the American hamburger-chain clown, can't be all bad.

I wonder if Mathews saw the CBC news on July 1 when Ronald McDonald stood on the steps of the Manitoba Legislature in his clown suit and danced for the young people as part of Canada Day celebrations.

He might have countered the collective brainwashing of a hamburger clown with these lines from his sometimes very good book of nationalistic poetry, Language of Fire, Poems of Love and Struggle:

> Canada, my beauty,
> everybody's love
> white flower of the diamond-studded North, > let me tell you that > a tired prostitute beyond her prime . . .
> would throw away her charms less openly
> — Centennial Song

Mathews, a 46-year-old native British Columbian, teaches Canadian literature at Carleton University in Ottawa, which is, if you have seen the ivory towers of Carleton, not exactly like manning the barricades.

The 60-odd poems of struggle and seven lonely love poems are eye-openers in the endless conga line of mediocre books that pass for Canadian poetry.

Milton Acorn, the self-proclaimed "people's poet" who wrote the introduction to Language of Fire, says good poetry is propaganda, and that Mathews' poems are propaganda devoted to the "finest cause . . . liberation of Canada from the Yankee yoke."

There's no argument with Mathews over the great American takeover. It's a fact this country has been sold down the river to the tune of the Stars and Stripes Forever.

Along this same line, Mathews and Acorn believe most Canadian poets are influenced by American poetry and write anti-poetic gibberish, which readers of Canadian poetry would probably agree with.

In "To the Canadian Poets," Mathews zeroes in on the culprits:

> Soon the drunks will be turned out of the beverage rooms
> So you better get home.
> They may try to touch you for a few cents of your Canada Council grants.
> Go to your co-op house > in a desirable part of Toronto.

Americans in Mathews' book speak with gangsters' accents, talk out of the sides of their mouths and leave food on their plates. They say, "Kenedaa," not "Canada." Ho hum.

Our revolutionary poet stops just short of saying that American blacks like to dance and eat watermelon.

Mathews makes such a desperate point of hating Americans he gives the impression that behind it all, he secretly would like to be one.

It would be absurd to compare Mathews, an academic, with revolutionary poets like Pablo Neruda, Mao Tse Tung and the Vietnamese poets of the last century who faced similar but more terrifying colonial struggles.

In Mathews' elegy to the departing NDP, entitled Defeat of the First New Democratic Party government in British Columbia, December 11, 1975, he hits the nail on its tragic little head:

"Sometimes there was talk of love," he says, but "Capitalism doesn't want any of that kind of bullshit."

Signatures (Poems of Canada: Three) is an anthology of 37 poems by established white poets who hail from all parts of Canada. Native poets aren't included.

Signatures has its strong points. The poets include Margaret Atwood, P. K. Page, Leonard Cohen, Irving Layton, Earle Birney, Miriam Waddington, Gwendolyn MacEwan and even that old veteran, Archibald Lampman.

The layout is relaxed and open, with one poem per large page. Apparently the book is the third volume in a series, but there's no introduction, preface or even brief biographies of the poets.

Some of the five sections in Signatures are divided by badly-drawn illustrations of the poets' faces. Each section is preceded by a two-page, sprawling signature of one of the poets, thus the title and the book's gimmick.

Signatures appears to have been intended for teenagers, but that's no reason to fill it with tacky illustrations or sexless poems.

Dylan Thomas: A Legacy Of Childhood

Dylan and Caitlan in a rare moment of repose

By ANTHONY JENKINS

Nearly 25 years have passed since Dylan Thomas died in New York and started an industry. Students have spun PhD theses; drinking acquaintances have rushed to print anecdotes about "I-knew-him-when"; and the merest scraps of the poet's handwriting have found their way to the auction block. What more then is there to say about "dirty Dylan . . . the Rimbaud of Cwmdonkin Drive"?

Amazingly, Paul Ferris' biography is an important one. It emphasizes key elements in Dylan's character and background. These new slants provide a context for the poems, short stories, film scripts and for Under Milk Wood. For the first time we have a full-length portrait of Dylan-the-artist.

'Delicate Snobberies'

For the first time, too, comes a book about Dylan that is not infected by its author's involvement with the man or the legend. John Malcolm Brinnin's account of the poet's four tours of America said almost as much about Brinnin as it did about Dylan. Caitlan, the poet's widow, wrote two books bursting with pain and bitterness.

Even the official biography by Constantine FitzGibbon (1965), while doing much to sift the truth behind the legend, was tinged by a friend's need to apologize and excuse. In down-playing the legendary American tours, FitzGibbon showed us Dylan in London, among the personalities whom they both knew.

Paul Ferris never knew Dylan Thomas, but he was born in Swansea "fifteen years after . . . a mile from his home." So he has an innate feeling for Dylan's early background and for the delicate snobberies that distinguish Delhi Street (the home of Thomas' maternal grandparents) from Cwmdonkin Drive where he was born.

Without imposing any bald theory upon the reader, Ferris' narrative builds into persuasive evidence that these social nuances, and the character of Dylan's parents, shaped the poet into what he was and provided the imaginative fuel for his creative work. London and America were only places of escape. But Dylan's tragedy and triumph came from the fact that he was unable to escape his childhood and its lasting pressures.

Ferris has thoroughly explored his subject and has made contact with many of the important people in Dylan's life, though not, significantly, with Caitlan. Some of the things they had to tell him have changed in tone now that the brouhaha has died down.

Yet many of the old stories appear again, though with frequent reminders about the pinches of salt that should be taken with them. He prints a few new fragments of Dylan's work and is the first to discuss thoroughly the medical records of the poet's death. On its surface, then, the book is an impeccable, objective account of a man who "was determined to be a poet".

We are allowed to make up our own minds about "the real" Dylan. It is not a comfortable experience. Dylan's charm and vulnerability collide with his pathological irresponsibility and with the hollow apologies of the carefully worded letters he often sent to the victims of his disasters. Even the jolly entertainer, "instant Dylan" on a pub-crawl, could suddenly turn cruel.

"To some he was the boon companion, raising their spirits, making their day. To others his ultimate self-centredness was chilling. There is a story . . . of Thomas in a bar, telling an anecdote about a visit to the barber, and being interrupted by one of his audience who had been called to the telephone. Lamentably, said the man, his wife had just had a stillborn child, the third they had lost. Thomas said, 'Well, lamentably, you're a stillborn little couple aren't you?' and went on with his monologue."

Yet the book is not primarily a retelling of the old anecdotes. Ferris' concern lies with the mind behind the poems and short stories, and with the causes of his ultimate disaster.

Dylan's mother was warm, spontaneous and unintellectual. He was able to play upon her constant fear of illness: a sore throat or a weak chest became an easy way out from difficulties at school. He never was to lose this need to be mothered, and his confessed jealousy of his youngest child was typical of the joking front that hid his inner fears of loss. And, of course, illness became a preoccupation, an excuse and his final escape.

Father Embittered

Many of Dylan's commentators have stressed the importance of his relationship with his father. Here we are given the full story. The photographs of D. J. Thomas as a young boy and student (printed without comment from the author) look amazingly like those of his son. He, too, hoped to be a poet but instead became an embittered, disappointed small-town schoolmaster.

It was he who deepened Dylan's early infatuation with words. It was he who stood for the middle-class respectability which was oddly such a strong part of Dylan's make-up. Ferris shows him as the impetus behind his son's poetry.

Dylan's "concern with death, his morbid self-awareness, had been in the background for a long time. He had (for the moment) come to terms with his neurotic fears, if the evidence of the notebooks is to be believed. Now came the knowledge that his father had cancer and was likely to die. Thus, while he had become sure of himself as a poet, his father's illness gave his imagination something near and frightening to bite on." And his new poems are filled with images of fever and the body.

Finally there was the inspiration of Wales. Despite his own denials, Dylan emerges as a specifically Welsh poet in the way he used language and in the surreal coloring of his imagery. More significantly, the rural background and his large family of aunts and uncles provide much of the materials for his more straightforward work.

In plotting his career, Ferris shows precisely how Dylan's several journeys back to Carmarthenshire and the Gower coast, or reunion with his Swansea cronies, coincided with his most creative moments and how his life in London led to a dead-end or to hack-work.

On his opening page, Ferris presents Dylan "as a figure who, despite an air of fraudulence at times, was truly obsessed with his vocation as a poet: a tormented, exaggerated man . . ." Through the course of the book, he enables us to see how the fraudulence in Dylan's personaliy was most frequently a mask to hide his terrors of growing away from his childhood, of feeling insecure in alien surroundings, of losing his creative gifts, of his responsibilities as bread-winner, husband or father.

Similarly, if some of his early work seems bogus and incomprehensible, it is perhaps because he deliberately built a "difficult" style behind which he hid the fact that he had not yet found anything to say.

In tune with his objective stance, Ferris leaves us to judge for ourselves whether Dylan eventually did find an enduring style and subject.

Instead, his book is an indispensable, dispassionate record of a dilemma which Dylan himself once described: "My horrible self . . . would not be itself did it not possess the faults."

The Case Against The Liberals

By WALTER YOUNG

The subtitle of the Laxers' book is "Pierre Trudeau and the Question of Canada's Survival." The book's conclusion is that, where survival is concerned, Pierre Trudeau and his Liberals are a liability. The recent Gallup polls indicate that a majority of Canadians do not share this view. The likelihood is that the next federal election will provide Mr. Trudeau with a further opportunity to demonstrate his incapacity to lead this country.

The Laxers approach the subject from three perspectives: the economy, the transformation of Canadian Liberalismand Quebec. In the first section they argue that the Liberal policy of tying the Canadian economy closely to the American economy on the assumption that multinational resource and manufacturing corporations are the essential instruments of economic development, has come to a sticky end. The policy worked reasonably well in the fifties and sixties. Canada prospered, social services expanded and the resource industries grew. But by the seventies the early optimism faded with the onset of serious balance of payments difficulties.

Burden of Debt

By basing development so extensively on foreign capital in order to maintain a high level of growth in personal income and social services. Canada assumed an enormous burden of foreign debt. When two of the principal suppliers of foreign credits, the oil and automobile industries, appeared headed for increasingly high trade deficits, it became clear that there was little hope that Canada's undernourished merchandise trade would earn enough dollars to cover the outflow of dividend and interest payments to foreign investors.

Moreover, the Laxers suggest, such grandiose projects as the James Bay hydro development that were designed to generate employment, not only add to the current account deficit but will fail to provide employment because most of the power will have to be sold to the United States in order to service the debt incurred to build the system.

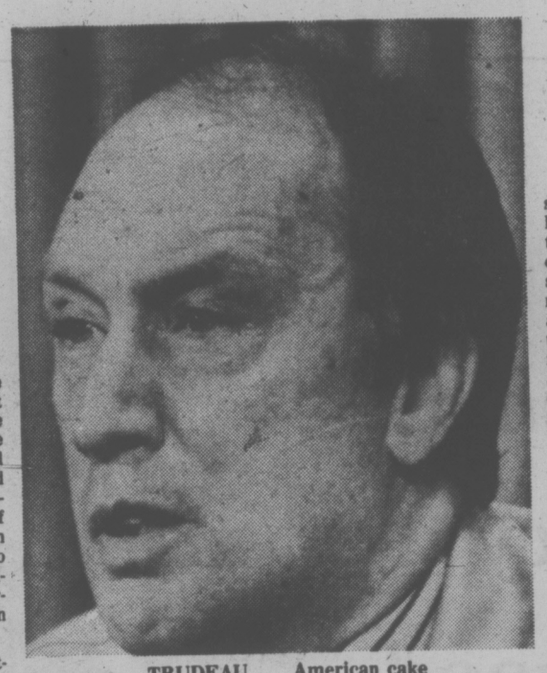

Under these circumstances the Liberalism that has been the coping stone of Canadian development had to undergo a change. No longer would it be possible to assert, as Prime Minister Trudeau asserted in the 1974 election, that things will get better and better. Expectations had to be turned off. Until the recent seventies the Liberals had argued that "economic dependence can be a paying proposition." And, the Laxers suggest, the Liberal social strategy that was based on the reconciliation of the ordinary citizen to the power of large institutions depended on the ability of the government to deliver improved living standards and better social services, with the promise of even more to come.

As the prime minister attempted to indicate in his now famous broadcast in December of 1975, the assumption of unfettered opportunity for the industrious and rational that was so much a part of Canadian Liberalism, can no longer be taken as given. He said earlier that year that there was now a need to check the "revolution of rising expectations," for as long as Canadians subscribed to its values we would face economic disaster and social dislocation. We need, he said, "to make a sea change in our own mentalities and attitudes."

The future, and not just the immediate future, was no longer the future of endless sunshine that the Liberals had always promised and had, for some at any rate, delivered. As the Laxers put it. "It appeared to the prime minister that the dictates of the continental corporate economy could no longer be reconciled to Canada's free-wheeling liberal individualism." The corporate society would remain, the free market system was on the way out.

The Liberal approach to Quebec, the Laxers argue, was predicated on the proposition that French-speaking Quebecers would be content with Canada as long as they had the same economic opportunities as other Canadians, and as long as they could receive service in their own language in all parts of Canada. In other words, as in the other instances, "the Liberal approach was to reconcile the dependent to the dominant, in return for the assurance that the future held unlimited promise for any who had the tenacity to seize it." Hence Trudeau's opposition to nationalism which he sees as corrosive of the individualist ethic he ardently espouses.

But for the Parti-Quebecois a national unity that is based on the rights of individuals does not hold out any long-term promise of the preservation of the French-Canadian nation. What the prime minister has failed to grasp, or what he has rejected as intellectually invalid, is the notion of the right of a particular national community to be afforded the recognition that liberalism has traditionally afforded individuals.

TRUDEAU . . . American cake

Continental economic integration, the growing power of American corporations in Canada and Liberal individualism has obviously convinced many in Quebec that Canada does not shield French-Canadian society from ultimate absorption into the undifferentiated North American mass. Because the Liberals have determinedly weakened English-Canadian nationalism, July 1 extravanganzas not withstanding, Quebec feels more vulnerable.

From Quebec's, or any perspective, the Liberals have done little to resist American penetration. Indeed, it is the main argument of the book that such penetration has been a cornerstone of Liberal policy, justified by its contribution to prosperity.

Old Doctrines

The book does not, however, end on a pessimistic note. The authors assert that English-Canadian nationalism, as expressed in a desire to survive as a distinct North American entity, is tenacious and vigorous. "Its strength has never been greater than in the past few years," they insist. The answer to the current crisis lies first in escaping the prison of an outmoded doctrine. That will be difficult, for "Liberalism is so pervasive in Canada that its assumptions appear not as points of doctrine but as axioms of common sense." But it is this Liberalism that has "led Canada to the edge of dissolution."

The Laxers' proposals for solving the crisis depend upon the realization that English Canada will survive as a nation as readily as Quebec will and that a new strategy must recognize the equality and permanence of these two national societies; and that strategy must be based on economic independence.

It is a stimulating book, in some ways over-simplified but probably of necessity. It tends to overlook the rationalist-technocratic character of the Trudeau government, but this is an aspect of recent Liberal behavior that tends to add rather than subtract from the Laxers' analysis.

A fulsome introduction by George Grant places the book firmly in the camp of the Red Tories who have long lamented the naive Liberal determination to have their American cake without being eaten. But unlike Grant and unlike Donald Creighton — whose distaste for Liberals overwhelms his judgment — James and Robert Laxer display an optimism and enthusiasm for the future that makes them more red than Tory.

THE FUTURE LIES AHEAD

By JULIAN REID

"Futurology" is a fledgling science, if it deserves to be called a "science" at all. Yet over the last few years it has exerted a powerful influence on social and economic developments the world around. Just as the leaders of yore resorted to astrologers and divinators for guidance, so those of today are becoming increasingly dependent on the jargon-ridden prognostications of the "think-tank" expertocracy.

Thus Life in the Future, by Malcolm Ross-Macdonald, is a very welcome volume, despite its deceptively glossy picture-book format. For while the colorful illustrations are mostly more ornamental than informative, the text offers the concerned layman a solid and admirably readable introduction to the techniques of futurology.

(The same, alas, cannot be said for the separately-paginated bound-in supplement, Ecologists at Work, by Michael Hassell and Stuart McNeill. Here the illustrations are mostly illuminating, but the text is superficial and generally dull, and has little to do with the main body of the book.)

Above all, Life in the Future is concerned with the built-in limitations of futurological prediction — limitations of which the futurologists themselves, not to mention their governmental and corporate clients, often seem blissfully unaware. Concisely but lucidly, Ross-Macdonald discusses the usefulness of "exponential" and "logistic" curves in extrapolating current trends. In particular, he explains why the reliance on exponential projections in such studies as the Club of Rome's pessimistic report on Limits to Growth is cumulatively misleading. It fails to take into account the "wild cards in the pack" — the paradoxical inevitability of the unexpected.

"It is always the surprises," he points out, "that make the actual future different from even the most thoughtfully reasoned-out future. The prediction of a surprise-free future is almost certain to be gloomy. It assumes that the growth of anything will be exponential; and, as we have seen, limitless exponential growth is bound to reach a point where raw material, land, clean water, or any other essential substance is all used up."

In reality growth usually follows "a typical logistic curve —a curve, in other words, that slowly flattens to an almost straight line after a relatively brief period of arching upward." But logistic curves, alas, are not so easy to extrapolate as exponential ones, and consequently give the impression of being a less solidly reliable basis for prediction.

In times as unsettled and desperate for guidance as ours, it is all too easy to mistake solid-sounding speculations for abiding certainties. "Our hunger for an overall rating, an overall trend, an overall prediction has exercised a powerful — and powerfully misleading — influence on today's futurologists."

Perhaps the single most important message of Life in the Future is Ross-Macdonald's bracing reminder that "any forecast assuming a future that is continuous with the present is probably wrong, and possibly badly wrong." For in the long run there is only one thing about the future that is firmly predictable — that it will not be at all the way the experts confidently expect it to be.
